LBJ Takes Reins, Meets With Leaders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lyndon B. Johnson took over the burdens of the presidency Friday night, pledging to do his best in the nation's highest office with the help of God and the American people.

The new President held a mid - evening meeting with House and Senate leaders of both parties after conferring with several top administration officials.

Johnson, only a few cars back when an assassin's bullet felled his predecessor in a Dallas, Tex., motorcade, held the conferences almost immediately after he arrived back in the capitol on the plane that also returned President Kennedy's body.

ASKS SUPPORT

After the meeting with congressional leaders, the White House issued a brief statement saying that the new President had asked the Democratic and Republican officials of the House and Senate for their "united support in the face of the tragedy that has befallen our country."

"He said that it is more essential than ever before that this country be united," the statement said. "The legislative leaders of both parties assured President Johnson of their bipartisan cooperation."

The new President also conferred with Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara; McGeorge Bundy, White House adviser on national security affairs, and Undersecretary of State George W. Ball, presumably on foreign and defense matters.

In addition, the Chief Executive talked by telephone with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry Truman. The White House said former President Herbert Hoover also had been contacted. It did not say in what manner.

Eisenhower and Truman were scheduled to arrive in Washington during the weekend to join mourners when President Kennedy's body lies in state at the Capitol Sunday and Monday. The White House said Hoover

Doctor Reports Gov. Connally As Not Critical

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Gov. John B. Connally of Texas, wounded by the sniper who assassinated President Kennedy, was in stable and satisfactory condition Friday night. He apparently had not learned of the President's death, doctors said.

Dr. Robert W. Shaw said Connally, who underwent surgery for more than an hour, was "in better spirits." He said he did not anticipate Connally getting any worse, and no further surgery was planned.

Shaw, the attending physician said the governor apparently was struck by just one bullet that traveled through his chest, hit his wrist and lodged in his thigh.

Connally rode in the same car with Kennedy.

"How's Nellie?" Connally asked after coming out of surgery, speaking of his wife. "How are the kids?"

Connally, former secretary of the Navy under Kennedy, has been governor of Texas since January 1962. He resigned as Navy secretary to make the race.

Three doctors were attending Connally.

Floods of telegrams came into Parkland Hospital, where he is confined. The President died in the same hospital.

A temporary governor's office was set up across the hall, but all major functions of the governor's office were canceled.

Mrs. Connally was questioned by Secret Service agents attempting to reconstruct the attack.

Earlier, Shaw gave this report:

Slaying Brings Grief To Nation

By The Associated Press

The assassination of President Kennedy Friday brought forth an outpouring of grief from men in high office across the land. Lament crossed party lines and differences.

Stunned almost into disbelief, they called for prayer.

In the words of Colorado Gov. John Love, a Republican, the President's death does "not call for words, but for sorrow."

TRUMAN SILENT

Former President Harry S. Truman in Independence, Mo., the unharmed target of an assassination attempt 13 years ago, was too stunned for immediate comment.

In New York, two former presidents, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Herbert Hoover, issued statements of sorrow.

"I share the sense of shock and dismay that all Americans feel at the despicable act that resulted in the death of our nation's President," Eisenhower said.

Hoover commented: "He loved America and has given his life for his country. I join our bereaved nation in heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Kennedy and their two children."

Flags were lowered to half-staff across the nation and business came to a standstill as Americans tried to express their grief.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who lost the presidency to Kennedy, said: "The assassination of the President is a terrible tragedy for the nation. Mrs. Nixon and I have sent a personal message expressing our deepest sympathy to the members of the family in this hour of sorrow."

New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, candidate for the Republican nomination for president, described the death of the man he had hoped to oppose as "a shocking and terrible tragedy for the nation and the world."

Rockefeller canceled a campaign trip to New Hampshire and said, "May God grant strength and guidance to Lyndon Johnson as he assumes his grave responsibilities under these tragic circumstances. The prayers of all of us will be with him."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a personal friend of Kennedy despite their divergent political views, said: "It is both shocking and dreadful that a thing like this could happen in a free country. The President's death is a profound loss to the nation and the free world."

From two Southern governors who bitterly opposed the President on civil rights came

Gunman Calm And 'Calculating'

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)— The gunman who slew the President of the United States was calculating.

And police said he was a 24-year-old dishonorably discharged Marine, Lee Harvey Oswald.

A murder charge was filed against Oswald shortly before midnight, some 10 hours after he had been arrested on another charge — of slaying a policeman who stopped him for questioning on a suburban Oak Cliff street.

RESISTS POLICE

Police dragged Oswald from a tiny movie theater after a fight.

"I did not kill the President. I did not kill anyone," Oswald told newsmen.

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade said the case against Oswald in the slaying of the President probably would go to a grand jury next week.

Wade refused to say whether fingerprints found on the murder weapon matched those of Oswald.

"I don't want to go into that," he said.

Police figured the man who slew the President had to be calculating.

And there was evidence the gunman sat and calmly gnawed fried chicken waiting for the moment to shoot.

Police had one suspect, a man with ties to the scene of the shooting. But Lee H. Oswald, 24, after two hours of questioning held fast to this contention: I didn't do it.

'JOKED OF FIRECRACKER'

Eyewitness Gives Account Of Slaying

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is an eyewitness account of the assassination of the President by a Dallas Times Herald photographer riding in a car close behind the presidential car Friday.

By BOB JACKSON

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — There were five of us in the car. When we heard the first shot, the President had already turned the corner. We had not made the corner yet. Then we heard two more shots.

As far as I know, three shots were all I heard. I just instinctively looked that way. First, somebody joked about it being a firecracker.

Then, since I was facing the building where the shots were coming from, I just glanced up and saw two colored men in a window straining to look at a window up above them.

As I looked up to the window above, I saw a rifle being pulled back in the window. It might have been resting on the window sill. I didn't see a man. I didn't even see if it had a scope on it.

It was the second floor down from the top of the building and it was the end window facing Elm Street, the corner window. The President's car was about halfway between Houston Street and the underpass. We were beginning to turn the corner. He—the gunman—had about a 45-degree angle from the building to the President's car.

I looked to my left and I could see both cars speeding off, the President's car and the car behind him carrying the vice president. They disappeared under the underpass.

As soon as I saw the rifle, I knew someone was trying to kill them, but it never entered my mind that he could be dead. I just couldn't believe it at first.

It's going to give Dallas an awful bad name I think. The general reaction of all the guys around me was that they just couldn't believe a thing like that could happen here.

JFK's Body Returns To Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—A dead President returned Friday night to a capital stunned and saddened.

At 6:03 p.m. the big Air Force I, a jet plane of the group that had carried John F. Kennedy on so many triumphal trips rolled to a stop at Andrews Air Force Base, 15 miles from the White House.

SAD MOMENT

It was a sadly dramatic moment.

Just before the plane came to a halt all the lights were turned out and the plane pulled forward in almost complete darkness.

A quarter moon, almost obscured by clouds, shone down on the airport.

Suddenly the flood lights went on again, a cargo lift was pushed up to the rear door. A group of pallbearers from all the services went aboard.

JFK Services Slated Monday At Washington

BOSTON (AP) — A Funeral Mass will be said Monday in the shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Washington, D.C., for President Kennedy by Richard Cardinal Cushing, it was announced Friday night.

A spokesman for the cardinal said the Mass will be at 1 p.m., and there will be no eulogy.

The Mass will be what is called a Low Mass with only the cardinal officiating in contrast to the customary Solemn High Mass of Requiem sung by three clergymen.

There was no information on the possible place of burial of the President.

The cardinal, a longtime friend of the Kennedy family, gave the invocation at the President's inauguration, officiated at his marriage, baptized the two Kennedy children, and presided at the Funeral Mass for Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, the First Family's son who died within 40 hours after birth last August.

Highpower Rifle Shot Finds Mark

DALLAS, Tex.—A gunman assassinated President Kennedy from ambush Friday with a high powered rifle. Nearly 12 hours later, a 24-year-old man who professed love for the Soviet Union was charged with his murder.

The charge was filed against Lee Harvey Oswald, 24. Officers said he was the man who hid on the fifth floor of a textbook warehouse and snapped off three quick shots that killed the President and wounded Gov. Gov. John B. Connally of Texas.

SHOTS ECHOED

As the shots reverberated, blood sprang from the President's face. He fell face downward in the back seat of his car. His wife grasped his head and tried to lift it, crying, "Oh, no!"

Half an hour later, John F. Kennedy was dead and the United States had a new president, Lyndon B. Johnson.

Within the hour, police had arrested a 24-year-old man following the fatal shooting of a Dallas policeman. Homicide Capt. Will Fritz said Friday night witnesses had identified the man as the slayer of the policeman and he had been charged with murder.

Fritz said it had not been established that the man killed the President—but it had been established that he was in the building from which the shots were fired at the time of the assassination.

He is Harvey Lee Oswald of Fort Worth, who four years ago said he was applying for Soviet citizenship. He has a Russian wife.

Oswald denied that he had shot anybody.

Fritz said Oswald was a member of an organization known as "Fair Play for Cuba."

The assassination occurred just as the President's motorcade was leaving downtown Dallas at the end of a triumphal tour through the city's streets.

See additional major stories and pictures on Pages 6A-8A. Others throughout paper.

His special car—with the protective bubble down—was moving down an incline into an underpass that leads to a freeway route to the Dallas Trade Mart, where he was to speak.

Witnesses heard three shots. Two hit the President, one in the head and one in the neck.

The third shot wounded Gov. John B. Connally of Texas in the side but his condition was reported not critical.

The motorcade slowed and then sped forward at breakneck speed to Parkland Hospital near the Trade Mart.

Onlookers, terrified at the sight and sound of the assassination, dived faced forward for protection onto a grassy park at the entrance of the underpass, fearing more shots. Police swarmed into the scene.

At the hospital emergency entrance, AP reporter Jack Bell saw the President stretched out face down at full length, motionless on the backseat of the car. His suit still looked neat—but there was blood on the floor.

Secret Service men helped Mrs. Kennedy away from the car. Hospital attendants aided Connally and his wife.

It seemed clear that the assassination was carefully planned. In the Texas school book depository building, overlooking the overpass, officers found the rifle. They described it as a bolt-action, 6.5mm weapon, apparently of Italian make, with a telescopic sight.

Along with the rifle, partly hidden behind books on the fifth floor of the six-story building were spent cartridges and scraps of fried chicken. The bullets had come from a 45-degree angle as the presidential car passed the building, which has a clear view of the underpass.

The shots were fired at 12:30 p.m. and the President died at 1 p.m. He was 46 and the youngest man ever elected president.

Bob Jackson, a Dallas Times Herald photographer, said he looked around as he heard the shots and saw the rifle barrel disappearing into the upper floor window. He did not see the gunman.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace said the assassin "must be filled with universal malice toward all."

He added: "It is hard to believe that anyone would shoot at the President of the United States. It is the same as if they had shot at you and me."

Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi sent a telegram to Mrs. Kennedy: "I am profoundly shocked and deeply distressed at the cowardly act which resulted in the death of President Kennedy. I extend my deepest and most sincere sympathy to you and your children. May God comfort and sustain you in your great loss."

U.S. Ambassador to South Viet Nam Henry Cabot Lodge, en route to confer with the President, groped for words to express himself in San Francisco. A Massachusetts resident like the President, Lodge frequently had opposed Kennedy in political warfare.

"I was very fond of him and knew him intimately. Lately we have been particularly close because he followed — no not followed but guided — America's foreign policy," Lodge said.

In Rome, Francis Cardinal Spel'man of New York described himself as "deeply grieved and shocked" by the death of America's first Roman Catholic president. "My prayers are now for President Kennedy," he said. The Vatican said Pope Paul VI prayed for the President's soul.

He estimated that Connally would be in the hospital from "10 to 14 days."

He said Connally had not been told about the President's death.

In a statement, Shaw added: "Connally is fully conscious and responding to questions. The bullet is still in the leg. It hasn't been removed. This is very insigifnicant. There is no injury to the left thigh.

"We know the wound of entrance was along the right shoulder. He was shot from above. We feel this is all one bullet. The lung was collapsed. However, don't emphasize that because the lung can be easily expanded, which it is now.

"We felt that the governor had lost about one and one half quarts of blood. This has been given back to him. Mrs. Connally was outside the door during the surgery."

Johnson already had been sworn into presidential office by a woman judge before he left Dallas on the plane that also bore the body of President Kennedy back to the capital.

JFK's Body Returns To Washington

But the body of the President was carried by close friends who had helped him reach his high station—Lawrence O'Brien his legislative assistant on Capitol Hill; David Powers, his long-time personal helper, and Kenneth O'Donnell, who played a prominent role in Kennedy's campaign for the presidency and remained among his most trusted advisers to the end.

Then came Mrs. Kennedy, who only three months ago suffered the shock of losing an infant son.

With her was the President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy who had boarded immediately after it stopped. He grasped her firmly by the hand.

They rode down on the yellow cargo lift with the body, in its bronze casket with a black top. Mrs. Kennedy seemed to stumble as she stepped to the ground but quickly recovered and climbed unaided into the gray ambulance that took her husband's body to the naval hospital in Bethesda.

Even with the casket here as evidence of the assassination Friday in Dallas, it seemed almost impossible to believe that the President, who so often has flashed his almost shy, hesitant smile on returns from other trips was dead.

And this feeling obviously was held by the new President, Lyndon B. Johnson, too.

Johnson stayed in the background as the ambulance moved away, but could be seen standing almost out of sight in the plane near the door. Not till then did he and Mrs. Johnson move down to the airstrip.

Drivers License Office To Move In West Monroe

The movement of the West Monroe drivers' license office is going ahead as planned, with the state to pay for all utilities and janitorial service, officials said Friday. The move to the city's now-closed Claiborne Street fire station should be completed by Monday, Dec. 2.

Rent-free space for the office has been provided at the "old" West Monroe city hall, with the city paying utilities costs.

The West Monroe board of aldermen okayed the use of the fire station until needed again by the city, but balked at continuing to pay the bills.

John O. Hennen, supervisor of the seventh district of the drivers' license division of the Louisiana Public Safety Department, announced the state's decision.

touring the Lone Star State with her husband, sat just ahead of him in the big auto when a rifle slug ripped a gaping wound in the back of his head and sent him sprawling forward.

Crying, "Oh, no," Mrs. Kennedy tried to cradle the dying President's blood-smeared head in her arms as Kennedy's Secret Service driver sped out of rifle range and toward the nearest hospital.

When the President was carried into the emergency room, Mrs. Kennedy walked behind—parts of her clothing drenched with blood.

DEEP ANGUISH

The First Lady remained composed but, inside the emergency room, grasped hands with the new president, Johnson, and his wife, Lady Bird, in a reflex display of deep anguish.

Shortly after Kennedy's death—"we never had any hope of saving his life," said one doctor—Johnson was driven to Dallas' Love Field where he boarded the presidential jet transport, Air Force One.

Before flying off to Washington to take up the reins of government, Johnson stood aboard the plane, his left hand on a Bible, and swore to faithfully execute the duties of president and defend the Constitution.

The oath was administered by U.S. District Court Judge Sarah T. Hughes, who became the first woman to swear in a president. She was named to her post by Kennedy in October, 1961.

The plane, with Kennedy's body aboard, arrived at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., at 6:03 p.m.

The body will lie in state at the White House Saturday.

Before he died, Kennedy was given the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church. He was the first Catholic president in American history.

63 YEARS

Scores of dignitaries, police and news reporters who had a place with Kennedy in the motorcade that became a rendezvous with death were stunned as they grappled with the reality that a president had been shot down for the first time in sixty-three years.

The last presidential victim of an assassin was William McKinley, who was felled at close range in 1901 at Buffalo, N.Y., by a crzed gunman who approached him in the guise of a friend who wanted to shake hands.

Kennedy's assassin was not so bold. He fired from a hiding place. And, though police and Secret Service agents quickly drew pistols and automatic weapons, they found no target at which to shoot.

More than a dozen Secret Service agents were within close range of Kennedy when he was shot, just as his limousine left the downtown business section and headed toward the expressway that led toward the hall where he planned to make a luncheon address.

All the carefully trained agents and police could offer no effective protection, however, against the sniper who, with murder in his heart, laid his plans so cleverly and diabolically.

Until tragedy struck at Kennedy, there had been no successful assassination of an American president since the Secret Service was made the special protector of presidents following McKinley's death.

Kennedy was the first president to die in office since Franklin D. Roosevelt was fatally stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage at Warm Springs, Ga., in 1945.

The death of Kennedy dealt Mrs. Kennedy a second shock of anguish in less than four months.

On Aug. 9, her second son, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, died in Boston after some 40 hours of life.

The Kennedys had planned to go to their summer home at Hyannis Port, Mass., next week to observe Thanksgiving and celebrate the birthdays of their two children.

Son John Jr. will be three years old on Monday. Daughter Caroline will be six next Wednesday.

Police sirens rent the air within minutes after Kennedy was shot as officers began their search for the assassin. Guns drawn, police raced first toward a railroad embankment where they thought the rifle-wielder was hiding.

Within a few hours, several suspects were picked up and held without charge for questioning. None was established as the killer.

All the resources of the Secret Service and the Federal Bureau of Investigation were thrown in to the hunt.

HALF-HOUR

Kennedly lived barely half an hour after the bullet struck his head. He never regained consciousness as some eight to ten doctors waged a frantic but futile campaign to save his life.

Blood transfusions and oxygen were administered. Then came an anesthetic that preceded an emergency trachaeotomy—a procedure in which a surgeon cut a hole in the President's windpipe with the hope of easing labored breathing.

Within a few minutes, however, all hope was gone.

Kennedy's heart action failed and, in the words of Dr. Malcom Perry, "There was no palpable pulse beat."

Doctors were not certain whether Kennedy was struck by one or two bullets. While there were two wounds, one in the back of the head and another in the neck near the adam's apple, both could have traced the path of a single fatal piece of metal.

TRIUMPHAL MARCH

All this occurred within 90 minutes of what must have been a happy event for Kennedy — a triumphal cavalcade through Dallas, a metropolis generally regarded as a center of ultra-conservative thought.

Tens of thousands lined the streets of the business district, standing 10 and 12 deep on both curbs, to cheer their President and his glamorous wife.

Then the motorcade turned away from the crowded streets and toward the freeway. Three distinct reports from an assassin's rifle shattered the stillness that seemed awesome after the noisy procession between towering office buildings.

The future history of the nation, and perhaps the world, was inexorably altered as a bullet sped to its human target.

All who saw or sensed what was happening were stunned, almost beyond belief — perhaps none so much as Lyndon B. Johnson, the native Texan who had sought the presidency in vain in 1960 and was now in line to have it thrust upon him through tragedy.

Kennedy and his wife had flown to Texas Thursday for a speaking tour of major cities. They had toured San Antonio, Houston and Fort Worth before flying to Dallas.

JFK's Death Stuns Solons From State

WASHINGTON (Special — News of President Kennedy's assassination came to Louisiana's congressional delegation Friday with stunned disbelief giving way to anger and sorrow.

"It's a horrible tragedy," said Sen. Allen J. Ellender. I can't think of anything to say. We are all in confusion. "The only words I can think of are horrible, tragic and words of that kind. I keep wondering what will happen to his lovely wife and family."

Like many other congressmen, Joe D. Waggonner Jr., hurried to the House chamber to catch news reports that slowly pieced together the story of the killing.

Later he issued a statement: "As the grief of the world centers upon the family of our president, I pray for their strength at this terrible hour.

"I am appalled and I share the shock of and despair the world feels over this tragedy."

As House assistant majority leader, Rep. Hale Boggs met President Kennedy at weekly White House congressioal briefings and knew him better than anyone in the Louisiana delegation.

He was among the congressional leaders who assembled at Andrews Air Force Base when the presidential airplane landed, bearing the remains of Mr. Kennedy. His face drawn, he shook President Johnson's hand and prepared for the White House conference Johnson had called.

Boggs said on learning of Mr. Kennedy's death: "I am grief stricken by this unbelievable act. John F. Kennedy will go down in history as a martyr to the American ideal. I knew him intimately, I loved him dearly.

"He was the personificiation of Americanism, a man who almost lost his life fighting for our country in World War II.

Born to weath, he labored throughout his life for the ordinary man and for the American dream of hope for every man."

Few men differed more strongly with President Kennedy than Rep. Otto Passman on economic issues but the clash was not personal.

Passman and Mr. Kennedy were sworn in as freshman House members together in 1947 and served together until the late president moved to the Senate in 1953.

Passman said: "I am deeply shocked and profoundly grieved by the death of our president.

"His asassination was a dastardly act. During this period of grave emergency we must call upon Him who is on high to guide and strengthen us. My fervent prayer is that our Heavenly Father will comfort and sustain the members of the President's family."

Rep. T. A. Thompson in a statement released by his office said the American people are now left to contemplate and evaluate the greatness of our democracy and to rededicate ourselves to the task of solving disagreements in a manner intended by foundeds of our democratic rejublic.

The other Louisiana lawmakers were in the state.

Barry Expresses 'Shock' Grief To Passersby

CHICAGO (UPI)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, one of the probable Republican candidates for President next year, expressed "shock" and grief to passersby Friday when he learned of President Kennedy's assassination.

The Arizona Republican was en route to Muncie, Ind., in his private plane when he stopped at O''Hare International Airport. It was at the airport that Goldwater heard of the President's death in Dallas.

LBJ Takes Reins, Meets With Leaders

indicated he could not get to Washington.

Last rites for the deceased President will be performed in Washington Monday at a Pontifical Requiem Mass celebrated by Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston.

Johnson, known as an exacting taskmaster, worked into the night as be attempted the highly complicated task of taking over the reins of government. He presumably wanted a conference as soon as possible with officials who were out of town when he was suddenly thrust into the nation's highest office.

Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., was among the congressional delegation that met briefly with Johnson Friday night, and was one of the few who spoke about the session afterward. He said every Republican present offered "total help and cooperation."

Smathers described Johnson as "stunned" at the course of events and said the new Chief Executive apparently felt the "awesome responsibility" he now faced.

Besides Smathers, the congressional group included Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont.; Republican Senate Leader Everett Dirksen, Ill., Speaker John McCormack, Mass.; Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Senate Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey, Minn., and Senate GOP Whip Thomas Kuchel, Calif.

For the time being at least, the new President appeared ready to hold over present cabinet officials. But he undoubtedly will make changes in the weeks and months ahead.

John F. Kennedy died at 2 p.m. EST. Lyndon Johnson was sworn in at 2:39 p.m. EST., and left Dallas immediately for Washington.

He arrived in the capital at 5:58 p.m. EST., and was at work almost at once. He flew to the White House from Andrews Air Force Base in a helicopter and touched down on the grounds of the mansion at 6:27 p.m. EST. for the first time as president of the United States.

Under floodlights at Andrews Air Force Base just outside Washington, the grim Texan read his first statement as the nation's 36th president. While his wife stood by his side with partially bowed head, he said:

"This is a sad time for all people. We have suffered a loss that cannot be weighed. For me it is a deep personal tragedy. I know the world shares the sorrow that Mrs. Kennedy and her family bear. I will do my best. That is all I can do. I ask your help—and God's."

After a brief discussion with the many saddened congressional leaders and other officials at the airport, he boarded a helicopter for the short ride to the White House in downtown Washington—a route travelled often by President Kennedy.

Within minutes, President Johnson was in the executive mansion ready to carry out his new and grave responsibilities. From Dallas, he already had arranged the conferences with the congressional leaders, McNamara and Bundy, the presidential adviser on national security affairs. Bundy, a former Harvard professor, was one of Kennedy's most important advisers.

It was aboard the presidential plane at Dallas that the 55-year-old Johnson took the oath which made him the 37th Chief Executive and the fourth in U.S. history to succeed to the White House upon the assassination of a president.

"I do solemnly swear," he intoned, "that I will perform the duties of president of the United States to the best of my ability and defend, protect and preserve the Constitution of the United States."

Witnessing the swearing-in were Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, widow of the slain president, and Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson, the new First Lady. They returned to Washington on the plane with the President, the same craft that bore President Kennedy's body.

The oath was administered by U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, 67, an old friend of the Johnson family.

Among the first orders issued by the new President was a directive to the crew of the presidential aircraft, known as "Air Force I," Immediately after being sworn in, he told the crew: "Okay, let's get this plane back to Washington."

In the capital he found at least a temporary air of helpfulness among members of both parties who had been horrified by the Kennedy assassination.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., who seemed almost overcome by the Dallas tragedy, said that nevertheless "the work of the nation has to go forward."

Dirksen said the long-range impact of Johnson's succession would have to await his January State of the Union message. But the veteran lawmaker said frankly that he could see no disappearance of the disputes now embroiling Congress.

The new President faces somber ritual Saturday when at 11 a.m. he views the body of President Kennedy as it lies in repose in the East Room of the White House.

The body was taken overnight to the Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital, just outside Washington, in a dark grey Navy ambulance. Closeted in grief behind drawn curtains rose Mrs. Kennedy, accompanied by several close friends and Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Police know this. They found the rifle, partly hidden behind some books. It was a bolt-action model, believed to be of Japanese make, with telescopic sights. They found spent cartridges and scraps of a meal.

Thousands were in the vicinity. The route of the President had been well-publicized and maps in the newspapers here pinpointed the route the President's car would take.

Forty-five minutes after the President was shot, a Dallas policeman was slain and this led to the arrest of Oswald.

The suspect was taken from a small theater and put up a fight—firing once from a pistol and cutting Patrolman M. M. McDonald in a scuffle.

Oswald, about 5 feet 9 and weighing about 160 pounds, answered the description of a young man sighted at the book depository building just after the President was shot.

He was arrogant as he was brought in for questioning. When he saw a crowd of newsmen, he raised his handcuffed hands in a clinched fist.

Police said Oswald worked at the book depository building; had lived in the Soviet Union and married a Russian woman. On Nov. 1, 1959, he had said he was applying for Soviet citizenship.

He has rather sharp features, dark, intent eyes, is blond and is slightly blading.

Someone telephoned police just before 2 p. m. that a suspicious character had been seen entering the theater, a short distance from where Patrolman J. D. Tippett had been slain.

Police said the slaying didn't make sense at first look.

By the time police had brought Oswald from the theater, a large crowd had gathered It was in an ugly mood and had to be held back.

Police were tight - lipped if they had any other evidence to connect Oswald to the shots that felled the President.

His background was unusual.

In Moscow, where he lived in 1959, reporters recalled him as a mysterious character who wouldn't say why he wanted to stay in the Soviet Union.

One policeman who was in on early questioning of the man after his arrest claimed Oswald expressed admiration for Cuban dictator Fidel Castro.

JFK's Sister Hears Of Killing Over Broadcast

JEFFERSON, Wis. (UPI) — President Kennedy's younger sister, Rose, learned of his assassination while watching a television broadcast from Dallas, Tex., where he was shot.

"She knows he is dead," said a spokesman at St. Colleta's, where she has lived for the past 20 years.

The spokesman had no further comment on Miss Kennedy's reaction.

St. Coletta's is a school for exceptional children and retarded older persons. Rose Kennedy is 44.

She entered St. Colleta's after her father, Joseph P. Kennedy, returned in 1941 from London to the United States where he served as ambassador to the Court of St. James.

expressions of shock and dismay.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace said the assassin "must be filled with universal malice toward all."

He added: "It is hard to believe that anyone would shoot at the President of the United States. It is the same as if they had shot at you and me."

Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi sent a telegram to Mrs. Kennedy: "I am profoundly shocked and deeply distressed at the cowardly act which resulted in the death of President Kennedy. I extend my deepest and most sincere sympathy to you and your children. May God comfort and sustain you in your great loss."

U.S. Ambassador to South Viet Nam Henry Cabot Lodge, en route to confer with the President, groped for words to express himself in San Francisco. A Massachusetts resident like the President, Lodge frequently had opposed Kennedy in political warfare.

"I was very fond of him and knew him intimately. Lately we have been particularly close because he followed — no not followed but guided — America's foreign policy," Lodge said.

In Rome, Francis Cardinal Spel'man of New York described himself as "deeply grieved and shocked" by the death of America's first Roman Catholic president. "My prayers are now for President Kennedy," he said. The Vatican said Pope Paul VI prayed for the President's soul.

Shaw said, "From what we know about his condition at the present time, he will completely recover without a disability of any sort."

He estimated that Connally would be in the hospital from "10 to 14 days."

He said Connally had not been told about the President's death.

In a statement, Shaw added: "Connally is fully conscious and responding to questions. The bullet is still in the leg. It hasn't been removed. This is very insigifnicant. There is no injury to the left thigh.

"We know the wound of entrance was along the right shoulder. He was shot from above. We feel this is all one bullet. The lung was collapsed. However, don't emphasize that because the lung can be easily expanded, which it is now.

"We felt that the governor had lost about one and one half quarts of blood. This has been given back to him. Mrs. Connally was outside the door during the surgery."

Johnson already had been sworn into presidential office by a woman judge before he left Dallas on the plane that also bore the body of President Kennedy back to the capital.

"He was the personificiation of Americanism, a man who almost lost his life fighting for our country in World War II.

Born to weath, he labored throughout his life for the ordinary man and for the American dream of hope for every man."

Few men differed more strongly with President Kennedy than Rep. Otto Passman on economic issues but the clash was not personal.

Passman and Mr. Kennedy were sworn in as freshman House members together in 1947 and served together until the late president moved to the Senate in 1953.

Passman said: "I am deeply shocked and profoundly grieved by the death of our president.

"His assassination was a dastardly act. During this period of grave emergency we must call upon Him who is on high to guide and strengthen us. My fervent prayer is that our Heavenly Father will comfort and sustain the members of the President's family."

Rep. T. A. Thompson in a statement released by his office said the American people are now left to contemplate and evaluate the greatness of our democracy and to rededicate ourselves to the task of solving disagreements in a manner intended by foundeds of our democratic rejublic.

The other Louisiana lawmakers were in the state.

Barry Expresses 'Shock' Grief To Passersby

CHICAGO (UPI)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, one of the probable Republican candidates for President next year, expressed "shock" and grief to passersby Friday when he learned of President Kennedy's assassination.

The Arizona Republican was en route to Muncie, Ind., in his private plane when he stopped at O'Hare International Airport. It was at the airport that Goldwater heard of the President's death in Dallas.

indicated he could not get to Washington.

Last rites for the deceased President will be performed in Washington Monday at a Pontifical Requiem Mass celebrated by Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston.

Johnson, known as an exacting taskmaster, worked into the night as he attempted the highly complicated task of taking over the reins of government. He presumably wanted a conference as soon as possible with officials who were out of town when he was suddenly thrust into the nation's highest office.

Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., was among the congressional delegation that met briefly with Johnson Friday night, and was one of the few who spoke about the session afterward. He said every Republican present offered "total help and cooperation."

Smathers described Johnson as "stunned" at the course of events and said the new Chief Executive apparently felt the "awesome responsibility" he now faced.

Besides Smathers, the congressional group included Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont.; Republican Senate Leader Everett Dirksen, Ill., Speaker John McCormack, Mass.; Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Senate Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey, Minn., and Senate GOP Whip Thomas Kuchel, Calif.

For the time being at least, the new President appeared ready to hold over present cabinet officials. But he undoubtedly will make changes in the weeks and months ahead.

John F. Kennedy died at 2 p.m. EST. Lyndon Johnson was sworn in at 2:39 p.m. EST., and left Dallas immediately for Washington.

He arrived in the capital at 5:58 p.m. EST., and was at work almost at once. He flew to the White House from Andrews Air Force Base in a helicopter and touched down on the grounds of the mansion at 6:27 p.m. EST, for the first time as president of the United States.

Under floodlights at Andrews Air Force Base just outside Washington, the grim Texan read his first statement as the nation's 36th president. While his wife stood by his side with partially bowed head, he said:

"This is a sad time for all people. We have suffered a loss that cannot be weighed. For me it is a deep personal tragedy. I know the world shares the sorrow that Mrs. Kennedy and her family bear. I will do my best. That is all I can do. I ask your help—and God's."

After a brief discussion with the many saddened congressional leaders and other officials at the airport, he boarded a helicopter for the short ride to the White House in downtown Washington—a route travelled often by President Kennedy.

Within minutes, President Johnson was in the executive mansion ready to carry out his new and grave responsibilities. From Dallas, he already had arranged the conferences with the congressional leaders, McNamara and Bundy, the presidential adviser on national security affairs. Bundy, a former Harvard professor, was one of Kennedy's most important advisers.

It was aboard the presidential plane at Dallas that the 55-year-old Johnson took the oath which made him the 37th Chief Executive and the fourth in U.S. history to succeed to the White House upon the assassination of a president.

"I do solemnly swear," he intoned, "that I will perform the duties of president of the United States to the best of my ability and defend, protect and preserve the Constitution of the United States."

Witnessing the swearing-in were Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, widow of the slain president, and Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson, the new First Lady. They returned to Washington on the plane with the President, the same craft that bore President Kennedy's body.

The oath was administered by U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, 67, an old friend of the Johnson family.

Among the first orders issued by the new President was a directive to the crew of the presidential aircraft, known as "Air Force I," Immediately after being sworn in, he told the crew: "Okay, let's get this plane back to Washington."

In the capital he found at least a temporary air of helpfulness among members of both parties who had been horrified by the Kennedy assassination.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., who seemed almost overcome by the Dallas tragedy, said that nevertheless "the work of the nation has to go forward."

Dirksen said the long-range impact of Johnson's succession would have to await his January State of the Union message. But the veteran lawmaker said frankly that he could see no disappearance of the disputes now embroiling Congress.

The new President faces somber ritual Saturday when at 11 a.m. he views the body of President Kennedy as it lies in repose in the East Room of the White House.

The body was taken overnight to the Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital, just outside Washington, in a dark grey Navy ambulance. Closeted in grief behind drawn curtains rose Mrs. Kennedy, accompanied by several close friends and Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Gunman Calm And 'Calculating'

Police know this. They found the rifle, partly hidden behind some books. It was a bolt-action model, believed to be of Japanese make, with telescopic sights. They found spent cartridges and scraps of a meal.

Thousands were in the vicinity. The route of the President had been well-publicized and maps in the newspapers here pinpointed the route the President's car would take.

Forty-five minutes after the President was shot, a Dallas policeman was slain and this led to the arrest of Oswald.

The suspect was taken from a small theater and put up a fight—firing once from a pistol and cutting Patrolman M. M. McDonald in a scuffle.

Oswald, about 5 feet 9 and weighing about 160 pounds, answered the description of a young man sighted at the book depository building just after the President was shot.

He was arrogant as he was brought in for questioning. When he saw a crowd of newsmen, he raised his handcuffed hands in a clinched fist.

Police said Oswald worked at the book depository building; had lived in the Soviet Union and married a Russian woman. On Nov. 1, 1959, he had said he was applying for Soviet citizenship.

He has rather sharp features, dark, intent eyes, is blond and is slightly blading.

Someone telephoned police just before 2 p. m. that a suspicious character had been seen entering the theater, a short distance from where Patrolman J. D. Tippett had been slain.

Police said the slaying didn't make sense at first look.

By the time police had brought Oswald from the theater, a large crowd had gathered. It was in an ugly mood and had to be held back.

Police were tight - lipped if they had any other evidence to connect Oswald to the shots that felled the President.

His background was unusual.

In Moscow, where he lived in 1959, reporters recalled him as a mysterious character who wouldn't say why he wanted to stay in the Soviet Union.

One policeman who was in on early questioning of the man after his arrest claimed Oswald expressed admiration for Cuban dictator Fidel Castro.

JFK's Sister Hears Of Killing Over Broadcast

JEFFERSON, Wis. (UPI) — President Kennedy's younger sister, Rose, learned of his assassination while watching a television broadcast from Dallas, Tex., where he was shot.

"She knows he is dead," said a spokesman at St. Colleta's, where she has lived for the past 20 years.

The spokesman had no further comment on Miss Kennedy's reaction.

St. Coletta's is a school for exceptional children and retarded older persons. Rose Kennedy is 44.

She entered St. Colleta's after her father, Joseph P. Kennedy, returned in 1941 from London to the United States where he served as ambassador to the Court of St. James.

Johnson Groomed For Role

By The Associated Press

In the summer of 1960, Lyndon B. Johnson, now the 36th president, had just been beaten by John F. Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Kennedy summoned Johnson for a conference and asked him to run for vice president. Johnson agreed.

Many of his followers thought it was a mistake for Johnson to surrender his vast powers as Senate majority leader. Some called Johnson the second most powerful man in Washington.

As vice president, he had little power and little to do. In power-conscious Washington, the vice president is a relatively obscure figure.

But he was just a heartbeat from the Presidency. And that heartbeat was stilled when President Kennedy was assassinated by a hidden sniper in Dallas, Tex.

Now Johnson had the job he had prepared for all his life.

He was groomed for the Presidency by both his father and the late House speaker, Sam Rayburn, a fellow Texan. The Rayburn-Johnson team led a Democratically controlled Congress during most of the administration of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Lyndon's father, Sam, was himself a canny politician. Even his grandfather was politically-minded. When Lyndon was born, his grandfather looked him over approvingly and said:

"He'll be a U.S. Senator some day."

As a young man, Johnson went to Washington as a Congressman's secretary. He returned as a Representative, as a Senator, as Senate majority leader, as vice president, and, now, as President.

At 6-foot-3, weighing close to 200 pounds—since his 1955 heart attack he has tried to hold his weight down—Johnson is supercharged with restless energy.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, 1960 Republican presidential nominee who could be a Johnson rival for the Presidency next year, once described Johnson as "one of the ablest political craftsmen of our time."

Johnson turned loose this political know-how and restless energy on a myriad of tasks for President Kennedy.

He has been a goodwill ambassador to foreign lands.

In September, Johnson made a two-week, 15,000-mile tour of five Scandinavian nations. He flew to Belgium and Holland in early November to represent the United States at an agricultural exposition in Rotterdam and a banquet in Brussels sponsored by Belgian and American groups supporting the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Before Kennedy's sudden death, Johnson was happily preparing to return to the political wars with him in 1964. He brushed aside rumors Kennedy might ditch him for another vice presidential candidate.

Johnson campaigned for Kennedy in 43 states in 1960 and was a key factor in the narrow Democratic victory over Nixon. Johnson's home state of Texas went Democratic in 1960 — a crucial 25 electoral votes—after twice going for Eisenhower.

In his tasks as vice president, Johnson has tried to erase the image of a Southern, or even a Western politician.

He has become a special pleader for conciliation in solving racial problems. "Issues which are not settled by justice and fair play will sooner or later be settled by force and violence" he has said.

In another speech, Johnson said, "The law cannot bring reasonable men and women together to work out their differences. But it can restrain unreasonable men and women from imposing their will on a community—and then the reasonable people can and will get together and work out their problems themselves."

Johnson has served as chairman of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity and his civil rights speeches won him a distinguished service award from the Capital Press Club, an organization of Negro newspapermen.

In other major assignments given him by Kennedy, Johnson has been deeply involved in the space program as chairman of the National Aeronautics and Space Council. Last summer he completed a survey for the President on the proposed supersonic commercial airliner.

Elected to the House of Representatives in 1937 at 29, he became a Senator at 40 in 1948.

Saturday November 23, 1963 — Four-A

John Fitzgerald Kennedy

The assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy is one of those inexpressably horrible things that could not happen among civilized people — yet did. It has stunned the world, as well as his nation, his people, his family in a manner that is terrifying and horrifying. It brings shame to a country always so rightly proud of its morality. Only an insane mind could have directed the hand that sent a fatal bullet into the head of the most important man on the whole world scene today.

It is futile to theorize as to the cause of such an act — as to what went on within the thinking of the assassin—as to how a thing of life could be born and grow and develop within the human form. Insanity needs no inciting for whatever act it commits. There are no words that adequately can picture the feelings of sorrow, and of disgust of repulsion and contempt for one who would so kill.

The prayers of the world go forth to Mrs. Kennedy and their children; and to the other members of the president's family. In every home in this country, and in homes all over the earth, there will be hope that God may grant them the strength and the courage to face the ordeal not merely of the moment, but years to come.

There will be prayers also — everywhere — for the safety and security and welfare of a nation that so shockingly and suddenly has been deprived of its executive governmental leadership. The impact of this horrible act at Dallas will be felt in every capital of every nation in the world. None can foresee the effect it will have, but all will recognize that the effect will be tremendous.

In the sorrow and the prayers over the death of President Kennedy, there will be prayers and hope also for Lyndon Johnson, now President of the United States. He steps into a post of leadership where the nation must have the finest of leadership; where his capabilities will be reflected in the course of civilization and humanity and in the world events that lie—hidden—ahead.

There will be thanks everywhere, also, that Mrs. Kennedy — sitting at her husband's side when the assassin's bullet struck him, was unharmed. There is no way to understand what must have been her shock, her horror, perhaps a sudden fear yielding quickly to courage, as she saw her husband slump in his approach to death.

It is, indeed, unfortunate that there were a few who in the interim between the shooting and death — intermingled talk of "conservatives in Dallas" with a broadcast of news about the President. Neither conservativism nor liberalism nor any other political philosophy has anything to do with such an assassination. Every decent person in the world has only the utmost contempt for despicable cowards who shoot from concealment within the dark or in daylight; who bomb churches and kill innocent people; who think that only blood can determine issues.

President Kennedy had committed no sin; nor have decent people who have disagreed with him politically no matter how strong their disagreement might be. It is to the credit of the single television network whose Dallas broadcaster — perhaps under shock himself — permitted such words as "conservative" to get into his announcements, shortly afterward put on the air in New York one of its top network broadcasters to denounce any effort by anyone to drag partisan politics into such a situation even in the mildest of ways.

Actually, the man arrested as a suspect in the assassination is identified by Dallas police as a member of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee, an American left-wing group revealed by the House Un-American Activities Committee as financed in large part by Communist dictator Castro of Cuba.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy's place in history is something that will have to be determined by years. He was a man of tenacity, a man of determination, a man who recognized no obstacle in seeking his goals. Only 46 years old. In public office for less than two decades, and in only the third year of his presidential term, it is hardly possible to point to "his record" with any certainty as to the stature it will give him in history. None will question President Kennedy's endless and tireless devotion to his country. His belief in his own political principles, or his feeling that they were essential to the welfare of his country and that they must be put into effect.

Millions of words will be written and uttered concerning this young man who flashed onto the world's horizon as President of the United States in the manner of a tremendous comet, and then so suddenly was gone. Yet no one now can tell the whole story or give a true evaluation of his life.

As must always be the case when the leader of a nation is taken from this world, may his soul rest in peace, God bless the new President.

Whither The Wheat?

While the U.S.-Russian wheat deal seems snagged on technicalities for the present, what about the $32 million shipment of grain that vanished in western Europe several months ago?

To speak of selling the Soviet enemy $100 million worth of U.S. wheat is bad enough. But almost one-third of that amount destined for Austria just disappeared off the map.

Representative H. R. Gross of Iowa has looked into grain shipments over the past year and has come up with some revealing information.

The U.S. comptroller general has reported, for example, that the files of the foreign agriculture service fail to provide evidence of the arrival in foreign countries of 209,000 metric tons of U. S. commodities.

The same report shows that there has been no accounting for the $100 million worth of grains shipped last year to Turkey, Colombia and Viet Nam. Nor is there any evidence that 44,000 metric tons of commodities, shipped to Egypt in 1962, ever arrived. A metric ton, by the way, is equal to 2,204.6 pounds, so is therefore heavier than a U. S. ton.

At the time these commodities were shipped, it was known that Russia and other Soviet bloc nations — especially Cuba — were suffering acute shortages of agricultural products.

There is no evidence that the grain shipment to Austria that never arrived as well as other lost shipments did not fall into the hands of unfriendly nations.

Jungles cover 600 miles of Sarawak's coast and reach 40 to 150 miles into mountainous rain forests — home of the vanishing orangutan, clouded leopard and proboscis monkey.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, the highest temperature ever recorded is 96 degrees and the lowest 62 degrees.

Mesmerism, a term for hypnotism, is derived from the name of Franz Mesmer, an Austrian physician who popularized the theory of hypnotism in the 18th century.

The Sahara was not always a wasteland. Pictures chiseled and painted on rocks thousands of years ago suggest an area teeming with people. Archaeologists have found 6,000-year-old mummies in the Libyan Desert.

Russian Exit Denied Woman Barghoorn Wanted To Marry

WASHINGTON — The bittersweet complexities of romance are definitely entwined in Professor Frederick Barghoorn's mysterious imprisonment in Russia.

The 52-year-old bachelor Yale educator was trying to arrange for a Russian woman to be allowed to come to the U.S. to marry him when he was suddenly arrested as a spy.

He has known her for a number of years. But his repeated efforts to gain permission for her to leave Russia have been unavailing.

CLOSE FRIENDS know little about her, other than that she is an intellectual and is engaged in the "cultural field." Barghoorn has been active in promoting cultural relations between the U.S. and the Soviet.

A Yale colleague has suggested that Barghoorn seek President Kennedy's help to induce Premier Khrushchev to permit the Russian sweetheart to come to the U.S.

One theory being advanced by State Department authorities is that Barghoorn's arrest was primarily for "domestic consumption"; that is, as a pointed warning to Russians to avoid ties with foreigners. The Kremlin took this means of hammering home the long-standing policy that its people are to keep away from foreigners.

No outsider knows more about this policy than Barghoorn. In one of his publications he wrote:

"Normal relations between Soviet citizens and foreigners are made difficult by fundamental features of the Soviet system . . . . Warnings and sometimes arrests have befallen Soviet citizens who, without instructions, enter into more than casual, accidental contacts with foreign visitors. Even Soviet scientists, though freer than under Stalin, cannot with impugnity conduct professional correspondence with foreign colleagues without clearance from their superiors."

A WELL-KNOWN U.S. author was paid $25,000 to write a favorable book about the Communist Castro regime.

The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, headed by Senator James Eastland, D-Miss., is preparing to make public a contract between this author and Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa for this axle-greasing book.

The author has admitted to the Senate investigators that he received the $25,000. Now living in New York, he has written and lectured extensively on Latin America.

SECRETARY Dean Rusk is on blunt notice that the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee is determinedly bent on restoring Otto Otepka, ousted security official, to his former job.

This militant ultimatum was given the State Department chief by Senator Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., vice chairman, during a meeting in his office. Dodd has summoned Rusk to discuss the Otepka case, but all Rusk would say was that he would "review the findings" when he got them from the Civil Service Commission.

Dodd exploded at this noncommittal attitude.

"I want you to know, Mr. Secretary," he exclaimed, "that the fat is in the fire. Our investigation of your department's security office won't stop until Otepka is put back on the payroll in the position he held before he was dismissed. All the members of our committee feel very strongly about this, and we plan to go all the way. Otepka has been outrageously treated, and we are not going to stand for it."

"I'm glad to know how you feel about the matter," replied Rusk. And that ended the discussion — but not the explosive controversy, by far.

THE Administration is still giving a great deal of foreign aid to President Gamal Nasser despite the Egyptian dictator's continued flouting of his pledge to withdraw his sizeable army from strife-torn Yemen and his latest meddling in Irag and Syria.

The Senate Government Operations Committee has ascertained that since July Nasser has received $27,497,000 in U.S. surplus grain and other products.

This is upwards of $2 million more than he got during all of last year.

Of the $27,497,000 — $17,563,000 is in wheat; $5,314,000 in flour; $4,514,000 in corn; $105,987 in frozen poultry. The total tonnage of these commodities exceeds 1,161,000, and shipments are still underway.

Most of these products are, in effect, given to Nasser. Nominally they are "sold" for Egyptian currency. But that's of no value to the U.S. for two reasons: The money stays in Egypt, and most of it is turned over to Nasser for projects there.

The Senate committee also has information that a considerable part of this U.S. aid is being used to feed Egyptian forces in Yemen.

THE ATOMIC Energy Commission has issued a glowing 83-page report on the recent visit of U.S. nuclear scientists to Russia. In an introduction in the handsomely printed book, AEC Chairman Glenn Seaborg states, "Throughout the 11-day visit to the Soviet Union, the U.S. delegation was cordially received and well treated. At several sites the warmth and friendliness exhibited was memorable." But Seaborg does admit one discordant note in this harmony: "During the entire visit, the 10-man delegation was provided with only one interpreter. That meant that the conversations were audible to only a part of the group at any time. Also no prepared descriptive booklets were provided by the Soviets." . . . . . Walter Flaherty, a top aide of Speaker John McCormack, Mass., is giving up his job to become a priest. From Dorchester, Mass., Flaherty will enter the first class of the new Pope John XXIII National Seminary in Weston, Mass.

Heart Disease At Top Of List

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I realize that this is an unusual question. But if you had your choice of a medical discovery, would you take the prevention and cure of cancer? Or, the prevention and cure of heart disease? — Mr. F.

Comment: Death is tragic no matter how or where it occurs. Its end results are the same whether one dies suddenly in a crash or fades slowly away in bed due to a chronic illness. So, please don't expect me to choose between the importance of cancer and heart disease as a cause of death. The finality of extinction is complete whatever the reason for it.

Nevertheless, I won't go on hedging indefinitely. Although cancer is a mortal and terrible enemy of mankind, artherosclerosis is the number one killer; and the disease in which I hope the first medical breakthrough will be made in prevention and cure.

BY NOW you must know that atherosclerosis is a degenerative disease of the arteries which is usually the underlying reason for most heart attacks (coronary thrombosis), strokes, chronic kidney disease and trouble in the circulation of the leg arteries.

Right now most of the emphasis in the search for the real culprit seems to be on cholesterol. However, we are not so sure that this alone is the tie-up between atherosclerosis and the formidable diseases I have mentioned. Sometime, somewhere (I hope soon) someone will come up with the solution of this problem: either in the form of medicine, special diet or operation. Then we'll live to 100.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What are the symptoms of gall bladder trouble? Does a person just have to starve himself until it gets so bad it has to be removed? Is there an acid that dissolves gallstones?

TWO YEARS ago in the hospital my doctor found I had gall bladder trouble but no stones. Isn't it possible I have them now? Last week I had a very bad attack that lasted three days. My doctor was out of town. When he came back he said it was probably a gall bladder attack.

I asked him to give me some medicine for it, and he said there was really nothing more than diet to help, and if it kept being bad, I'd have to go to the hospital to have my gall bladder out. Does coffee or tea make it worse? Isn't there some special medicine? — Mrs. H.

Comment: If you have been having typical gall bladder colic the symptoms are: severe pain in the upper abdomen going through to the region between the shoulders. There is nausea and vomiting. Sometimes there is jaundice (due to a stone being caught in one of the bile ducts). The discomfort usually lasts for hours.

Inbetween, day-to-day symptoms are indigestion, which may take any form. For some persons, belching is the only problem. Others may have heartburn, nausea or actual vomiting without pain.

Your doctor is correct in saying there is no medicine which will cure chronic gall bladder trouble and none that will dissolve gall stones. If the discomfort is persistent, in spite of a low fat and generally careful diet, then operation is the only sensible way to relief of the trouble.

Romney Endorses Reuther Cohort

WASHINGTON—Small events often have wide repercussions. So it is understandable why liberal Republicans pushing for the Presidential candidacy of Governor George Romney are disturbed by a letter he wrote on September 30 to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

That letter lies safely in committee files. But it will be printed in the transcript of hearings on the nomination of George Edwards to the U. S. Court of Appeals. Then, as a matter of public record, it is sure to play a part in Michigan politics, and in the national stakes.

The Romney letter, which has been seen by very few outside the Senate committee and its staff but which is freely acknowledged to exist, is a very laudatory endorsement of Mr. Edwards. This is nothing to cause great excitement among the populace. But among Republican politicans, it will raise eyebrows very high.

This has nothing to do with the qualifications for the second highest bench in the country. It does have a good deal to do with Republican sensitivity to political leaders who act as if the two-party system didn't exist. Under President Eisenhower, the GOP was systematically deprived of the kind of White House support it expected and should have gotten.

THE ROMNEY endorsement seems to promise the same kind of non - party attitude should he go upward and onward in politics. For Mr. Edwards is not only a Democrat but one who stands to the left of center. For one thing, he is an ex-member of the Socialist Party — but this could mean nothing. He has, however, always been closely allied to Walter Reuther. In Edwards's day as a United Auto Workers organizer, he once was found in contempt of court.

It should be noted, in fairness to Governor Romney, that Mr. Edwards has served on both the Juvenile Court in Detroit and on the Michigan Supreme Court. He was appointed to the first judgeship by Governor G. Mennen Williams and elected to the state high court. At the time of his current appointment to the Federal appeals court, he was Police Commissioner of Detroit.

What is most interesting is that Mr. Edwards is a highly political man. When Governor Romney endorsed him, it was not a case of giving his blessing to an outstanding jurist of the opposition party. The governor was, of course, aware of this.

IN HIS letter to the committee, Mr. Romney made it a point to mention that his philosophy differs from that of the nominee, but he asserted that this in no way detracted from his admiration of his willingness to endorse him. Mr. Edwards may be, as the governor urges, "an outstanding" and "contributive" citizen — but this is not what the political leaders of the Republican Party will remember.

They are already suspicious of Governor Romney's brand of Republicanism and think of him in terms of our current liberal-conservative confrontation. That he has skipped over party lines to endorse a man identified with the ultra - liberalism of Walter Reuther will not do Mr. Romney a bit of good with the delegates.

The GOP is tired of "conservatives" who always seem to see virtue in the other side and far less than that in their own. Governor Nelson Rockefeller's image has been badly tarnished among Republicans because of this same tendency to blur party differences. The professionals are convinced that they will never win with a candidate who cannot show sharp distinctions between himself and the New Frontier.

IT MAY BE that the Rommey endorsement of Mr. Edwards will go unnoticed, like much that happens in this news-surfeited nation's capital. But I tend to doubt this. Michigan Republicans must decide whether they are for Barry Goldwater or for Governor Romney. At present there is peace between these factions — and the Goldwater camp would like to keep it that way.

News of the endorsement will encourage those who wish to see a Michigan delegation solidly for Goldwater. They can be counted on to make the most of it.

SYLVIA PORTER

Organized Labor's Power Shrinking

WASHINGTON -- President Kennedy does not count the support of organized labor among the questionable factors in his re-election planning, for he knows that the AFL-CIO is backing him. But the pro Kennedy labor vote next year probably will not be as important in numbers as it was in 1960.

Should it happen that way, neither the President nor the Democratic organization will be at fault. Rather the decline in membership of AFL-CIO and the defection of James R. Hoffa and his Teamsters Union will be responsible. Labor leaders emphatically deny that their political power is shrinking, but it seems to be so.

HOFFA AND his Teamsters will be fighting the Kennedys, because he blames his several court indictments on a variety of charges on Attorney General Robert Kennedy, the president's brother, whom Hoffa says is conducting a vendetta against him. The Teamsters have 1,500,000 members.

Where Hoffa will take his following is a mystery, for he is as much opposed to Senator Barry Goldwater as a possible Republican nominee as he is to the President as the Democratic choice. But he has made friendly overtures to Nelson A. Rockefeller, to which the New York governor has responded coldly.

The Hoffa situation, however, has nothing to do with the main difficulties of AFL-CIO, which tossed out Hoffa when his union began recruiting members from other unions. Far more important, the convention of the combined organization at New York disclosed this week, are troubles resulting from gradual changes in the nation's economy.

The declining membership is most important, to which contributing factors are unemployment, automation, the union organization resistance to change, and growing independence by Congress to labor influence.

Automation and unemployment are linked of course, though by no means all those displaced from jobs by automation are union members. Retraining of union members for new jobs had had minimum success, so that inevitably the unions are showing a continuing membership loss.

THE EXECUTIVE council of AFL-CIO is composed of aging men, among whom the youngest of national prominence is Walter Reuther, the vice president, who is 56. President George Meany is 69. But none of the members show any inclination to retire. And Meany's denunciation of automation as "a curse to society" doesn't reduce its menace.

With automation due to increase more raipdly in coming years, the council members admit privately that they are beset on all sides. Declining membership means that the strike threat will eventually be less effective, and unemployment will reduce union power at the collective bargaining table. Congress showed a new impatience with union disputes in voting for compulsory arbitration of the railroad work rule dispute, which threatened to tie the country's transportation system in knots.

THOUGH Hoffa's control of his big independent union has weakened in some cities, the rank and file of AFL-CIO and some of its officials look with envy on his drive to make the Teamsters more powerful by imposing a "national contract" under which all the thousands of wage agreements with individual trucking companies will expire on the same day vastly increasing his power. But many expect that Hoffa may eventually lose his battle with the courts on personal charges in criminal indictments, which he is fighting in several states.

The main weapon evoked by AFL-CIO to offset unemployment is the 35-hour week, which will be fought all the way up major and minor companies, which see in it a huge increase in production costs, which would be paid by the consumer and which economists say might not reduce unemployment if modernized plants keep production at the same level with fewer employees.

LABOR economists and public relations specialists admit that industrial disputes for which labor is blamed, rightly or wrongly, and which last for weeks or months, not only hinder the administration drive for a greater national product, but result in wide spread public ill will which in turn weakens support of organized labor in Congress.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy

The assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy is one of those inexpressably horrible things that could not happen among civilized people — yet did. It has stunned the world, as well as his nation, his people, his family in a manner that is terrifying and horrifying. It brings shame to a country always so rightly proud of its morality. Only an insane mind could have directed the hand that sent a fatal bullet into the head of the most important man on the whole world scene today.

It is futile to theorize as to the cause of such an act — as to what went on within the thinking of the assassin—as to how a thing of life could be born and grow and develop within the human form. Insanity needs no inciting for whatever act it commits. There are no words that adequately can picture the feelings of sorrow, and of disgust of repulsion and contempt for one who would so kill.

The prayers of the world go forth to Mrs. Kennedy and their children; and to the other members of the president's family. In every home in this country, and in homes all over the earth, there will be hope that God may grant them the strength and the courage to face the ordeal not merely of the moment, but years to come.

There will be prayers also — everywhere — for the safety and security and welfare of a nation that so shockingly and suddenly has been deprived of its executive governmental leadership. The impact of this horrible act at Dallas will be felt in every capital of every nation in the world. None can foresee the effect it will have, but all will recognize that the effect will be tremendous.

In the sorrow and the prayers over the death of President Kennedy, there will be prayers and hope also for Lyndon Johnson, now President of the United States. He steps into a post of leadership where the nation must have the finest of leadership; where his capabilities will be reflected in the course of civilization and humanity and in the world events that lie—hidden—ahead.

There will be thanks everywhere, also, that Mrs. Kennedy — sitting at her husband's side when the assassin's bullet struck him, was unharmed. There is no way to understand what must have been her shock, her horror, perhaps a sudden fear yielding quickly to courage, as she saw her husband slump in his approach to death.

It is, indeed, unfortunate that there were a few who in the interim between the shooting and death — intermingled talk of "conservatives in Dallas" with a broadcast of news about the President. Neither conservativism nor liberalism nor any other political philosophy has anything to do with such an assassination. Every decent person in the world has only the utmost contempt for despicable cowards who shoot from concealment within the dark or in daylight; who bomb churches and kill innocent people; who think that only blood can determine issues.

President Kennedy had committed no sin; nor have decent people who have disagreed with him politically no matter how strong their disagreement might be. It is to the credit of the single television network whose Dallas broadcaster — perhaps under shock himself — permitted such words as "conservative" to get into his announcements, shortly afterward put on the air in New York one of its top network broadcasters to denounce any effort by anyone to drag partisan politics into such a situation even in the mildest of ways.

Actually, the man arrested as a suspect in the assassination is identified by Dallas police as a member of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee, an American left-wing group revealed by the House Un-American Activities Committee as financed in large part by Communist dictator Castro of Cuba.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy's place in history is something that will have to be determined by years. He was a man of tenacity, a man of determination, a man who recognized no obstacle in seeking his goals. Only 46 years old. In public office for less than two decades, and in only the third year of his presidential term, it is hardly possible to point to "his record" with any certainty as to the stature it will give him in history. None will question President Kennedy's endless and tireless devotion to his country. His belief in his own political principles, or his feeling that they were essential to the welfare of his country and that they must be put into effect.

Millions of words will be written and uttered concerning this young man who flashed onto the world's horizon as President of the United States in the manner of a tremendous comet, and then so suddenly was gone. Yet no one now can tell the whole story or give a true evaluation of his life.

As must always be the case when the leader of a nation is taken from this world, may his soul rest in peace, God bless the new President.

Whither The Wheat?

While the U.S.-Russian wheat deal seems snagged on technicalities for the present, what about the $32 million shipment of grain that vanished in western Europe several months ago?

To speak of selling the Soviet enemy $100 million worth of U.S. wheat is bad enough. But almost one-third of that amount destined for Austria just disappeared off the map.

Representative H. R. Gross of Iowa has looked into grain shipments over the past year and has come up with some revealing information.

The U.S. comptroller general has reported, for example, that the files of the foreign agriculture service fail to provide evidence of the arrival in foreign countries of 209,000 metric tons of U. S. commodities.

The same report shows that there has been no accounting for the $100 million worth of grains shipped last year to Turkey, Colombia and Viet Nam. Nor is there any evidence that 44,000 metric tons of commodities, shipped to Egypt in 1962, ever arrived. A metric ton, by the way, is equal to 2,204.6 pounds, so is therefore heavier than a U. S. ton.

At the time these commodities were shipped, it was known that Russia and other Soviet bloc nations — especially Cuba — were suffering acute shortages of agricultural products.

There is no evidence that the grain shipment to Austria that never arrived as well as other lost shipments did not fall into the hands of unfriendly nations.

Jungles cover 600 miles of Sarawak's coast and reach 40 to 150 miles into mountainous rain forests — home of the vanishing orangutan, clouded leopard and proboscis monkey.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, the highest temperature ever recorded is 96 degrees and the lowest 62 degrees.

Mesmerism, a term for hypnotism, is derived from the name of Franz Mesmer, an Austrian physician who popularized the theory of hypnotism in the 18th century.

Russian Exit Denied Woman Barghoorn Wanted To Marry

WASHINGTON — The bittersweet complexities of romance are definitely entwined in Professor Frederick Barghoorn's mysterious imprisonment in Russia.

The 52-year-old bachelor Yale educator was trying to arrange for a Russian woman to be allowed to come to the U.S. to marry him when he was suddenly arrested as a spy.

He has known her for a number of years. But his repeated efforts to gain permission for her to leave Russia have been unavailing.

CLOSE FRIENDS know little about her, other than that she is an intellectual and is engaged in the "cultural field." Barghoorn has been active in promoting cultural relations between the U.S. and the Soviet.

A Yale colleague has suggested that Barghoorn seek President Kennedy's help to induce Premier Khrushchev to permit the Russian sweetheart to come to the U.S.

One theory being advanced by State Department authorities is that Barghoorn's arrest was primarily for "domestic consumption"; that is, as a pointed warning to Russians to avoid ties with foreigners. The Kremlin took this means of hammering home the long-standing policy that its people are to keep away from foreigners.

No outsider knows more about this policy than Barghoorn. In one of his publications he wrote:

"Normal relations between Soviet citizens and foreigners are made difficult by fundamental features of the Soviet system . . . . Warnings and sometimes arrests have befallen Soviet citizens who, without instructions, enter into more than casual, accidental contacts with foreign visitors. Even Soviet scientists, though freer than under Stalin, cannot with impugnity conduct professional correspondence with foreign colleagues without clearance from their superiors."

A WELL-KNOWN U.S. author was paid $25,000 to write a favorable book about the Communist Castro regime.

The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, headed by Senator James Eastland, D-Miss., is preparing to make public a contract between this author and Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa for this axle-greasing book.

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy does not count the support of organized labor among the questionable factors in his re-election planning, for he knows that the AFL-CIO is backing him. But the pro Kennedy labor vote next year probably will not be as important in numbers as it was in 1960.

Should it happen that way, neither the President nor the Democratic organization will be at fault. Rather the decline in membership of AFL-CIO and the defection of James R. Hoffa and his Teamsters Union will be responsible. Labor leaders emphatically deny that their political power is shrinking, but it seems to be so.

HOFFA AND his Teamsters will be fighting the Kennedys, because he blames his several court indictments on a variety of charges on Attorney General Robert Kennedy, the president's brother, whom Hoffa says is conducting a vendetta against him. The Teamsters have 1,500,000 members.

Where Hoffa will take his following is a mystery, for he is as much opposed to Senator Barry Goldwater as a possible Republican nominee as he is to the President as the Democratic choice. But he has made friendly overtures to Nelson A. Rockefeller, to which the New York governor has responded coldly.

The Hoffa situation, however, has nothing to do with the main difficulties of AFL-CIO, which tossed out Hoffa when his union began recruiting members from other unions. Far more important, the convention of the combined organization at New York disclosed this week, are troubles resulting from gradual changes in the nation's economy.

The declining membership is most important, to which contributing factors are unemployment, automation, the union organization resistance to change, and growing independence by Congress to labor influence.

Automation and unemployment are linked of course, though by no means all those displaced from jobs by automation are union members. Retraining of union members for new jobs had had minimum success, so that inevitably the unions are showing a continuing membership loss.

THE EXECUTIVE council of AFL-CIO is composed of aging men, among whom the youngest of national prominence is Walter Reuther, the vice president, who is 56. President George Meany is 69. But none of the members show any inclination to retire. And Meany's denunciation of automation as "a curse to society" doesn't reduce its menace.

With automation due to increase more raipdly in coming years, the council members admit privately that they are beset on all sides. Declining membership means that the strike threat will eventually be less effective, and unemployment will reduce union power at the collective bargaining table. Congress showed a new impatience with union disputes in voting for compulsory arbitration of the railroad work rule dispute, which threatened to tie the country's transportation system in knots.

THOUGH Hoffa's control of his big independent union has weakened in some cities, the rank and file of AFL-CIO and some of its officials look with envy on his drive to make the Teamsters more powerful by imposing a "national contract" under which all the thousands of wage agreements with individual trucking companies will expire on the same day vastly increasing his power. But many expect that Hoffa may eventually lose his battle with the courts on personal charges in criminal indictments, which he is fighting in several states.

The main weapon evoked by AFL-CIO to offset unemployment is the 35-hour week, which will be fought all the way up major and minor companies, which see in it a huge increase in production costs, which would be paid by the consumer and which economists say might not reduce unemployment if modernized plants keep production at the same level with fewer employees.

LABOR economists and public relations specialists admit that industrial disputes for which labor is blamed, rightly or wrongly, and which last for weeks or months, not only hinder the administration drive for a greater national product, but result in wide spread public ill will which in turn weakens support of organized labor in Congress.

Pictorial History Of President's Official Life

THIS SCENE shows President Kennedy on the campaign trail before his election. He was known as a hard campaigner, often going for as long as 18 hours without stopping.

THIS IS a picture of the famed meeting between President Kennedy shortly after his election with the man he defeated, Vice President Richard Nixon. The two met in Florida to discuss the problems faced by the U.S. with a change in administration.

ONE OF THE President's first visitors after he took office was a former president, Harry Truman. The two are shown in Kennedy's White House office.

ANOTHER HIGHLIGHT was the visit to Washington of then British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Here the two are shown discussing many problems that face the U.S. and its allies.

DURING THE height of the presidential campaign, then Senator Kennedy talks to one of his advisors in a serious vein. He is Senator Henry M. Jackson, Democratic National Committee chairman.

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady take a rest and engage in a chat during a state formal at the White House. The affair was one of the many the two had to give.

PRESIDENT Kennedy is shown here as he approached the stand in Washington where he was sworn in as President of the U.S.

THE PRESIDENT and his wife on a sailing cruse during a brief respite from the heavy duties of his office. Both were enthusiastic about water sports.

IN A FORMAL pose at his desk in the White House shortly after taking office, the President tells cameramen to get all the pictures they want of him.

Late President Faced Nuclear War, Racial, Other Problems

(By the Associated Press)

John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 35th President of the United States, was the first American chief executive to face the possibility of nuclear war and to risk it with a show of force to protect American interests. But later he succeeded in achieving an accord with Russia limiting nuclear tests.

Domestically, he was confronted by a racial problem that epitomized a contemporary world issue - the relationship between the black and white races.

There were foreign problems old and new during his administration. Inherited from previous administrations was the Cold War with Soviet Russia.

Despite Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's determination to rid West Berlin of Allied occupation troops, Kennedy held American forces there. He kept American troops in Southeast Asia to thwart Communist penetration in that area. Through economic help he sought to aid Latin America, a target of propaganda from Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, avowed disciple of Khruschev. And he acted in similar fashion in Africa where newly emerged nations groped their way unsteadily toward stability, often with violence.

In Europe there was the problem of keeping the North Atlantic Treaty Organization intact—a problem enlarged by French President de Gaulle's announced intention not to take direction or protection from the United States.

At home, in addition to the integration crisis, Kennedy became embroiled with the steel industry over a price increase which he halted, faced a nationwide railroad strike which resulted in Congressional action, fought for a tax cut which he called necessary to spur the economy and to avoid a possible recession and watched avidly the United States race into space with the Russians.

The nuclear crisis broke in the waning months of his second year in office when he confronted Premier Khrushchev with a demand to remove Russian missiles set up in Cuba and pointing at the United States 90 miles away.

QUARANTINE

Kennedy order a naval quarantine on such offensive weapons being sent to the island nation, said ships carrying them would be turned back and called on Khrushchev to withdraw the weapons already there.

For five days the nation and the world waited for word from Khrushchev, sworn foe of the Free World. On Sunday, Oct. 28, 1962 came intense relief. Khrushchev announced he had ordered work stopped on missile bases, said the missiles would be crated and returned to Russia and promised that the United Nations would verify the dismantling.

The crisis involving Cuba was not Kennedy's first with that small Carribbean nation.

Soon after he was inaugurated Jan. 20, 1951 Cuban refugees with United States backing invaded their homeland in an attempt to wrest it from Castro. The invasion was a fiasco.

Castro's Russian-built military might crushed the invasion. Anticipated defections from Castro's forces failed to materialize. And the United States did not come to the invaders' aid militarily. U.S. prestige abroad plummeted.

While the invasion was in progress Khrushchev warned Kennedy to "call a halt to the aggression" or else Russia would give "all necessary assistance" in resisting the invasion. But the President replied:

"In the event of any military intervention by outside force, we will immediately honor our obligations under the inter-American system to protect this hemisphere against external aggression."

Later, in a speech, Kennedy warned Communist foes and non-Communist friends that the United States would act on its own against Cuba's Reds if United States security was threatened. This is what he did in October, 1962.

The nation's first inkling came Sunday, Oct. 21. There were reports of tension in Washington, but newsmen were unable to pin down the cause.

TENSION

On Monday it was announced Kennedy would address the nation at 7 p.m. on a matter of greatest urgency. Meanwhile, it was learned that Congressional leaders had been summoned back to the capital.

At the appointed hour a serious, stern President could be seen on the television screen. Without wasting words he outlined evidence of atomic missile sites in Cuba. He blamed Soviet Russia, which had been assuring the United States it was sending only defensive weapons to the island. Said Kennedy:

"This secret, swift and extraordinary build-up of Communist missiles in an area well known to have a special and historical relationship to the United States and the nations of the Western Hemisphere is a deliberately provocative and unjustified change in the status quo which cannot be accepted by this country, if our courage and our commitments are ever again to be trusted by either friend or foe."

He ordered a quarantine on all such offensive weapons for Cuba and said ships carrying them would be turned back.

He called on Khrushchev to withdraw weapons already there and cease preparation of

A week before Kennedy made his broadcast aerial surveillance had obtained evidence of missile sites ready and being prepared in Cuba. The public was not told there were days and nights of debate and action by the Kennedy administration until the blockade decision was reached.

DAYS TENSE

The days following the quarantine announcement were tense. Military forces were built up in the Southeast. The Organization of American States met the next day and unanimously adopted a resolution offered by Secretary of State Dean Rusk authorizing "the use of force individually or collectively" to enforce the blockade. With that legal backing, Kennedy issued the proclamation to become effective at 10 a.m. the next day. Twenty-five Russian ships wer reported en route to Cuba.

Meanwhile, United Nations Acting Secretary General U Thant asked both Kennedy and Khrushchev to suspend both the arms blockade and arms shipment for two or three weeks pending negotiations. Khruschev accepted. Washington agreed to cooperate to avoid a confrontation.

Twenty hours after the proclamation was issued a Russian ship carrying oil was intercepted. It was allowed to proceed.

Tension mounted. The Kremlin stalled. On Friday, Oct. 26, the State Department called attention to the President's speech in which he said if missile site preparation continued "further action will be justified."

At 9 p. m. that night a letter arrived from Khrushchev. Although not explicitly stated, it contained an offer to withdraw the offensive weapons under U. N. supervision in return for a guarantee the United States would not invade Cuba. The following day—Saturday—a second note from Russia offered to trade Cuba bases for U. S. bases in Turkey.

The United States, parrying the Turkey bid, advised Khruschev that if he was offering to remove offensive weapons for an end to the blockade and a U. S. promise not to invade Cuba, it was a deal. Khruschev's fateful message came the next day. He agreed.

But the crisis still was unsolved. Castro, thrust in the background during the tension-filled days, announced he would not permit U. N. on-the-spot inspection. A visit from U Thant failed to budge him. Russian First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan flew to Cuba but Castro remained adamant.

REMOVES MISSILES

Russia announced 42 medium-range missiles had been dismantled and shipped home. The U.S. Navy verified it by inspecting freighters en route from Cuba to Russia.

But the United States insisted 30 or more IL-28 jet bombers also must go and continued to demand verification. Meanwhile aerial surveillance continued.

Although the crisis eased, Cuba remained a problem. Cuban exiles in the United States worked incessantly for the release of loved ones captured during the ill-fated invasion of 1961. An effort to ransom the prisoners failed because of Castro's exorbitant demands.

Finally, through private negotiations conducted with Castro by James B. Donovan, a New York lawyer skilled in undercover negotiations, another ransom of privately donated drugs and baby food was agreed upon and 1,113 imprisoned Cubans were flown to Miami just before Christmas 1962.

Kennedy greeted the returned men in a ceremony in the Orange Bowl. Accepting the invasion flag, which the men brought back from prison, the President declared: "I can assure you that this flag will be returned to this brigade in a free Cuba."

Early in 1963 administration critics, spearheaded by U.S. Senator Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.), charged that Russian troops still were maintaining and guarding medium-range missile sites they had previously constructed in Cuba.

The Defense Department, in reply, publicly exhibited aerial photographs purportedly showing how the Russians had destroyed their intermediate and medium-range sites.

Kennedy, at a news conference, acknowledged "there still is a body of Soviet military equipment and technicians" in Cuba, but he disclosed the United States and Russia were discussing the possibilities of withdrawal. Later the Kremlin missile sites. If this were not done, he said, "further action" would be taken. Aerial surveillance would continue, he added.

advised it was withdrawing more of its troops from the island.

With the Cuban crisis still simmering, West Germany Chancellor Konrad Adenauer flew to Washington to confer with Kennedy on the Berlin problem. It was the aged Adenauer's third visit to the young president and during each the Berlin issue dominated the discussions.

The divided city of West and East Berlin had been a thorn since the end of World War II. Khrushchev called West Berlin, showplace of the Free World surrounded by Communism, a bone that must come out of the Russian throat. He threatened to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany and turn over access to West Berlin to the East German Communist government. The East Germans whom the Western powers did not recognize, said the city should be theirs.

Khrushchev stepped up his offensive by questioning the inviolability of Western air access to Berlin. The West insisted on its right to unrestricted use of the air corridors between West Germany and West Berlin.

The Soviets charged the United States with airlifting saboteurs and spies into West Berlin for action against East Germany and other Soviet bloc nations. In replying to this charge, the White House said in a statement:

"The United States must serve a solemn warning to the Soviet Union that any interference by the Soviet government or its East German regime with free access to West Berlin would be an aggressive act for the consequences of which the Soviet government would bear full responsibility."

HOLD FAST

Throughout the spring and summer of 1962 Kennedy issued warnings to Khrushchev that the Western Allies intended to remain in West Berlin. He repeatedly asserted that the United States would stand by its pledge to defend West Berlin.

In June of 1963 he remphasized this in a visit to West Germany, where he was greeted enthusiastically.

To a West Berlin throng he described himself as "a Berliner," asserting that "all free men, wherever they may live, are citizens of Berlin."

West Berlin was not Kennedy's only worry. The United States was involved with the Communists in such far off places as Laos and South Viet Nam in Southeast Asia.

In May of 1962 Kennedy dispatched U. S. naval, air and land forces to the Thailand-Laos border because of a pro-Communist seizure of control of most of northern Laos. The maneuver was intended to demonstrate United States commitment in Thailand's defense and to place more troops closer to landlocked Laos.

Two months later a treaty establishing the neutrality of Laos was signed in Geneva by a 14-nation conference. The treaty carried a protocol providing for withdrawal of foreign troops.

Kennedy hailed the accord as a "significant milestone in our efforts to maintain and further world peace." He said, "It is a heartening indication that difficult and at times seemingly insoluble international problems can in fact be solved by patient diplomacy."

Khrushchev, sounding a similar theme, suggested that other "unsettled international problems, however complicated," could be resolved in the same spirit.

As time went on, however, there were indications that Laos' coalition government of neutralist, right-wing and leftwing was frail and insecure. There really was no peace.

SOUTH VIET NAM

Fighting raged in South Viet Nam where the Communist Viet Cong from the North fought to overrun the country and place it in Communist hands. U. S. military advisers tried to help the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem but they spoke of the Viet Nam involvement with the infiltrated Communist guerrillas in terms of years and millions of dollars.

The situation became further complicated in 1963 by a political-religious outbreak involving Buddhists, a majority in the country, and the Roman Catholic Diem family. The Buddhists, charging repressions, demonstrated. The Diem government raided pagodas and jailed Buddhists. Some Buddhists burned themselves to death publicly in protest.

The United States blamed Ngo Dinh Nhu, the President's brother, who was considered the second most powerful, if not the most powerful, man in the country.

Through persuasion and the withdrawal of certain economic aid, it sought to persuade Diem to rid himself of his brother. The Diem government resisted, denied that it persecuted the Buddhists and counter-charged the Buddhists with aiding the Communist cause through their demands.

The drama came to a climax Nov. 1, 1963. Vietnamese military leaders captured key points in Saigon and attacked the Presidential palace. Soon after dawn Nov. 2 the palace fell. Diem and his brother were dead. Some said the brothers committed suicide. Others said they were assassinated. The military installed a civilian as Premier of a caretaker government.

The United States, which considered the country vital to the Western defense position in Southeast Asia and had invested $2.5 billion in aid and 16,500 troops, watched closely.

NUCLEAR BAN

In an assessment of his first year in office Kennedy told a news conference that failure to reach agreement with the Soviet Union on a nuclear test ban had been his greatest disappointment. He achieved a limited test ban in 1963, his third year in the White House.

Nuclear testing had been a constant problem. In September 1961 Russian junked a three-year moratorium in atomic weapons, attributing its decision to pressure from "imperialistic countries."

Kennedy called the decision "utter disregard of the desire of mankind for a decrease in the arms race."

Russia proceeded with the tests in Central Asia between September and November. Khrushchev said one blast in the series was on the plus side of 50 megatons (a 50-megaton blast is equivalent to 50 million tons of TNT).

This was in defiance of worldwide appeals not to test such a bomb because atomic explosions in the atmosphere cause radioactive fallout — small poisonous particles which can harm life if received in large doses.

The Soviet action caused a wave of angry protest and alarm over the danger to humanity that it created. The White House denounced it as a device to incite "fright and panic."

A U.S. spokesman said the country had the capacity and know how to develop a 50-megaton bomb but had concluded it was of questionable military value. He said Khrushchev's primary purpose was to create terror.

After Russia's renewal of nuclear detonations, Kennedy announced resumption of underground and laboratory tests by the United States. Such tests do not create the hazard of fallout.

"We have no other choice in fulfillment of the responsibilities of the United States to its own citizens and to the security of other free nations," he said.

Meanwhile, Russia announced it would hold more tests if the United States continued underground blasts or started atmospheric explosions.

The United States resumed atmospheric tests in April 1962 but only after Russia rejected a treaty prohibiting all tests. Russia promptly resumed tests in mid-summer and the United States followed with more tests in the autumn.

TREATY REACHED

Finally in June 1963 Kennedy proposed a "strategy of peace" to lead the United States and the Soviet Union out of the "vicious and dangerous cycle" of the cold war. As a first step, he said, high ranking representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia would meet in Moscow in a renewed effort to agree on a nuclear test ban. As a demonstration of its good faith, he said the United States would refrain from atmospheric tests so long as others did likewise.

A treaty banning nuclear weapons tests in space, in the atmosphere and under water was initialed in Moscow in September. The three nations formally accepted it and other nations followed suit.

Kennedy said the treaty "reflects no concessions either to or by the Soviet Union. It reflects our common recognition of the dangers in further testing."

The treaty caused Kennedy to comment on the "pause in the cold war" in a speech before the United Nations in September.

A further thaw appeared in October when Kennedy approved the sale of some four million tons of wheat to Russia and other Soviet bloc nations which had been hit by drought.

Past American policy had discouraged US.-Soviet trade but Kennedy saw such benefits in the deal as improvement of the balance of payments, increase in gold supplies, strengthening of the farm economy and a reduction in the U.S. wheat surplus.

"This transaction advertises to the world as nothing else could the success of free American agriculture," he said.

RACIAL STRIFE

At home Kennedy found himself deep in the Civil Rights problem from the very start of his administration.

In the spring of 1961, his first year in office, Negro and white groups, calling themselves Freedom Riders, sought to break down bus station racial barriers and ran into violence in Alabama. There were incidents at Anniston, Birmingham and Montgomery, among others. The worst was at Montgomery.

At least 20 persons were beaten with fists and clubs in a bloody riot there. The rioting around the Greyhound bus station continued for nearly two hours before the white mob — numbering close to 1,000 at times — was broken up with tear gas by state and city police.

President Kennedy's brother, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, ordered several hundred U.S. marshals to Montgomery. The Guardsmen with fixed bayonets scattered a howling mob that tried to overwhelm Federal marshals protecting a Negro church mass meeting.

The Governor particularly blamed the marshals for causing the outbreak at the church. He said he still admired the Kennedy administration but added that "the President and the U.S. Attorney General made a mistake in this matter."

Attorney General Kennedy declared, however, there would have been "an extremely bloody and costly riot" in Montgomery but for the presence of the marshals.

Far worse rioting— Two persons were killed—occured Sept. 30, 1962, when Negro James H. Meredith sought to register at the all-white University of Mississippi in Oxford. He finally registered with the aid of U.S. marshals and Federal troops but not before an awful nightmare of tear gas and buckshot, rifle bullets and flying bricks, screaming hordes of people gone wild and blood and death.

It was the biggest clash of state versus Federal power since the Civil War. The nation and the world watched tensely as Mississippi's Governor Ross Barnett sought to defy the Federal government which was determined to uphold Federal court orders admitting Meredith to the university.

Meredith's struggle to enter Ole Miss began 16 months earlier. His application was rejected. The case moved back and forth between state and Federal courts. Meredith contended he had been refused because of his race. A Federal Court of Appeals upheld his contention.

Meredith made four attempts to register at the university. On first try on the campus Barnett blocked him and invoked interposition — putting himself and the state's police powers between orders of the Federal court and the people of the state.

The governor blocked a second try and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson thwarted a third. The Justice Department abandoned a fourth attempt when Federal marshals accompanying Meredith were called back because of a possibility of violence and bloodshed.

RIOT ON CAMPUS

When marshals finally escorted Meredith to an apartment on the campus on Sunday, Sept. 30, an unruly mob of 2,500 students, townspeople and out-of-towners opened up with a barrage of rifle bullets, rocks, bottles and acid. The marshals fought back with tear gas. Meanwhile, Kennedy, who had made a fruitless appeal for order, dispatched federalized Mississippi National Guardsmen and troops to the college town.

Meredith registered the next day and began classes under the protection of marshals. They remained with him until he graduated in August 1963.

Barnett and Johnson both were cited for contempt of court for defying the court orders to admit Meredith. They faced possible jail sentences and fines.

Racial strife boiled anew in the spring and summer of 1963, spreading to other Southern states and some northern cities, as Negroes demonstrated for equal rights. Birmingham, Ala., took the spotlight when Negro mass demonstrations in April and May were countered by fire hoses and police dogs.

More than 2,400 Negroes and whites were jailed and two Negro residences were bombed at the heighth of the fury. Federal troops were sent to bases near Birmingham for possible use. The President read a statement asserting the government would do all it could "to preserve order, to protect the lives of its citizens and to uphold the law of the land." He expressed dismay "at the efforts of those who would replace conciliation and good will with violence and hate."

The situation simmered as progress was sought through biracial talks. But the peace was shattered on Sept. 17 when a bomb exploded in the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church during a Sunday School session. Four Negro girls were killed and 23 other persons were injured. The bombing climaxed the first week of token integration of three white schools.

In the midst of the Birmingham trouble, the Kennedy administration also tangled with Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace over the admission of two Negro students to the University of Alabama. Although Wallace made good a threat to stand on the school house steps and forbid the students entrance, he bowed to federalized Alabama National Guardsmen and the students entered the university.

LEGISLATION

The unrest spurred the President to send a special message to Congress in June asking it to help end "rancor, violence, disunity and national shame" by passing what was described as the most sweeping civil rights bill since Reconstruction days.

The bill brimmed with weapons against racial discrimination in stores, hotels and other public places, in schools, in jobs and polling booths. The President called its enactment "imperative."

He chided Congress for not enacting earlier proposals and said, "The result of continued federal legislative inaction will be continued, if not increased, racial strife." At the same time he appealed to Negroes to rein their demonstrations so Congress can "freely work its will."

In a move to impress Congress, Negro leaders called for a "March on Washington." On Aug. 28 more than 200,000 Negroes and whites arrived in the capital by plane, train, bus, car and on foot. Gathering at the Washington Monument, they marched down Constitution Ave. to the Lincoln Memorial, chanting and singing. Massed before the statue of the Civil War President, they shouted support of their leaders demands for "jobs and freedom." Kennedy asserted "the cause of 20 million Negroes has been advanced" by the assembly. But Congress did not hurry enactment of the Civil Rights bill.

Kennedy had trouble, too, with industry.

The nation's business community gasped in April 1962 when he cracked down on United States Steel for announcing a $6 a ton price increase after signing a wage agreement with the United Steelworkers Union.

The administration had been following the negotiations for a contract with much interest. It did not want one which would include a large wage increase in the belief such an agreement would force a price increase and be an inflationary threat to the country's economic health.

A modest contract was reached and the then Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg hailed it as a contribution toward price stability.

When Roger M. Blough, president of U.S. Steel, personally advised Kennedy of the price increase, Blough touched off 72 hours of governmental activity which he and his colleagues could not have expected.

During that period four antitrust investigations of the steel industry were conceived by government officials, a bill to roll back the price increase was seriously considered, legislation to impose price and wage controls on the industry was discussed, the FBI questioned newspapermen in the dawn and the Defense Department — biggest buyer of steel in the nation—began to divert purchases away from United States Steel.

Some other steel companies followed the lead of U.S. Steel. Kennedy held a news conference.

In a cold fury—aides said he felt he had been double-crossed by the industry — Kennedy denounced the increase as "wholly unjustifiable and irresponsible defiance of the public interest." He said the steel men had shown "utter contempt for their fellow citizens."

Blough defended his company's action. Proper pricing, he said was involved in keeping productive facilities up-to-date and competitive in the "race among nations."

PRICE RISE

U.S. Steel finally backed down after several major companies said they would hold the price line and Bethlehem Steel second largest steel company, rescinded the price rise it announced following the U.S. Steel move.

Blough and Kennedy met at the White House again. The meeting was called "useful and cordial." The President told a news conference "this administration harbors no ill will against any individual, any industry, corporation or segment of the American economy."

Despite this assurance, business remained upset by what its leaders called government interference in its operations. Kennedy sought to dispel this in a speech before the United States Chamber of Commerce.

But after the speech some businessmen complained that the Government showed a "naked display of power" in its counteraction against U.S. Steel. Steel.

The administration quietly accepted selected price increases in the steel industry in April 1963 although reiterating its opposition to any across-the-board rises. "I opposed such an increase last year, I oppose it now," Kennedy said.

Some quarters called a break in the stock market May 28, 1962 a reflection of lack of confidence on the part of business. Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon denied it. He said the break showed "a weakening confidence in the stock market" —that is, in the high prices that prevailed before the break.

Kennedy noted the talk in a commencement address at Yale University. He said it was false to ascribe "any and all unfavorable turns of the speculative wheel" to lack of confidence in his administration.

The stock market said in a special report that the May plunge was touched off largely by the investment public's selling of long term holdings.

By early November the popular stock averages had recouped all the ground lost in the precipitous drop. Investors moved back, this time interested in stocks which showed good earnings and paid good dividends.

RAIL STRIKE

A four-year-old dispute between the nation's major railroads and the unions over work rules landed in Kennedy's lap during the summer of 1963.

With neither side able to accede to the other and a nationwide transportation strike seemingly assured, the President sought legislation from Congress. There were protestations about such a course but Congress passed a bill providing for arbitration of the two principal issues—whether diesel locomotive firemen were necessary in freight and yard service and the size of train-service crews. It also barred a strike for 180 days.

The action was without Federal precedent. Never in the history of peacetime labor relations had Congress ever imposed arbitration in a labor-management dispute.

Kennedy followed the United States' efforts to conquer space closely.

The Russians, who had pioneered in space exploration, had sent two men into space, one on a 17 orbit mission, before Lt. Col. John H. Glenn boosted American morale by circling the earth three times on Feb. 2, 1962. He was followed that same year by Lt. Cmdr. Malcolm Scott Carpenter of the Navy who made another triple round-the-earth flight on May 5.

On Oct. 3 Navy Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra Jr. orbited the earth six times. But before he did so the Russians had sent two men into twin orbits, one for four days and the other for six.

COOPER ORBITS

The longest American space flight ended on May 16, 1963. It was a 22-orbit 34-hour flight by Air Force Maj. Gordon Cooper. Kennedy called it "a great achievement for our society and a great achievement for free men and women."

"Peace has a victory as well as war," he said, "and this was one of the victories for the human spirit today."

This achievement was countered by Russia the following month. The Russians separately launched a man and a woman, first of her sex, into space. The man circled the globe more than 81 times in 119 hours, the woman orbited 48 times in 71 hours.

Kennedy had expressed hope that the United States would land on the moon by 1970. He suggested that Russia and the United States make a joint expedition but Russia rejected the idea.

There were varied estimates on how the President fared with Congress, which was controlled by his own Democratic party. Administration leaders claimed that the 87th Congress which met in 1961 and 1962 adopted 70 per cent of the President's program. Senate Minority Leader Everett Driksen said, "Never in the history of the nation has the Congress spent so much time accomplishing so little as it did in the second session of the 87th Congress."

PROGRAM HIT

A coalition of conservative Democrats from the South and conservative Republicans from the North thwarted the President on some of his favorite measures.

The 87th Congress rejected his proposals for Federal aid to public elementary and secondary schools, health insurance for the aged under Social Security, a Cabinet Department of Urban Affairs, stiff controls on production of surplus farm crops and stand-by authority to initiate public works projects and reduce income taxes to combat economic recessions.

The Congress approved an increase in the minimum wage from $1 an hour to $1.25. It increased Social Security benefits and liberalized requirements for qualifying under the program.

It passed a Trade Expansion Act which gave the President an unprecedented grant of new tariff-cutting powers to use as a bargaining lever for mutual tariff concessions by the European Common Market and other non-Communist countries. It approved establishment of a private corporation to develop, own and operate a communications satellite.

New Federal powers to protect the public against hazardous drugs were granted. New postal rates, including a rise from 4 to 5 cents for first class letters, were adopted.

A $600 million aid program was adopted for Latin America and out of it grew the Alliance for Progress, a program to aid the undeveloped, poverty stricken countries to the south.

By executive order Kennedy established a Peace Corps to aid underdeveloped nations and Congress appropriated money for its existence.

Democrats continued in control of the 88th Congress which opened in January 1962. The 1962 off-year election increased Democrat representation in the Senate from 64 to 68, reducing the Republican minority from 36 seats to 32. There were 259 Democrats in the House against 176 Republicans in contrast to 261 Democrats and 175 Republicans in the 87th Congress.

Among the new Senators was the President's youngest brother, Edward M. (Teddy) Kennedy, who was elected in Massachusetts to the seat once occupied by the President. His appearance in the Senate meant that the three Kennedy brothers were in the Federal government.

Before the 88th Congress were two pieces of legislation which Kennedy considered "musts." They were the sweeping Civil Rights bill and a broad tax reduction program which the President said was needed as a spur to the economy.

After much wrangling and maneuvering, a Civil Rights bill was reported out of the House Judiciary Committee with bipartisan support. Prospects of House adoption appeared good, but there was opposition in the Senate and a matter of time that cast a shadow.

The tax education program also had critics who contended it should be coupled with a budget reduction. The House of Representatives adopted a bill which gave individuals and corporations tax relief in two-step program beginning in January 1964. Its supporters contended that less in revenue to the government would be offset partly by revenue-raising revisions and reforms in the tax structure.

JFK's Death Bitter Blow To Mixers

NEW YORK (AP)—To those working for a better deal for American Negroes, the death of President Kennedy today brought a particular blow.

They saw him as a staunch ally in the cause.

Some compared his loss to the assassination in 1865 of Abraham Lincoln, the "Great Emancipator" who brought an end to slavery.

Recalling that historic slaying, A. Philip Randolph, Negro president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and a leader in the civil rights struggle, called Kennedy, next to Lincoln, the nation's greatest president.

"The second emancipator of black people from the serfdom of racial segregation, has been struck down by an assassin's bullet," he said.

"Negroes face a challenge to rededicate their lives to complete the unfinished business of American democracy for which two Presidents have died."

Roy Wilkins, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People—NAACP — said "We have no doubt that the assassin was motivated by a hatred of the President's ideals."

His "consistent commitment and espousal of basic human rights for all earned the undying enmity of fanatics and loathsome bigots," Wilkins said.

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality—CORE—said, "We believe that this assassination was the result of the President's efforts to bring about a more democratic America.

"We hope that this nation will rededicate itself to those ideals of his. Our prayers go out to Lyndon Johnson in the difficult days ahead."

The National Urban League, also a Negro rights group, sent a message to President Johnson this hour of national tragedy."

The American Civil Liberties Union sent a telegram to Mrs. Kennedy, voicing sympathy and saying:

"The union had deep respect for the President and his dedication to the high national purpose which unities Americans . . . We hope that despite this great loss, the nation can move on with the task of fulfilling that purpose."

Late President Faced Nuclear War, Racial, Other Problems

(By the Associated Press)

John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 35th President of the United States, was the first American chief executive to face the possibility of nuclear war and to risk it with a show of force to protect American interests. But later he succeeded in achieving an accord with Russia limiting nuclear tests.

Domestically, he was confronted by a racial problem that epitomized a contemporary world issue - the relationship between the black and white races.

There were foreign problems old and new during his administration. Inherited from previous administrations was the Cold War with Soviet Russia.

Despite Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's determination to rid West Berlin of Allied occupation troops, Kennedy held American forces there. He kept American troops in Southeast Asia to thwart Communist penetration in that area. Through economic help he sought to aid Latin America, a target of propaganda from Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, avowed disciple of Khruschev. And he acted in similar fashion in Africa where newly emerged nations groped their way unsteadily toward stability, often with violence.

In Europe there was the problem of keeping the North Atlantic Treaty Organization intact—a problem enlarged by French President de Gaulle's announced intention not to take direction or protection from the United States.

At home, in addition to the integration crisis, Kennedy became embroiled with the steel industry over a price increase which he halted, faced a nationwide railroad strike which resulted in Congressional action, fought for a tax cut which he called necessary to spur the economy and to avoid a possible recession and watched avidly the United States race into space with the Russians.

The nuclear crisis broke in the waning months of his second year in office when he confronted Premier Khrushchev with a demand to remove Russian missiles set up in Cuba and pointing at the United States 90 miles away.

QUARANTINE

Kennedy order a naval quarantine on such offensive weapons being sent to the island nation, said ships carrying them would be turned back and called on Khrushchev to withdraw the weapons already there.

For five days the nation and the world waited for word from Khrushchev, sworn foe of the Free World. On Sunday, Oct. 28, 1962 came intense relief. Khrushchev announced he had ordered work stopped on missile bases, said the missiles would be crated and returned to Russia and promised that the United Nations would verify the dismantling.

The crisis involving Cuba was not Kennedy's first with that small Carribbean nation.

Soon after he was inaugurated Jan. 20, 1951 Cuban refugees with United States backing invaded their homeland in an attempt to wrest it from Castro. The invasion was a fiasco.

Castro's Russian-built military might crushed the invasion. Anticipated defections from Castro's forces failed to materialize. And the United States did not come to the invaders' aid militarily. U.S. prestige abroad plummeted.

While the invasion was in progress Khrushchev warned Kennedy to "call a halt to the aggression" or else Russia would give "all necessary assistance" in resisting the invasion. But the President replied:

"In the event of any military intervention by outside force, we will immediately honor our obligations under the inter-American system to protect this hemisphere against external aggression."

Later, in a speech, Kennedy warned Communist foes and non-Communist friends that the United States would act on its own against Cuba's Reds if United States security was threatened. This is what he did in October, 1962.

The nation's first inkling came Sunday, Oct. 21. There were reports of tension in Washington, but newsmen were unable to pin down the cause.

TENSION

On Monday it was announced Kennedy would address the nation at 7 p.m. on a matter of greatest urgency. Meanwhile, it was learned that Congressional leaders had been summoned back to the capital.

At the appointed hour a serious, stern President could be seen on the television screen. Without wasting words he outlined evidence of atomic missile sites in Cuba. He blamed Soviet Russia, which had been assuring the United States it was sending only defensive weapons to the island. Said Kennedy:

"This secret, swift and extraordinary build-up of Communist missiles in an area well known to have a special and historical relationship to the United States and the nations of the Western Hemisphere is a deliberately provocative and unjustified change in the status quo which cannot be accepted by this country, if our courage and our commitments are ever again to be trusted by either friend or foe."

He ordered a quarantine on all such offensive weapons for Cuba and said ships carrying them would be turned back.

He called on Khrushchev to withdraw weapons already there and cease preparation of

A week before Kennedy made his broadcast aerial surveillance had obtained evidence of missile sites ready and being prepared in Cuba. The public was not told there were days and nights of debate and action by the Kennedy administration until the blockade decision was reached.

DAYS TENSE

The days following the quarantine announcement were tense. Military forces were built up in the Southeast. The Organization of American States met the next day and unanimously adopted a resolution offered by Secretary of State Dean Rusk authorizing "the use of force individually or collectively" to enforce the blockade. With that legal backing, Kennedy issued the proclamation to become effective at 10 a.m. the next day. Twenty-five Russian ships wer reported en route to Cuba.

Meanwhile, United Nations Acting Secretary General U Thant asked both Kennedy and Khrushchev to suspend both the arms blockade and arms shipment for two or three weeks pending negotiations. Khruschev accepted. Washington agreed to cooperate to avoid a confrontation.

Twenty hours after the proclamation was issued a Russian ship carrying oil was intercepted. It was allowed to proceed.

Tension mounted. The Kremlin stalled. On Friday, Oct. 26, the State Department called attention to the President's speech in which he said if missile site preparation continued "further action will be justified."

At 9 p. m. that night a letter arrived from Khrushchev. Although not explicitly stated, it contained an offer to withdraw the offensive weapons under U. N. supervision in return for a guarantee the United States would not invade Cuba. The following day—Saturday—a second note from Russia offered to trade Cuba bases for U. S. bases in Turkey.

The United States, parrying the Turkey bid, advised Khruschev that if he was offering to remove offensive weapons for an end to the blockade and a U. S. promise not to invade Cuba, it was a deal. Khruschev's fateful message came the next day. He agreed.

But the crisis still was unsolved. Castro, thrust in the background during the tension-filled days, announced he would not permit U. N. on-the-spot inspection. A visit from U Thant failed to budge him. Russian First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan flew to Cuba but Castro remained adamant.

REMOVES MISSILES

Russia announced 42 medium-range missiles had been dismantled and shipped home. The U.S. Navy verified it by inspecting freighters en route from Cuba to Russia.

But the United States insisted 30 or more IL-28 jet bombers also must go and continued to demand verification. Meanwhile aerial surveillance continued.

Although the crisis eased, Cuba remained a problem. Cuban exiles in the United States worked incessantly for the release of loved ones captured during the ill-fated invasion of 1961. An effort to ransom the prisoners failed because of Castro's exorbitant demands.

Finally, through private negotiations conducted with Castro by James B. Donovan, a New York lawyer skilled in undercover negotiations, another ransom of privately donated drugs and baby food was agreed upon and 1,113 imprisoned Cubans were flown to Miami just before Christmas 1962.

Kennedy greeted the returned men in a ceremony in the Orange Bowl. Accepting the invasion flag, which the men brought back from prison, the President declared: "I can assure you that this flag will be returned to this brigade in a free Cuba."

Early in 1963 administration critics, spearheaded by U.S. Senator Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.), charged that Russian troops still were maintaining and guarding medium-range missile sites they had previously constructed in Cuba.

The Defense Department, in reply, publicly exhibited aerial photographs purportedly showing how the Russians had destroyed their intermediate and medium-range sites.

Kennedy, at a news conference, acknowledged "there still is a body of Soviet military equipment and technicians" in Cuba, but he disclosed the United States and Russia were discussing the possibilities of withdrawal. Later the Kremlin missile sites. If this were not done, he said, "further action" would be taken. Aerial surveillance would continue, he added.

advised it was withdrawing more of its troops from the island.

With the Cuban crisis still simmering, West Germany Chancellor Konrad Adenauer flew to Washington to confer with Kennedy on the Berlin problem. It was the aged Adenauer's third visit to the young president and during each the Berlin issue dominated the discussions.

The divided city of West and East Berlin had been a thorn since the end of World War II. Khrushchev called West Berlin, showplace of the Free World surrounded by Communism, a bone that must come out of the Russian throat. He threatened to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany and turn over access to West Berlin to the East German Communist government. The East Germans whom the Western powers did not recognize, said the city should be theirs.

Khrushchev stepped up his offensive by questioning the inviolability of Western air access to Berlin. The West insisted on its right to unrestricted use of the air corridors between West Germany and West Berlin.

The Soviets charged the United States with airlifting saboteurs and spies into West Berlin for action against East Germany and other Soviet bloc nations. In replying to this charge, the White House said in a statement:

"The United States must serve a solemn warning to the Soviet Union that any interference by the Soviet government or its East German regime with free access to West Berlin would be an aggressive act for the consequences of which the Soviet government would bear full responsibility."

HOLD FAST

Throughout the spring and summer of 1962 Kennedy issued warnings to Khrushchev that the Western Allies intended to remain in West Berlin. He repeatedly asserted that the United States would stand by its pledge to defend West Berlin.

In June of 1963 he remphasized this in a visit to West Germany, where he was greeted enthusiastically.

To a West Berlin throng he described himself as "a Berliner," asserting that "all free men, wherever they may live, are citizens of Berlin."

West Berlin was not Kennedy's only worry. The United States was involved with the Communists in such far off places as Laos and South Viet Nam in Southeast Asia.

In May of 1962 Kennedy dispatched U. S. naval, air and land forces to the Thailand-Laos border because of a pro-Communist seizure of control of most of northern Laos. The maneuver was intended to demonstrate United States commitment in Thailand's defense and to place more troops closer to landlocked Laos.

Two months later a treaty establishing the neutrality of Laos was signed in Geneva by a 14-nation conference. The treaty carried a protocol providing for withdrawal of foreign troops.

Kennedy hailed the accord as a "significant milestone in our efforts to maintain and further world peace." He said, "It is a heartening indication that difficult and at times seemingly insoluble international problems can in fact be solved by patient diplomacy."

Khrushchev, sounding a similar theme, suggested that other "unsettled international problems, however complicated," could be resolved in the same spirit.

As time went on, however, there were indications that Laos' coalition government of neutralist, right-wing and left-wing was frail and insecure. There really was no peace.

SOUTH VIET NAM

Fighting raged in South Viet Nam where the Communist Viet Cong from the North fought to overrun the country and place it in Communist hands. U. S. military advisers tried to help the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem but they spoke of the Viet Nam involvement with the infiltrated Communist guerrillas in terms of years and millions of dollars.

The situation became further complicated in 1963 by a political-religious outbreak involving Buddhists, a majority in the country, and the Roman Catholic Diem family. The Buddhists, charging repressions, demonstrated. The Diem government raided pagodas and jailed Buddhists. Some Buddhists burned themselves to death publicly in protest.

The United States blamed Ngo Dinh Nhu, the President's brother, who was considered the second most powerful, if not the most powerful, man in the country.

Through persuasion and the withdrawal of certain economic aid, it sought to persuade Diem to rid himself of his brother. The Diem government resisted, denied that it persecuted the Buddhists and counter-charged the Buddhists with aiding the Communist cause through their demands.

The drama came to a climax Nov. 1, 1963. Vietnamese military leaders captured key points in Saigon and attacked the Presidential palace. Soon after dawn Nov. 2 the palace fell. Diem and his brother were dead. Some said the brothers committed suicide. Others said they were assassinated. The military installed a civilian as Premier of a caretaker government.

The United States, which considered the country vital to the Western defense position in Southeast Asia and had invested $2.5 billion in aid and 16,500 troops, watched closely.

NUCLEAR BAN

In an assessment of his first year in office Kennedy told a news conference that failure to reach agreement with the Soviet Union on a nuclear test ban had been his greatest disappointment. He achieved a limited test ban in 1963, his third year in the White House.

Nuclear testing had been a constant problem. In September 1961 Russian junked a three-year moratorium in atomic weapons, attributing its decision to pressure from "imperialistic countries."

Kennedy called the decision "utter disregard of the desire of mankind for a decrease in the arms race."

Russia proceeded with the tests in Central Asia between September and November. Khrushchev said one blast in the series was on the plus side of 50 megatons (a 50-megaton blast is equivalent to 50 million tons of TNT).

This was in defiance of world-wide appeals not to test such a bomb because atomic explosions in the atmosphere cause radioactive fallout — small poisonous particles which can harm life if received in large doses.

The Soviet action caused a wave of angry protest and alarm over the danger to humanity that it created. The White House denounced it as a device to incite "fright and panic."

A U.S. spokesman said the country had the capacity and know how to develop a 50-megaton bomb but had concluded it was of questionable military value. He said Khrushchev's primary purpose was to create terror.

After Russia's renewal of nuclear detonations, Kennedy announced resumption of underground and laboratory tests by the United States. Such tests do not create the hazard of fallout.

"We have no other choice in fulfillment of the responsibilities of the United States to its own citizens and to the security of other free nations," he said.

Meanwhile, Russia announced it would hold more tests if the United States continued underground blasts or started atmospheric explosions.

The United States resumed atmospheric tests in April 1962 but only after Russia rejected a treaty prohibiting all tests. Russia promptly resumed tests in mid-summer and the United States followed with more tests in the autumn.

TREATY REACHED

Finally in June 1963 Kennedy proposed a "strategy of peace" to lead the United States and the Soviet Union out of the "vicious and dangerous cycle" of the cold war. As a first step, he said, high ranking representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia would meet in Moscow in a renewed effort to agree on a nuclear test ban. As a demonstration of its good faith, he said the United States would refrain from atmospheric tests so long as others did likewise.

A treaty banning nuclear weapons tests in space, in the atmosphere and under water was initialed in Moscow in September. The three nations formally accepted it and other nations followed suit.

Kennedy said the treaty "reflects no concessions either to or by the Soviet Union. It reflects our common recognition of the dangers in further testing."

The treaty caused Kennedy to comment on the "pause in the cold war" in a speech before the United Nations in September.

A further thaw appeared in October when Kennedy approved the sale of some four million tons of wheat to Russia and other Soviet bloc nations which had been hit by drought.

Past American policy had discouraged US.-Soviet trade but Kennedy saw such benefits in the deal as improvement of the balance of payments, increase in gold supplies, strengthening of the farm economy and a reduction in the U.S. wheat surplus.

"This transaction advertises to the world as nothing else could the success of free American agriculture," he said.

RACIAL STRIFE

At home Kennedy found himself deep in the Civil Rights problem from the very start of his administration.

In the spring of 1961, his first year in office, Negro and white groups, calling themselves Freedom Riders, sought to break down bus station racial barriers and ran into violence in Alabama. There were incidents at Anniston, Birmingham and Montgomery, among others. The worst was at Montgomery.

At least 20 persons were beaten with fists and clubs in a bloody riot there. The rioting around the Greyhound bus station continued for nearly two hours before the white mob — numbering close to 1,000 at times — was broken up with tear gas by state and city police.

President Kennedy's brother, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, ordered several hundred U.S. marshals to Montgomery. The Guardsmen with fixed bayonets scattered a howling mob that tried to overwhelm Federal marshals protecting a Negro church mass meeting.

The Governor particularly blamed the marshals for causing the outbreak at the church. He said he still admired the Kennedy administration but added that "the President and the U.S. Attorney General made a mistake in this matter."

Attorney General Kennedy declared, however, there would have been "an extremely bloody and costly riot" in Montgomery but for the presence of the marshals.

Far worse rioting— Two persons were killed—occured Sept. 30, 1962, when Negro James H. Meredith sought to register at the all-white University of Mississippi in Oxford. He finally registered with the aid of U.S. marshals and Federal troops but not before an awful nightmare of tear gas and buckshot, rifle bullets and flying bricks, screaming hordes of people gone wild and blood and death.

It was the biggest clash of state versus Federal power since the Civil War. The nation and the world watched tensely as Mississippi's Governor Ross Barnett sought to defy the Federal government which was determined to uphold Federal court orders admitting Meredith to the university.

Meredith's struggle to enter Ole Miss began 16 months earlier. His application was rejected. The case moved back and forth between state and Federal courts. Meredith contended he had been refused because of his race. A Federal Court of Appeals upheld his contention.

Meredith made four attempts to register at the university. On first try on the campus Barnett blocked him and invoked interposition — putting himself and the state's police powers between orders of the Federal court and the people of the state.

The governor blocked a second try and Lt. Gov. Paul B. Johnson thwarted a third. The Justice Department abandoned a fourth attempt when Federal marshals accompanying Meredith were called back because of a possibility of violence and bloodshed.

RIOT ON CAMPUS

When marshals finally escorted Meredith to an apartment on the campus on Sunday, Sept. 30, an unruly mob of 2,500 students, townspeople and out-of-towners opened up with a barrage of rifle bullets, rocks, bottles and acid. The marshals fought back with tear gas. Meanwhile, Kennedy, who had made a fruitless appeal for order, dispatched federalized Mississippi National Guardsmen and troops to the college town.

Meredith registered the next day and began classes under the protection of marshals. They remained with him until he graduated in August 1963.

Barnett and Johnson both were cited for contempt of court for defying the court orders to admit Meredith. They faced possible jail sentences and fines.

Racial strife boiled anew in the spring and summer of 1963, spreading to other Southern states and some northern cities, as Negroes demonstrated for equal rights. Birmingham, Ala., took the spotlight when Negro mass demonstrations in April and May were countered by fire hoses and police dogs.

More than 2,400 Negroes and whites were jailed and two Negro residences were bombed at the heighth of the fury. Federal troops were sent to bases near Birmingham for possible use. The President read a statement asserting the government would do all it could "to preserve order, to protect the lives of its citizens and to uphold the law of the land." He expressed dismay "at the efforts of those who would replace conciliation and good will with violence and hate."

The situation simmered as progress was sought through biracial talks. But the peace was shattered on Sept. 17 when a bomb exploded in the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church during a Sunday School session. Four Negro girls were killed and 23 other persons were injured. The bombing climaxed the first week of token integration of three white schools.

In the midst of the Birmingham trouble, the Kennedy administration also tangled with Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace over the admission of two Negro students to the University of Alabama. Although Wallace made good a threat to stand on the school house steps and forbid the students entrance, he bowed to federalized Alabama National Guardsmen and the students entered the university.

LEGISLATION

The unrest spurred the President to send a special message to Congress in June asking it to help end "rancor, violence, disunity and national shame" by passing what was described as the most sweeping civil rights bill since Reconstruction days.

The bill brimmed with weapons against racial discrimination in stores, hotels and other public places, in schools, in jobs and polling booths. The President called its enactment "imperative."

He chided Congress for not enacting earlier proposals and said, "The result of continued federal legislative inaction will be continued, if not increased, racial strife." At the same time he appealed to Negroes to rein their demonstrations so Congress can "freely work its will."

In a move to impress Congress, Negro leaders called for a "March on Washington." On Aug. 28 more than 200,000 Negroes and whites arrived in the capital by plane, train, bus, car and on foot. Gathering at the Washington Monument, they marched down Constitution Ave. to the Lincoln Memorial, chanting and singing. Massed before the statue of the Civil War President, they shouted support of their leaders demands for "jobs and freedom." Kennedy asserted "the cause of 20 million Negroes has been advanced" by the assembly. But Congress did not hurry enactment of the Civil Rights bill.

Kennedy had trouble, too, with industry.

The nation's business community gasped in April 1962 when he cracked down on United States Steel for announcing a $6 a ton price increase after signing a wage agreement with the United Steelworkers Union.

The administration had been following the negotiations for a contract with much interest. It did not want one which would include a large wage increase in the belief such an agreement would force a price increase and be an inflationary threat to the country's economic health.

A modest contract was reached and the then Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg hailed it as a contribution toward price stability.

When Roger M. Blough, president of U.S. Steel, personally advised Kennedy of the price increase, Blough touched off 72 hours of governmental activity which he and his colleagues could not have expected.

During that period four antitrust investigations of the steel industry were conceived by government officials, a bill to roll back the price increase was seriously considered, legislation to impose price and wage controls on the industry was discussed, the FBI questioned newspapermen in the dawn and the Defense Department — biggest buyer of steel in the nation—began to divert purchases away from United States Steel.

Some other steel companies followed the lead of U.S. Steel. Kennedy held a news conference.

In a cold fury—aides said he felt he had been double-crossed by the industry — Kennedy denounced the increase as "wholly unjustifiable and irresponsible defiance of the public interest." He said the steel men had shown "utter contempt for their fellow citizens."

Blough defended his company's action. Proper pricing, he said was involved in keeping productive facilities up-to-date and competitive in the "race among nations."

PRICE RISE

U.S. Steel finally backed down after several major companies said they would hold the price line and Bethlehem Steel second largest steel company, rescinded the price rise it announced following the U.S. Steel move.

Blough and Kennedy met at the White House again. The meeting was called "useful and cordial." The President told a news conference "this administration harbors no ill will against any individual, any industry, corporation or segment of the American economy."

Despite this assurance, business remained upset by what its leaders called government interference in its operations. Kennedy sought to dispel this in a speech before the United States Chamber of Commerce.

But after the speech some businessmen complained that the Government showed a "naked display of power" in its counteraction against U.S. Steel. Steel.

The administration quietly accepted selected price increases in the steel industry in April 1963 although reiterating its opposition to any across-the-board rises. "I opposed such an increase last year, I oppose it now," Kennedy said.

Some quarters called a break in the stock market May 28, 1962 a reflection of lack of confidence on the part of business. Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon denied it. He said the break showed "a weakening confidence in the stock market" —that is, in the high prices that prevailed before the break.

Kennedy noted the talk in a commencement address at Yale University. He said it was false to ascribe "any and all unfavorable turns of the speculative wheel" to lack of confidence in his administration.

The stock market said in a special report that the May plunge was touched off largely by the investment public's selling of long term holdings.

By early November the popular stock averages had recouped all the ground lost in the precipitous drop. Investors moved back, this time interested in stocks which showed good earnings and paid good dividends.

RAIL STRIKE

A four-year-old dispute between the nation's major railroads and the unions over work rules landed in Kennedy's lap during the summer of 1963.

With neither side able to accede to the other and a nationwide transportation strike seemingly assured, the President sought legislation from Congress. There were protestations about such a course but Congress passed a bill providing for arbitration of the two principal issues—whether diesel locomotive firemen were necessary in freight and yard service and the size of train-service crews. It also barred a strike for 180 days.

The action was without Federal precedent. Never in the history of peacetime labor relations had Congress ever imposed arbitration in a labor-management dispute.

Kennedy followed the United States' efforts to conquer space closely.

The Russians, who had pioneered in space exploration, had sent two men into space, one on a 17 orbit mission, before Lt. Col. John H. Glenn boosted American morale by circling the earth three times on Feb. 2, 1962. He was followed that same year by Lt. Cmdr. Malcolm Scott Carpenter of the Navy who made another triple round-the-earth flight on May 5.

On Oct. 3 Navy Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra Jr. orbited the earth six times. But before he did so the Russians had sent two men into twin orbits, one for four days and the other for six.

COOPER ORBITS

The longest American space flight ended on May 16, 1963. It was a 22-orbit 34-hour flight by Air Force Maj. Gordon Cooper. Kennedy called it "a great achievement for our society and a great achievement for free men and women."

"Peace has a victory as well as war," he said, "and this was one of the victories for the human spirit today."

This achievement was countered by Russia the following month. The Russians separately launched a man and a woman, first of her sex, into space. The man circled the globe more than 81 times in 119 hours, the woman orbited 48 times in 71 hours.

Kennedy had expressed hope that the United States would land on the moon by 1970. He suggested that Russia and the United States make a joint expedition but Russia rejected the idea.

There were varied estimates on how the President fared with Congress, which was controlled by his own Democratic party. Administration leaders claimed that the 87th Congress which met in 1961 and 1962 adopted 70 per cent of the President's program. Senate Minority Leader Everett Driksen said, "Never in the history of the nation has the Congress spent so much time accomplishing so little as it did in the second session of the 87th Congress."

PROGRAM HIT

A coalition of conservative Democrats from the South and conservative Republicans from the North thwarted the President on some of his favorite measures.

The 87th Congress rejected his proposals for Federal aid to public elementary and secondary schools, health insurance for the aged under Social Security, a Cabinet Department of Urban Affairs, stiff controls on production of surplus farm crops and stand-by authority to initiate public works projects and reduce income taxes to combat economic recessions.

The Congress approved an increase in the minimum wage from $1 an hour to $1.25. It increased Social Security benefits and liberalized requirements for qualifying under the program.

It passed a Trade Expansion Act which gave the President an unprecedented grant of new tariff-cutting powers to use as a bargaining lever for mutual tariff concessions by the European Common Market and other non-Communist countries. It approved establishment of a private corporation to develop, own and operate a communications satellite.

New Federal powers to protect the public against hazardous drugs were granted. New postal rates, including a rise from 4 to 5 cents for first class letters, were adopted.

A $600 million aid program was adopted for Latin America and out of it grew the Alliance for Progress, a program to aid the undeveloped, poverty stricken countries to the south.

By executive order Kennedy established a Peace Corps to aid underdeveloped nations and Congress appropriated money for its existence.

Democrats continued in control of the 88th Congress which opened in January 1962. The 1962 off-year election increased Democrat representation in the Senate from 64 to 68, reducing the Republican minority from 36 seats to 32. There were 259 Democrats in the House against 176 Republicans in contrast to 261 Democrats and 175 Republicans in the 87th Congress.

Among the new Senators was the President's youngest brother, Edward M. (Teddy) Kennedy, who was elected in Massachusetts to the seat once occupied by the President. His appearance in the Senate meant that the three Kennedy brothers were in the Federal government.

Before the 88th Congress were two pieces of legislation which Kennedy considered "musts." They were the sweeping Civil Rights bill and a broad tax reduction program which the President said was needed as a spur to the economy.

After much wrangling and maneuvering, a Civil Rights bill was reported out of the House Judiciary Committee with bipartisan support. Prospects of House adoption appeared good, but there was opposition in the Senate and a matter of time that cast a shadow.

The tax education program also had critics who contended it should be coupled with a budget reduction. The House of Representatives adopted a bill which gave individuals and corporations tax relief in two-step program beginning in January 1964. Its supporters contended that less in revenue to the government would be offset partly by revenue-raising revisions and reforms in the tax structure.

JFK's Death Bitter Blow To Mixers

NEW YORK (AP)—To those working for a better deal for American Negroes, the death of President Kennedy today brought a particular blow.

They saw him as a staunch ally in the cause.

Some compared his loss to the assassination in 1865 of Abraham Lincoln, the "Great Emancipator" who brought an end to slavery.

Recalling that historic slaying, A. Philip Randolph, Negro president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and a leader in the civil rights struggle, called Kennedy, next to Lincoln, the nation's greatest president.

"The second emancipator of black people from the serfdom of racial segregation, has been struck down by an assassin's bullet," he said.

"Negroes face a challenge to rededicate their lives to complete the unfinished business of American democracy for which two Presidents have died."

Roy Wilkins, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People—NAACP — said "We have no doubt that the assassin was motivated by a hatred of the President's ideals."

His "consistent commitment and espousal of basic human rights for all earned the undying enmity of fanatics and loathsome bigots," Wilkins said.

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality—CORE—said, "We believe that this assassination was the result of the President's efforts to bring about a more democratic America.

"We hope that this nation will rededicate itself to those ideals of his. Our prayers go out to Lyndon Johnson in the difficult days ahead."

The National Urban League, also a Negro rights group, sent a message to President Johnson this hour of national tragedy."

The American Civil Liberties Union sent a telegram to Mrs. Kennedy, voicing sympathy and saying:

"The union had deep respect for the President and his dedication to the high national purpose which unities Americans . . . We hope that despite this great loss, the nation can move on with the task of fulfilling that purpose."

Northeast Tribe Set To Invade Tech's Vicious Bulldog Kennel

Find The Cowboys

Ever pick up the AP or UPI small college poll and hunt for McNeese State? It's a little easier now, because the Cowboys have finally moved into the bottom rung of the top ten where the type is a little bigger. But not too long ago you had to strain your eyes trying to pick them out down in the little type.

Kind of makes you wonder what brand of football they play down here in Louisiana, until you remember that McNeese got a healthy portion of its squad from Louisiana State and you recall the misery dealt out to seven straight opponents.

Mississippi State beat Howard College 40-0 and McNeese won 28-0, with all the scoring in the first half. Ole Miss trounced Tampa 41-0 and McNeese won 37-12.

Using comparative scores is tricky business at best and no one is saying McNeese is as good as either State or Ole Miss. But — there is no indication that any of the three teams went all out in compiling somewhat comparable scores against mutual opponents.

And this makes you wonder again. If the Cowboys rank eighth among the nation's small college, why aren't Northern Illinois, Whittenberg, St. John's of Minnesota and South Dakota State knocking off Big Ten teams?

The sad truth is that the teams in these ridiculous little polls aren't rated by strength at all. Remember last year when Southeastern Louisiana College went into November undefeated and nationally ranked? The Lions lost three of their last four games. Would you compare that team with McNeese this year in any way shape or form, except that the players on both squads wore helmets?

The teams are rated first by record (regardless of competition) and second on past reputation (it's almost impossible to dislodge a team the year after a good season).

This week South Dakota State is the seventh ranked small college team in the Associated Press poll. On the other hand, Dunkel's Index, a not infallible system which evaluates a team's performance against the strength of its oppostion, puts South Dakota State 31st in the nation.

Northern Illinois is second by AP, 11th in Dunkel, Wittenberg third and 12th respectively, St. John's of Minnesota sixth and 13th. McNeese, however, is third in Dunkel's and Abilene Christian fourth.

What will probably happen is that McNeese, while not receiving the recognition it deserves this year, will lose one or two early season games next year while still ranked highly in the polls.

The Pollsters aren't prejudiced against Southern schools and they have done okay with some of their selections (teams like Delaware and Massachusetts).

But the polls would be better off making some attempt to regard the calibre of a team's opposition and no just its record.

The Predictions

Predicting was never more of a farce for us than last week when only nine games were picked correctly against seven wrong calls and one tie. This dropped the season average to .707.

It's absurd to go on but . . .

Louisiana Tech 21, Northeast 7

A surprising Northeast team, which has a much better ground attack than any club should with as young a line (138 yards rushing against McNeese for example), may turn in another of it's traditionally superb efforts. This is Northeast's "Ole Miss game" every year.

It will be surprising if the Bulldogs repeat their performance against Southern Mississippi, the only school Tech has ever been able to "get up" for consistently.

Northeast still faces a tremendous challenge, however.

The Canines are developing into one of the better small college football teams (this was apparent before the Tennessee Tech, Southeastern or Southern Mississippi games) and already are considerably stronger than in 1962. While the air arm has drawn most of the praise again it is possible Tech could come out okay even if rain or the hard rush thwarts passer Billy Laird.

Louisiana State 28, Tulane 7

A win or tie: — that was the Bengal's fatal question one week ago when LSU gambled on a two-point conversion and lost 7-6.

Chances are the Tigers won't face with the same decision this week. Nor will quarterback Billy Ezell need to become Y. A. Tittle for "sixty beautiful seconds" as Buddy Diliberto put it in the Times-Picayune, and pass the Tigers downfield in the wanning seconds.

Of course you will never convince most LSU fans that Mississippi State won in the first place.

Don Schwab, commenting on the touchdown officials ruled he didn't make. "I sure thought I was over on that one, it was real close. I just wish I could have been the official on that play."

Then there was Coach Charles McClendon on the pass interception that set up State's winning touchdown. "It's mighty hard to run a pass pattern when you are flat on your back."

Athletic Director Jim Corbett had his comment. "You talk about interference. The way I saw it, that was the most flagrant case of it, and with two officials standing right there next to Laburzzo (Joe)."

On the play, State's Sonny Fisher intercepted a pass from Ezell intended for Labruzzo.

For the Tigers, the game started the way it ended. LSU won the toss and the referee asked captain Willis Langley which goal he wanted to defend, not whether he wanted to receive or defend a particular goal. Now what kind of choice is that?

Help or no help, though, it is impossible to take anything away from a Mississippi State team which, in the last four weeks, lost to Memphis State 17-10, to Alabama 20-19, then defeated Auburn 13-10 before edging the Tigers 7-6.

Nicholls Plays 2nd Cage Tilt With Arkansas

THIBODAUX (Special) — Nicholls closes out its first home stand of the fledgling basketball season tonight in the second of a two game set with Arkansas College.

Nicholls opened the 63 - 64 campaign last Wednesday, suffering a shaky second half in losing 82-70 to potent Stephen F. Austin. The game was tied 31-31 at half time.

Last night (Friday), the Colonels took on Arkansas College in the first tilt of the short series which concludes tonight.

Forward Gene Simmons, the Colonels' leading scorer last season, was top dog in the scoring column for the Lafourche based Rebs against S. F. Austin, sinking 9 field goals and 10 of 11 free throws for 28 points.

Guard Leonard Stulce contributed 15 points on five fielders and a like number of charity tosses while forward Jerry Sanders was the third Colonel in double digits with 11 points on five two pointers and a free shot.

Jim Squires, a top notch rebounder, and ball handler Paul Vaccaro will join Simmons, Stulce and Sanders on the Nicholls starting unit, Squires at center and Vaccaro at guard. Squires had 8 points in the opener and Vaccaro 2.

DEATH IS SEVERE LOSS

John F. Kennedy Was Best Friend Of American Sports

BOSTON (AP) — Athletics as well as the political world suffered a severe loss in the death of President John F. Kennedy. The one - time scrub football player and ardent fan was considered one of the best friends American sports ever had.

The man who munched a hot dog in the Orange Bowl and opened three American League baseball seasons with the traditional first pitch emphasized participation to the spectator public.

President Kennedy did not merely stress physical well-being with touch football games on the White House lawn and sailing and swimming off-shore near his Hyannis Port, mass. summer home.

He also created a Council on Youth Fitness under the supervision of Oklahoma's football coach and athletic director, Bud Wilkinson. The program was encouraged throughout all primary public schools in the country.

And when the bitter power struggle between the Amateur Athletic Union and National Collegiate Athletic Association over control of amateur athletics threatened the U.S. Olympic program earlier this year, the vigorous young President stepped in strongly.

He appointed Gen. Douglas MacArthur the final-say arbitrator in the dispute and the five-star general hammered out a truce.

For outstanding service to football President Kennedy received a gold medal award from the National Football Foundation. He had surrounded himself with football men, feeling they were rounded citizens best trained to meet today's problems.

Byron (Whizzer) White, the famed Colorado halfback of the late 1930s became a Supreme Court justice. There were football men among his advisors, including former Harvard captain Kenneth O'Donnell, and when racial strife broke out in Birmingham, Ala. one of Kennedy's choices as a Federal mediator was Earl (Red) Blaik, former Army and Dartmouth football coach.

Although his younger brothers gained more football prominence at Harvard, President Kennedy was an end on the freshman and junior varsity squads and a swimmer. U. S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy and Sen. Ted Kennedy were Harvard varsity football players.

A freshman teammate of the then future President recalled he "was a tall, rangy end and he was pretty good though he never made a varsity letter."

President Kennedy called on his early swimming training during the war when the PT boat he skippered was sliced in two by a Japanese destroyer in the South Pacific. He managed to tow a crewman from the wreck to shore, a distance of three miles in five hours. Later, he spent a week swimming from island to island seeking aid.

Kennedy attended the last three Army - Navy games, the first as President-elect. In one he departed from planned procedure by walking to the near sideline for the toss of the coin by the team captains rather than have them come to the presidential box.

Two years ago the man of vigor shed his coat and sat in shirtsleeves at the Army-Navy game when the temperature in Philadelphia soared to 60.

President Kennedy loved to mingle in crowds with a minimum of fanfare. His last football game was Oct. 19 on the campus of his alma mater when he entered Harvard Stadium virtually unannounced two plays after the kickoff of the Columbia game. Fans got their first notion of his presence when the Harvard band suddenly struck up "Hail to the Chief."

A subject of gentle ribs from the Crimson band, President Kennedy heard the musicians play "Hit the Road, Jack" at halftime. As he rose to leave for a speaking engagement he stopped and took time to shake hands with and beam at an excited woman spectator.

While his motorcade sped back towards his hotel the President made an unscheduled stop to get a malted milk. One man sitting near the spot where Kennedy had been refused to believe the Chief Executive had been there.

A PAUSE FOR DEATH

Major Events Come To Halt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The traditional football game between Harvard, alma mater of President Kennedy, and Yale was called off Friday as news of his assassination swept a horrified nation.

Harvard and Yale were to have played the 80th game in the most historic and hallowed of all the nation's traditional football series in New Haven, Conn. Saturday.

A spokesman for Harvard, where Kennedy once competed as a member of the swimming team, said the game was cancelled and added, "It probably will not be rescheduled."

A joint announcement at Yale said only that it would "not take place this weekend."

A reliable source later said that the game probably will be rescheduled for Nov. 30.

The game was one of hundreds of athletic events scheduled this weekend either postponed or cancelled.

Major Eastern race tracks shut down immediately on the announcement of the President's death. The National Basketball Association postponed its entire four-game Friday slate, as did the American Hockey League. A Friday night fight between Allen Thomas of Chicago, and Johnny Persol of New York, scheduled for national television coverage from Madison Square Garden, was cancelled.

Dozens of major college football games scheduled Saturday were called off .including the entire Big Six schedule on the West Coast, which could have determined the host team in the Rose Bowl. The three-game slate was rescheduled for Dec.7.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association, through executive secretary Walter Byers, left it to the colleges involved as to whether to continue with their games, but asked that if the games are played they include "an appropriate, dignified opening ceremony and whatever other memorial tribute you might think appropriate at halftime."

The Illinois-Michigan State game, which will determine the Big Ten representative in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, will go on as scheduled.

So will the Oklahoma-Nebraska game, scheduled in Lincoln, Neb. The winner all but clinches the Big Eight spot in the Orange Bowl.

Three Southwest Conference games also were to proceed as scheduled.

Generally, it appeared that most professional athletics scheduled Friday had been postponed or cancelled, but that the schedule would be resumed Saturday. The colleges were divided, though most of the Saturday activities in the East were called off.

The Princeton - Dartmouth game, which could decide the Ivy League title, was postponed for one week. So was the Duke-North Carolina game, with each team shooting for a chance to gain a share of the Atlantic Coast Conference lead.

Arizona, which has a chance to take the Western Athletic Conference title, will play its game with New Mexico as scheduled, and Auburn, ranked ninth nationally, also will play its Saturday game with Florida State.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York announced that all racing in the state, both flat and harness, will be held up until after the President's funeral. Narragansett Park in Rhode Island and Pimlico in Maryland planned to resume racing Saturday.

Officials of the National and American Hockey Leagues and the National Basketball Association said their schedules would be resumed Saturday.

The third round of the Cajun Golf Classic in Lafayette, La. was postponed from Saturday and the final 36 holes will be played Sunday.

At West Point, N.Y., an Army spokesman said a decision has not yet been reached whether to play or cancel the traditional Army - Navy football game, scheduled Nov. 30 in Philadelphia.

"It's a matter of coordination between the two institutions and the Army, Navy and Defense Department in Washington," he said.

Ex-Boxing King Predicts Heavy Financial Gains

MANCHESTER (AP)—Rocky Marciano predicted Friday that television relay satellites will put top-class boxers in the money as never before.

"Boxing has been, financially, very kind to me," the former world heavyweight champion said as he flew into this English city from New York.

"But with satellite relay stations soon available to bring title fights to every country's television screens, there will be more money in the fight game than in almost any other business."

Marciano came here to watch his protege, 23-year-old Mike Puserati of Brockton, Mass., fight Britain's Terry Downes next Monday.

Marciano said that heavyweights do more talking now but fight less.

"Joe Louis limited himself to 'yep' and 'nope,'" he said. "Now Cassius Clay even has taken to writing poetry.

"Clay is a good man for boxing. He has been clever enough to get everyone whipped up and hating him so much that his fight with Sonny Liston is guaranteed to be a fabulous success."

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) —Three physicians examined Nigerian middleweight Dick Tiger Friday and said he was in "superb condition."

Indians Smacking For Third Place

Northeast State and Louisiana Tech clash in their season finale in Ruston Saturday night with Northeast aiming for its fourth straight victory and a share of third place in the Gulf States Conference.

The game will begin at 8 p.m. in Tech Stadium.

Tech can claim third place all to itself with a victory. A Northeast triumph would leave the teams tied with 2-3 conference record.

Louisiana Tech has a season record of 5-3 and Northeast is 4-5. The two clubs have met five common opponents, the other four GSC school and Arlington. Tech lost to McNeese (27-6) and Southeastern (15-7) and beat Southwestern (45-0), Northwestern (27-13) and Arlington (34-14). Northeast lost to McNeese (20-8), Southeastern (12-7) and Northwestern (27-19) and beat Arlington (21-12) and Southwestern (7-6).

In other games, Tech has beaten Louisiana College and Southern Mississippi and lost to Tennessee Tech. Northeast has beaten McMurry and Delta State and lost to Chattanooga and Howard.

Before the season, the game shaped up as a battle between Tech's passing attack and Northeast's running game. Both teams, however, have more balanced offenses than they did last fall when Northeast beat Tech 13-6. However, Tech's passing, with star sophomore Billy Laird on the throwing end, is still the Ruston's team top weapon and Northeast still banks heavily on a capable set of runners such as Willie Ragan, Ken Newton, Ronnie Myrick, Ronnie Graham, Morris Douglas and R. F. Wilson.

Both teams will have outstanding players sidelined with injuries. Tech end Charles Bourgeois is out along with Indian halfback Alton Thomas. Newton missed Northeast's game with Delta last week but is expected to play Saturday along with Ragan, who did no running against Delta.

The two teams go into the game following probably their best performances of the year last week, Tech upsetting Southern, the nation's No. 2 team in total defense, and Northeast routing Delta, 29-7. The Northeast victory followed consecutive decisions over Arlington and Southwestern.

Tech leads by a wide margin in the 10-year series with Northeast, eight victories to two. Northeast's triumphs came last year and in 1956.

The game will be the last college competition for nine Northeast players — ends Jim Love and Carlyle Williams, guards Joe Alewine and Don King, center Stanley Starr, quarterback Mike Cooper, halfbacks Newton and Douglas and fullback Ragan.

Eaves Appointed Athletic Director At Georgia U.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—Auburn University's basketball coach, Joel Eaves, has been named athletic director at the University of Georgia.

President O. C. Aderhold of Georgia made the announcement by telephone Friday en route from Auburn, where he went to tender the job to Eaves.

Howell Hollis, Georgia's business manager, has been filling the athletic director's job since the retirement of Wallace Butts last winter. Butts quit amid a welter of controversey culminated by his winning a multi-million dollar libel action against the Saturday Evening Post over an article on an alleged football game fix.

"We are immensely pleased to have a person of Mr. Eaves' stature and reputation to give direction to our athletic program," Aderhold said.

Eaves reportedly will assume his new duties immediately. Bill Lynn, Eaves' assistant, is expected to take over the Auburn basketball team for the 1963-64 season, opening next week.

Auburn won the SEC basketball championship in 1960 after two second-place finishes.

Georgia Athletic Board held an emergency meeting Wednesday to decide on a new athletic director.

Appling Appointed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Luke Appling, who spent 20 years as a major league baseball player, has been named a coach for the Kansas City Athletics.

The club said Friday that Appling's primary duty will be instructing hitters. During his playing years with the Chicago White Sox, 1930 to 1950, Appling failed to hit .300 in only four seasons and finished with a lifetime batting average of .310.

Appling served as coach of the Baltimore Orioles last season.

Another Coach Hangs In Effigy

The Holy Cross mentor, who is in the midst of his third losing season in 20 with the Crusaders, was hanged in effigy on a tree in the campus quadrangle Thursday night. Holy Cross' 1963 record so far is 1-6-1.

An observer called the small demonstration "quiet" and said the crowd reaction appeared to be "almost indifferent."

Dr. Anderson's 38 years as a head coach makes him the dean of major college coaches.

"Protesting seems to be the order of the day in colleges," Dr. Anderson said.

Holy Cross officials were not available for comment.

Northeast Tribe Set To Invade Tech's Vicious Bulldog Kennel

Rick Bryan

Find The Cowboys

Ever pick up the AP or UPI small college poll and hunt for McNeese State? It's a little easier now, because the Cowboys have finally moved into the bottom rung of the top ten where the type is a little bigger. But not too long ago you had to strain your eyes trying to pick them out down in the little type.

Kind of makes you wonder what brand of football they play down here in Louisiana, until you remember that McNeese got a healthy portion of its squad from Louisiana State and you recall the misery dealt out to seven straight opponents.

Mississippi State beat Howard College 40-0 and McNeese won 28-0, with all the scoring in the first half. Ole Miss trounced Tampa 41-0 and McNeese won 37-12.

Using comparative scores is tricky business at best and no one is saying McNeese is as good as either State or Ole Miss. But — there is no indication that any of the three teams went all out in compiling somewhat comparable scores against mutual opponents.

And this makes you wonder again. If the Cowboys rank eighth among the nation's small college, why aren't Northern Illinois, Whittenberg, St. John's of Minnesota and South Dakota State knocking off Big Ten teams?

The sad truth is that the teams in these ridiculous little polls aren't rated by strength at all. Remember last year when Southeastern Louisiana College went into November undefeated and nationally ranked? The Lions lost three of their last four games. Would you compare that team with McNeese this year in any way shape or form, except that the players on both squads wore helmets?

The teams are rated first by record (regardless of competition) and second on past reputation (it's almost impossible to dislodge a team the year after a good season).

This week South Dakota State is the seventh ranked small college team in the Associated Press poll. On the other hand, Dunkel's Index, a not infallible system which evaluates a team's performance against the strength of its oppostion, puts South Dakota State 31st in the nation.

Northern Illinois is second by AP, 11th in Dunkel, Wittenberg third and 12th respectively, St. John's of Minnesota sixth and 13th. McNeese, however, is third in Dunkel's and Abilene Christian fourth.

What will probably happen is that McNeese, while not receiving the recognition it deserves this year, will lose one or two early season games next year while still ranked highly in the polls.

The Pollsters aren't prejudiced against Southern schools and they have done okay with some of their selections (teams like Delaware and Massachusetts).

But the polls would be better off making some attempt to regard the calibre of a team's opposition and no just its record.

The Predictions

Predicting was never more of a farce for us than last week when only nine games were picked correctly against seven wrong calls and one tie. This dropped the season average to .707.

It's absurd to go on but . . .

Louisiana Tech 21, Northeast 7

A surprising Northeast team, which has a much better ground attack than any club should with as young a line (188 yards rushing against McNeese for example), may turn in another of it's traditionally superb efforts. This is Northeast's "Ole Miss game" every year.

It will be surprising if the Bulldogs repeat their performance against Southern Mississippi, the only school Tech has ever been able to "get up" for consistently.

Northeast still faces a tremendous challenge, however.

The Canines are developing into one of the better small college football teams (this was apparent before the Tennessee Tech, Southeastern or Southern Mississippi games) and already are considerably stronger than in 1962. While the air arm has drawn most of the praise again it is possible Tech could come out okay even if rain or the hard rush thwarts passer Billy Laird.

Louisiana State 28, Tulane 7

A win or tie: — that was the Bengal's fatal question one week ago when LSU gambled on a two-point conversion and lost 7-6.

Chances are the Tigers won't face with the same decision this week. Nor will quarterback Billy Ezell need to become Y. A. Tittle for "sixty beautiful seconds" as Buddy Diliberto put it in the Times-Picayune, and pass the Tigers downfield in the wanning seconds.

Of course you will never convince most LSU fans that Mississippi State won in the first place.

Don Schwab, commenting on the touchdown officials ruled he didn't make. "I sure thought I was over on that one, it was real close. I just wish I could have been the official on that play."

Then there was Coach Charles McClendon on the pass interception that set up State's winning touchdown. "It's mighty hard to run a pass pattern when you are flat on your back."

Athletic Director Jim Corbett had his comment. "You talk about interference. The way I saw it, that was the most flagrant case of it, and with two officials standing right there next to Laburzzo (Joe)."

On the play, State's Sonny Fisher intercpeted a pass from Ezell intended for Labruzzo.

For the Tigers, the game started the way it ended. LSU won the toss and the referee asked captain Willis Langley which goal he wanted to defend, not whether he wanted to receive or defend a particular goal. Now what kind of choice is that?

Help or no help, though, it is impossible to take anything away from a Mississippi State team which, in the last four weeks, lost to Memphis State 17-10, to Alabama 20-19, then defeated Auburn 13-10 before edging the Tigers 7-6.

Others

Baylor 14, SMU 13; Auburn 17, Florida State 12; Kentucky 7, Tennessee 6; Florida 20, Miami 19; Southern Miss. 19, The Citadel 0; Vanderbilt 16, George Washington 14; Arkansas 14, Texas Tech 6; Houston 24, Louisville 6; TCU 14, Rice 13; Oklahoma 7, Nebraska 6; Michigan State 20, Illinois 6; McNeese 21, USL 0; Southeastern 14, Northwestern 13.

Nicholls Plays 2nd Cage Tilt With Arkansas

THIBODAUX (Special) — Nicholls closes out its first home stand of the fledgling basketball season tonight in the second of a two game set with Arkansas College.

Nicholls opened the 63 - 64 campaign last Wednesday, suffering a shaky second half in losing 82-70 to potent Stephen F. Austin. The game was tied 31-31 at half time.

Last night (Friday), the Colonels took on Arkansas College in the first tilt of the short series which concludes tonight.

Forward Gene Simmons, the Colonels' leading scorer last season, was top dog in the scoring column for the Lafourche based Rebs against S. F. Austin, sinking 9 field goals and 10 of 11 free throws for 28 points.

Guard Leonard Stulce contributed 15 points on five fielders and a like number of charity tosses while forward Jerry Sanders was the third Colonel in double digits with 11 points on five two pointers and a free shot.

Jim Squires, a top notch rebounder, and ball handler Paul Vaccaro will join Simmons, Stulce and Sanders on the Nicholls starting unit, Squires at center and Vaccaro at guard. Squires had 8 points in the opener and Vaccaro 2.

DEATH IS SEVERE LOSS

John F. Kennedy Was Best Friend Of American Sports

BOSTON (AP) — Athletics as well as the political world suffered a severe loss in the death of President John F. Kennedy. The one - time scrub football player and ardent fan was considered one of the best friends American sports ever had.

The man who munched a hot dog in the Orange Bowl and opened three American League baseball seasons with the traditional first pitch emphasized participation to the spectator public.

President Kennedy did not merely stress physical wellbeing with touch football games on the White House lawn and sailing and swimming off-shore near his Hyannis Port, mass. summer home.

He also created a Council on Youth Fitness under the supervision of Oklahoma's football coach and athletic director, Bud Wilkinson. The program was encouraged throughout all primary public schools in the country.

And when the bitter power struggle between the Amateur Athletic Union and National Collegiate Athletic Association over control of amateur athletics threatened the U.S. Olympic program earlier this year, the vigorous young President stepped in strongly.

He appointed Gen. Douglas MacArthur the final-say arbitrator in the dispute and the five-star general hammered out a truce.

For outstanding service to football President Kennedy received a gold medal award from the National Football Foundation. He had surrounded himself with football men, feeling they were rounded citizens best trained to meet today's problems.

Byron (Whizzer) White, the famed Colorado halfback of the late 1930s became a Supreme Court justice. There were football men among his advisors, including former Harvard captain Kenneth O'Donnell, and when racial strife broke out in Birmingham, Ala. one of Kennedy's choices as a Federal mediator was Earl (Red) Blaik, former Army and Dartmouth football coach.

Although his younger brothers gained more football prominence at Harvard, President Kennedy was an end on the freshman and junior varsity squads and a swimmer. U. S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy and Sen. Ted Kennedy were Harvard varsity football players.

A freshman teammate of the then future President recalled he "was a tall, rangy end and he was pretty good though he never made a varsity letter."

President Kennedy called on his early swimming training during the war when the PT boat he skippered was sliced in two by a Japanese destroyer in the South Pacific. He managed to tow a crewman from the wreck to shore, a distance of three miles in five hours. Later, he spent a week swimming from island to island seeking aid.

Eaves Appointed Athletic Director At Georgia U.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—Auburn University's basketball coach, Joel Eaves, has been named athletic director at the University of Georgia.

President O. C. Aderhold of Georgia made the announcement by telephone Friday en route from Auburn, where he went to tender the job to Eaves.

Howell Hollis, Georgia's business manager, has been filling the athletic director's job since the retirement of Wallace Butts last winter. Butts quit amid a welter of controversey culminated by his winning a multi-million dollar libel action against the Saturday Evening Post over an article on an alleged football game fix.

"We are immensely pleased to have a person of Mr. Eaves' stature and reputation to give direction to our athletic program," Aderhold said.

Eaves reportedly will assume his new duties immediately. Bill Lynn, Eaves' assistant, is expected to take over the Auburn basketball team for the 1963-64 season, opening next week.

Auburn won the SEC basketball championship in 1960 after two second-place finishes.

Georgia Athletic Board held an emergency meeting Wednesday to decide on a new athletic director.

Appling Appointed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Luke Appling, who spent 20 years as a major league baseball player, has been named a coach for the Kansas City Athletics.

The club said Friday that Appling's primary duty will be instructing hitters. During his playing years with the Chicago White Sox, 1930 to 1950, Appling failed to hit .300 in only four seasons and finished with a lifetime batting average of .310.

Appling served as coach of the Baltimore Orioles last season.

Another Coach Hangs In Effigy

The Holy Cross mentor, who is in the midst of his third losing season in 20 with the Crusaders, was hanged in effigy on a tree in the campus quadrangle Thursday night. Holy Cross' 1963 record so far is 1-6-1.

An observer called the small demonstration "quiet" and said the crowd reaction appeared to be "almost indifferent."

Dr. Anderson's 38 years as a head coach makes him the dean of major college coaches.

"Protesting seems to be the order of the day in colleges," Dr. Anderson said.

Holy Cross officials were not available for comment.

Tigers, Greenies Bear Hopes To Annual Game

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — Tulane's Green Wave hopes to add a ray of sunshine to an otherwise gloomy football season Saturday when it meets heavily-favored, bowl-minded Louisiana State in Baton Rouge.

Kickoff time for the regular-season finale is 2 p.m. and a crowd of 64,000 is expected to attend the Southeastern Conference "traditional" at Tiger Stadium.

Tulane hasn't beaten LSU since 1948, when Eddie Price and Co. led the Green Wave to a 46-0 decision. The New Orleans entry has managed two standoffs (14-14 in 1950 and 13-13 in 1955) since that time, but the Bengals have won the last seven games and lengthened their series edge to 34-19-7.

LSU stunned the Green Wave 38-3 last season in New Orleans after being held to a 7-3 margin at halftime.

This year's Tiger team (6-3) still entertains dreams of a Bluebonnet or Liberty Bowl engagement and Tulane (1-7-1) would love to demolish those hopes. Coach Tommy O'Boyle expects his Wave to be primed for a peak effort, but admits his depth-shy team will have trouble containing LSU's tremendous ground game.

Tulane and LSU have had four common opponents this season. The Green Wave lost to all four and the Tigers split with them. Miami beat Tulane 10-0, then was beaten 3-0 by the Bengals. Mississippi State shelled Tulane 31-10, but shaded LSU 7-6. Georgia Tech defeated the Wave 17-3 after bowing to the Tigers 7-6. Ole Miss blanked Tulane 21-0 and crushed LSU 37-3.

Both teams have been troubled by injuries to key personnel this season. The latest Tulane casualty is starting left halfback Jerry Graves, who suffered a twisted knee in last week's 10-10 tie with Vanderbilt. Graves is a doubtful participant against LSU. Tackles Mike Vise and Conrad Meyer and halfback Jim Davis of the wave have been hobbled by ankle injuries ,but have been playing cut of necessity.

Tulane will be outweighed 16 pounds per man in the first unit line and even more beyond that, but both starting backfield will average 191 pounds per man if the Green Wave uses George Smith at halfback.

Smith, a 195-pound sophomore from Leesville, has assumed the team rushing leadership since being moved to fullback from a halfback post. The injury to Graves forced Wave coaches to move Smith back to left half and to move Larry McIntire back up to No. 1 fullback. McIntire, a 208-pound senior from Covington, averaged better than five yards per carry against Vanderbilt and impressed coaches with his second effort and blocking.

BATON ROUGE (AP)—President John A. Hunter of Louisiana State University said the game here will be played Saturday.

He made the comment after, by mutual consent, Tulane and LSU canceled Friday night's freshman game after the slaying of President Kennedy. The game was scheduled in New Orleans.

Hunter said: :

"I have consulted with President Longenecker of Tulane University. We are agreed that the contest should go on as scheduled.

"President Kennedy was a sportsman and a strong advocate of physical fitness. For this reason, we believe that this traditional contest between Louisiana's two great universities should be played."

Rams Tie Eagles 6-6, Lose On First Downs

BASTROP — In a game marred only by a rain-soaked playing surface, Bastrop's magnificiant Rams met the big Eagles from Warren Easton of New Orleans head on here Friday night, trying the visitors 6-6 but losing the right to advance further into the state triple-A football playoffs because the Eagles recorded more first downs.

In Louisiana high school playoff contests, if a tie results the decision goes to the team with the most first downs and if there is a tie in that department penetrations are considered next.

Passes Had Interc.	1	1
Fumbles & Lost	1-1	3-3
Penalties	2-20	1-5
Punts	4-34	0

The difference between these two fine football machines could be summed up in two words — Louis Mendel. This 200-pound human battering ram all but beat the Bastrop into submission alone in the final quarter when he carried the ball time after time.

His most crucial carry of the night came with just 1:46 remaining in the contest when he bulled over from the one yardline to give Warren Easton their six-pointer. The kick for the extra point was blocked by Milton Doughty but it made little difference as the Eagles already had its 10 first downs.

Bastrop, the team which made a successful season out of turning in the big play, almost pulled off the trick again this cool, wet night.

With about 8:00 left in the third quarter, the Rams pounced on the second of three Eagle fumbles during the night and promptly marched 26 yards for the game's initial score.

Slender Rickey Grimmitt, the Rams' lead ball carrier with 69 yards, carried the ball across for the touchdown with 4:14 remaining in the third frame. Kicking specialist Tom Holmer failed to convert the wet pigskin and Bastrop led 6-0.

After Grimmitt's touchdown, Bastrop held the Eagles for two downs and then seemed to have the break it needed to break the game open when star linebacker Mickey Michaud, who played nearly all the way defensively with a heavily taped knee, bulled into Easton quarterback Eddie Olavarrietta causing him to fumble and then fall on the ball at the visitors' 37.

With Rickey Reynolds, Grimmitt and John Bailey alternating carries, the Rams went to the 28 where they faced a fourth and one situation. The try by Reynolds failed and Warren Easton took over.

From here the powerful Eagles, with Mendal the Mennis at the helm, bulled quickly to the Ram 25 but again Bastrop put the clamp on and stopped the march.

But with about 5:30 left in the game Bastop had to punt from its own 24. Head, who has near a 50 yard punting average, boomed the ball down to the Eagles' 38 where safety man Walter McCrea was swarmed under by a host of Rams. But the Rams were penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness, giving Easton possession on the Bastrop 46. This may well have been the turning point.

Starting with 5:15 left on the clock it took Easton 12 plays to march for the score. Of the 12 plays, Mendel carried nine times for 25 yards, including the final one.

For the night he finished with 29 carries good for 127 yards which was 19 more than the entire Bastrop team gained on the ground. He was also on the carrying end of six of Warren Easton's 10 first downs.

Following the Warren Easton score, Bastrop took the ensuing kickoff and Reynolds returned it from the 20 to the 46 with 1:40 left. But Rickey Head's pass attempt to Morris Funderburg was picked off by Peyton Hines and the Eagles easily ran out the clock in three plays.

In the first offensive series, the Eagles bulled to the Bastrop 22. On this occasion the South Louisiana crew missed a touchdown when end Bruce DeBartole missed a perfect pass from Olavarrietta.

The Rams quick kicked on third down after taking over the ball and three plays later had possession of the ball again when Head, who along with many other Rams played a tremendous defensive game, intercepted an Eagle pass at the Bastrop 46.

But Bastrop quickly returned the favor when Douglas Harris recovered a Grimmit fumble on first down. It looked like the Eagles were headed for paydirt this time when Mendel picked up a big first down at the 26 but he fumbled on the play and Grimmitt made amends for his bobble by dropping on this one at the Ram 15.

Warren Easton could not manage another serious threat in the opening half, but Bastrop did — marching from its 36 to the Eagles' eight yardline before running out of steam.

This drive was sparked by a dazzling 44 yard scamper by speedy Grimmitt on a reverse play. He got a crushing block from Benton Barnette at the line of scrimmage, cut to the left sideline and raced to the 16 before being dragged down.

Grimmitt raced on down to the eight two plays later but on a fourth and two from the eight, Head was trapped for a 12 yard loss, ending the threat.

The out-manned Rams of Coach Joe Murry played as they have the entire season. Their outstanding all-out effort has won the hearts of crowds everywhere they've gone and their fine 9-0-2 record speaks for itself — they are champions.

Score by quarters:

Warren Easton 0 0 0 6-6

Scoring Summary:

UCLA-Trojan Winner Could Get All Roses

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California and UCLA, each with a slender chance of making it to the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, meet in a Big Six Conference game Saturday before the largest football crowd of the season in Los Angeles.

There were almost 87,000 in the Coliseum for the game a year ago and a similar turnout is expected for the renewal of this annual unneighborly conflict.

Keen interest will also be directed toward Seattle for developments in the key game of the conference weekend schedule, Washington and Washington State.

Washington doubtless will grab the big bowl bid if it wins. A loss to the Cougars, however, will place the winner at Los Angeles in serious contention.

The Rose Bowl host team, against the winner of the Illinois-Michigan State game in the Big Ten, will not be officially decided until faculty brass reach a decision at San Francisco Monday.

The UCLA-USC affair has produced its share of surprises over the years and since 1955 neither school has won two years in a row. Southern Cal, with its unbeaten national championship squad, beat the Bruins last year, 14-3.

Added interest to this edition came with the startling 14-0 upset of Washington by UCLA last week. The Bruins chewed up the Huskies' vaunited attack and came up with a devastating aerial game.

Steve Sindell, a surprise starter at quarterback last week and Larry Zenc will carry the burden again Saturday. Each led a long drive against Washington.

There is also an intriguing possibility of a duel between the rangy rival ends, the Bruins' Mel Profit, 6-foot-5, 209 pounds, and Hal Bedsole, 6-5 and 221.

Profit was a standout against Washington. Bedsole was benched after the Trojans' lost to Washington but last week redeemed himself against Oregon State and regained his starting role.

Both UCLA and the Trojans have played unusually tough schedules. Each is 2-1 in the conference—Washington is 3-1—but Southern Cal has a 6-3 record and UCLA 2-7.

Should Washington lose and the Trojans and Michigan State win, the 'Rose Bowl would be the setting for an interesting rematch. On Oct. 4 Southern Cal came from behind to defeat Michigan State here, 13-10.

CLASS A PLAYOFF

Lake Providence Tops Many, 40-0

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — The unbeaten Lake Providence Panthers, 2-A football champions, trounced the 1-A champions Many, 40-0, and won a quarterfinals berth in the state playoffs.

The Panthers will face the winner of the Marksville-DeQuincy game which was cancelled Friday because of the death of President Kennedy.

Lake Providence cliched the game in the second and third quarters by raking in a total of 26 points.

To start the assault, halfback Johnny Overby topped a 40 yard Panther drive by dashing 15 yards for the touchdown. David Clarkson, also a halfback, booted the first of four conversions.

Fullback Don Washam picked up the first touchdown in the second period on an eight yard run which completed a 45 yard drive.

Quarterback Van Hicks Jr. began the second touchdown play of the period by passing 15 yards to Rodney Fortenberry who carried the pigskin 50 yards for the score.

In the third quarter, Hicks broke loose for a 45 yard scamper to net a TD and Fortenberry again made a long run, 45 yards to add to the tally.

To close out the successful night, Fortenberry put on the icing with a 60 yard dash in the fourth quarter on the second play after the Panthers took control of the ball.

In a game hampered by a muddy field and intermittent sprinkles of rain, the host made nine first downs to the visitors' four.

Haughton Speed Tops Holly Ridge

HAUGHTON (Special) — Halfback Mike Beaty scored two fourth quarter touchdowns to lead Haughton's speedy backs to a 19-13 Class B bi-district football playoff victory over Holly Ridge here Friday night.

Haugthon jumped off to a quick lead when quarterback Ted Ward took the opening kickoff and returned it 90 - yards for the game's first touchdown. Beaty kicked the extra point.

Holly Ridge narrowed the margin to 7-6 two plays later when halfback Billy Reed broke loose on a 48-yard scamper. Fullback Edward Bryant was stopped short trying to run the extra point.

The Eagles took a 13-7 lead in the third quarter on a 24-yard pass play from quarterback Larry Dew to halfback Wayne McManus. The touchdown play was set up when end Bo Miller scooped up a fumble and returned it 30 yards to the 24. Bryant ran the extra point.

Haughton got back in the game in the fourth quarter on the first of Beaty's touchdowns, a sizzling 95 - yard punt return. The extra point try failed leaving the score tied 13-13.

Bearcats Blast Natchitoches 5

RUSTON (Special) — Ruston's bearcast ran theoir string of victories to five straight with a 67-50 win over Natchitoches Friday.

Natchitoches had a slim three point lead after the first quarter, but a 23 point second period effort by the bearcats put the game out of reach.

George Stone with 23, Curtis Vaughn with 16, Reggie Cassibry with 11, and Billy Colvin with 10 led the Bearcats in scoring. Colvin had 26 rebounds and Stone had 22 as the Cats completely out did the invaders in that department.

Baton Rouge Defeated, 22-6 By Rival Jesuit

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Eighth-ranked Jesuit of New Orleans scored a 22-6 triple-A victory over Baton Rouge Friday night.

The victory reversed a season opening 12-0 loss handed the visiting Jays.

Baton Rouge opened the scoring in the first period as Hugh Shelton ended a 60 yard drive going over from the six.

Jesuit retaliated rapidly, as Schweigert directed a 60 yard drive which ended with him throwing to Dennis Donnelly from 15 yards out. Bob Marino put the Jays ahead by running over the PAT.

After recovering a Baton Rouge fumble on the kickoff Jesuit struck again. On the second play of the series, Schweigert raced 31 yards for the score.

IN AA ACTION

Minden Edges Jonesboro, 13-2

JONESBORO (Special) — The Minden Crimson Tide moved closer to another championship by taking a narrow victory over the Jonesboro - Hodge Tigers here Friday night.

The Tide took the 1-AA district title and with the defeat of the 2-AA champion Tigers, tallied its 12th straight victory.

Jonesboro - Hodge had won its district title by defeating Neville of Monroe and tying Ruston. The championship was made final only last week when the Louisiana High School Athletics Association ruled for the Tigers.

In a contest in heavy fog, the Tigers managed their score on a safety in the second period.

Jonesboro - Hodge had driven to the six yard line and lost the ball. The Tigers' Johnny Garlington and Robert Harper caught Tide quarterback Freddie Haynes in the end zone for two points.

Minden's halfback Steve White dashed 30 yards in the first quarter for the opening touchdown for the Tide in the second period. The extra point try failed when Tiger Randy Moffett blocked the runner.

In the third period, Minden recovered a fumble on the Jonesboro 20 and Haynes passed 12 yards to end Mike Brewer for the point. Butch Williams booted the conversion.

Minden will play the winner of the Leesville-De Ridder game which was postponed Friday night because of the assasination of the President.

Starting with 5:15 left on the clock it took Easton 12 plays to march for the score. Of the 12 plays, Mendel carried nine times for 25 yards, including the final one.

For the night he finished with 29 carries good for 127 yards which was 19 more than the entire Bastrop team gained on the ground. He was also on the carrying end of six of Warren Easton's 10 first downs.

Following the Warren Easton score, Bastrop took the ensuing kickoff and Reynolds returned it from the 20 to the 46 with 1:40 left. But Rickey Head's pass attempt to Morris Funderburg was picked off by Peyton Hines and the Eagles easily ran out the clock in three plays.

In the first offensive series, the Eagles bulled to the Bastrop 22. On this occasion the South Louisiana crew missed a touchdown when end Bruce DeBartole missed a perfect pass from Olavarrietta.

The Rams quick kicked on third down after taking over the ball and three plays later had possession of the ball again when Head, who along with many other Rams played a tremendous defensive game, intercepted an Eagle pass at the Bastrop 46.

But Bastrop quickly returned the favor when Douglas Harris recovered a Grimmit fumble on first down. It looked like the Eagles were headed for paydirt this time when Mendel picked up a big first down at the 26 but he fumbled on the play and Grimmitt made amends for his bobble by dropping on this one at the Ram 15.

Warren Easton could not manage another serious threat in the opening half, but Bastrop did — marching from its 36 to the Eagles' eight yardline before running out of steam.

This drive was sparked by a dazzling 44 yard scamper by speedy Grimmitt on a reverse play. He got a crushing block from Benton Barnette at the line of scrimmage, cut to the left sideline and raced to the 16 before being dragged down.

Grimmitt raced on down to the eight two plays later but on a fourth and two from the eight, Head was trapped for a 12 yard loss, ending the threat.

The out-manned Rams of Coach Joe Murry played as they have the entire season. Their outstanding all-out effort has won the hearts of crowds everywhere they've gone and their fine 9-0-2 record speaks for itself — they are champions.

Score by quarters:

Warren Easton 0 0 0 6-6

Scoring Summary:

WE: Louis Mendel, 1 yard run. PAT attempt fail.

Bastrop: Rickey Grimmitt, 4 ayard run. PAT attempt fail.

UCLA-Trojan Winner Could Get All Roses

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California and UCLA, each with a slender chance of making it to the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, meet in a Big Six Conference game Saturday before the largest football crowd of the season in Los Angeles.

There were almost 87,000 in the Coliseum for the game a year ago and a similar turnout is expected for the renewal of this annual unneighborly conflict.

Keen interest will also be directed toward Seattle for developments in the key game of the conference weekend schedule, Washington and Washington State.

Washington doubtless will grab the big bowl bid if it wins. A loss to the Cougars, however, will place the winner at Los Angeles in serious contention.

The Rose Bowl host team, against the winner of the Illinois-Michigan State game in the Big Ten, will not be officially decided until faculty brass reach a decision at San Francisco Monday.

The UCLA-USC affair has produced its share of surprises over the years and since 1955 neither school has won two years in a row. Southern Cal, with its unbeaten national championship squad, beat the Bruins last year, 14-3.

Added interest to this edition came with the startling 14-0 upset of Washington by UCLA last week. The Bruins chewed up the Huskies' vaunited attack and came up with a devastating aerial game.

Steve Sindell, a surprise starter at quarterback last week and Larry Zenc will carry the burden again Saturday. Each led a long drive against Washington.

There is also an intriguing possibility of a duel between the rangy rival ends, the Bruins' Mel Profit, 6-foot-5, 209 pounds, and Hal Bedsole, 6-5 and 221.

Profit was a standout against Washington. Bedsole was benched after the Trojans' lost to Washington but last week redeemed himself against Oregon State and regained his starting role.

Both UCLA and the Trojans have played unusually tough schedules. Each is 2-1 in the conference—Washington is 3-1—but Southern Cal has a 6-3 record and UCLA 2-7.

Should Washington lose and the Trojans and Michigan State win, the Rose Bowl would be the setting for an interesting rematch. On Oct. 4 Southern Cal came from behind to defeat Michigan State here, 13-10.

CLASS A PLAYOFF

Lake Providence Tops Many, 40-0

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — The unbeaten Lake Providence Panthers, 2-A football champions, trounced the 1-A champions Many, 40-0, and won a quarterfinals berth in the state playoffs.

The Panthers will face the winner of the Marksville-DeQuincy game which was cancelled Friday because of the death of President Kennedy.

Lake Providence cliched the game in the second and third quarters by raking in a total of 26 points.

To start the assault, halfback Johnny Overby topped a 40 yard Panther drive by dashing 15 yards for the touchdown. David Clarkson, also a halfback, booted the first of four conversions.

Fullback Don Washam picked up the first touchdown in the second period on an eight yard run which completed a 45 yard drive.

Quarterback Van Hicks Jr. began the second touchdown play of the period by passing 15 yards to Rodney Fortenberry who carried the pigskin 50 yards for the score.

In the third quarter, Hicks broke loose for a 45 yard scamper to net a TD and Fortenberry again made a long run, 45 yards to add to the tally.

To close out the successful night, Fortenberry put on the icing with a 60 yard dash in the fourth quarter on the second play after the Panthers took control of the ball.

In a game hampered by a muddy field and intermittent sprinkles of rain, the host made nine first downs to the visitors' four.

The Panthers were penalized 70 yards and Many none.

Epps, Pioneer Win Games In Montecello Play

MONTECELLO (Special) — Epps and Pioneer won boys games Friday and Forest and Ogden won in girls play at the Montecello basketball tournament.

Pioneer topped Ogden 79 - 76 in the other boys game with Stewart's 24 points leading the way. Ralph Chevallier scored 22 for the loser.

In girls play Marilyn Vining popped in 39 to lead Forest to a 67-64 edge over Central of Delhi. Nell Hammons and Cookie Ogden scored 28 apiece for the losers.

Haughton Speed Tops Holly Ridge

HAUGHTON (Special) — Halfback Mike Beaty scored two fourth quarter touchdowns to lead Haughton's speedy backs to a 19-13 Class B bi-district football playoff victory over Holly Ridge here Friday night.

Haugthon jumped off to a quick lead when quarterback Ted Ward took the opening kickoff and returned it 90 - yards for the game's first touchdown. Beaty kicked the extra point.

Holly Ridge narrowed the margin to 7-6 two plays later when halfback Billy Reed broke loose on a 48-yard scamper. Fullback Edward Bryant was stopped short trying to run the extra point.

The Eagles took a 13-7 lead in the third quarter on a 24-yard pass play from quarterback Larry Dew to halfback Wayne McManus. The touchdown play was set up when end Bo Miller scooped up a fumble and returned it 30 yards to the 24. Bryant ran the extra point.

Haughton got back in the game in the fourth quarter on the first of Beaty's touchdowns, a sizzling 95 - yard punt return. The extra point try failed leaving the score tied 13-13.

Bearcats Blast Natchitoches 5

RUSTON (Special) — Ruston's bearcast ran theoir string of victories to five straight with a 67-50 win over Natchitoches Friday.

Natchitoches had a slim three point lead after the first quarter, but a 23 point second period effort by the bearcats put the game out of reach.

George Stone with 23, Curtis Vaughn with 16, Reggie Cassibry with 11, and Billy Colvin with 10 led the Bearcats in scoring. Colvin had 26 rebounds and Stone had 22 as the Cats completely out did the invaders in that department.

Tigers, Greenies Bear Hopes To Annual Game

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — Tulane's Green Wave hopes to add a ray of sunshine to an otherwise gloomy football season Saturday when it meets heavily-favored, bowl-minded Louisiana State in Baton Rouge.

Kickoff time for the regular-season finale is 2 p.m. and a crowd of 64,000 is expected to attend the Southeastern Conference "traditional" at Tiger Stadium.

Tulane hasn't beaten LSU since 1948, when Eddie Price and Co. led the Green Wave to a 46-0 decision. The New Orleans entry has managed two standoffs (14-14 in 1950 and 13-13 in 1955) since that time, but the Bengals have won the last seven games and lengthened their series edge to 34-19-7.

LSU stunned the Green Wave 38-3 last season in New Orleans after being held to a 7-3 margin at halftime.

This year's Tiger team (6-3) still entertains dreams of a Bluebonnet or Liberty Bowl engagement and Tulane (1-7-1) would love to demolish those hopes. Coach Tommy O'Boyle expects his Wave to be primed for a peak effort, but admits his depth- shy team will have trouble containing LSU's tremendous ground game.

Tulane and LSU have had four common opponents this season. The Green Wave lost to all four and the Tigers split with them. Miami beat Tulane 10-0, then was beaten 3-0 by the Bengals. Mississippi State shelled Tulane 31-10, but shaded LSU 7-6. Georgia Tech defeated the Wave 17-3 after bowing to the Tigers 7-6. Ole Miss blanked Tulane 21-0 and crushed LSU 37-3.

Both teams have been troubled by injuries to key personnel this season. The latest Tulane casualty is starting left halfback Jerry Graves, who suffered a twisted knee in last week's 10-10 tie with Vanderbilt. Graves is a doubtful participant against LSU. Tackles Mike Vise and Conrad Meyer and halfback Jim Davis of the wave have been hobbled by ankle injuries ,but have been playing cut of necessity.

Tulane will be outweighed 16 pounds per man in the first unit line and even more beyond that, but both starting backfield will average 191 pounds per man if the Green Wave uses George Smith at halfback.

Smith, a 195-pound sophomore from Leesville, has assumed the team rushing leadership since being moved to fullback from a halfback post. The injury to Graves forced Wave coaches to move Smith back to left half and to move Larry McIntire back up to No. 1 fullback. McIntire, a 208-pound senior from Covington, averaged better than five yards per carry against Vanderbilt and impressed coaches with his second effort and blocking.

BATON ROUGE (AP)—President John A. Hunter of Louisiana State University said the game here will be played Saturday.

He made the comment after, by mutual consent, Tulane and LSU canceled Friday night's freshman game after the slaying of President Kennedy. The game was scheduled in New Orleans.

Hunter said: :

"I have consulted with President Longenecker of Tulane University. We are agreed that the contest should go on as scheduled.

"President Kennedy was a sportsman and a strong advocate of physical fitness. For this reason, we believe that this traditional contest between Louisiana's two great universities should be played."

IN AA ACTION

Minden Edges Jonesboro, 13-2

JONESBORO (Special) — The Minden Crimson Tide moved closer to another championship by taking a narrow victory over the Jonesboro - Hodge Tigers here Friday night.

The Tide took the 1-AA district title and with the defeat of the 2-AA champion Tigers, tallied its 12th straight victory.

Jonesboro - Hodge had won its district title by defeating Neville of Monroe and tying Ruston. The championship was made final only last week when the Louisiana High School Athletics Association ruled for the Tigers.

In a contest in heavy fog, the Tigers managed their score on a safety in the second period.

Jonesboro - Hodge had driven to the six yard line and lost the ball. The Tigers' Johnny Garlington and Robert Harper caught Tide quarterback Freddie Haynes in the end zone for two points.

Minden's halfback Steve White dashed 30 yards in the first quarter for the opening touchdown for the Tide in the second period. The extra point try failed when Tiger Randy Moffett blocked the runner.

In the third period, Minden recovered a fumble on the Jonesboro 20 and Haynes passed 12 yards to end Mike Brewer for the point. Butch Williams booted the conversion.

Minden will play the winner of the Leesville-De Ridder game which was postponed Friday night because of the assasination of the President.

Baton Rouge Defeated, 22-6 By Rival Jesuit

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Eighth-ranked Jesuit of New Orleans scored a 22-6 triple-A victory over Baton Rouge Friday night.

The victory reversed a season opening 12-0 loss handed the visiting Jays.

Baton Rouge opened the scoring in the first period as Hugh Shelton ended a 60 yard drive going over from the six.

Jesuit retaliated rapidly, as Schweigert directed a 60 yard drive which ended with him throwing to Dennis Donnelly from 15 yards out. Bob Marino put the Jays ahead by running over the PAT.

After recovering a Baton Rouge fumble on the kickoff Jesuit struck again. On the second play of the series, Schweigert raced 31 yards for the score.

FINALS SET SUNDAY

Cajun Officials Postpone Third Round Of Classic

They rescheduled the windup of the $20,000 tournament—last of the 1963 season—as a 36-hole affair for Sunday.

Bob Goetz, a lean, angular pro who says he's playing in his last tournament as a tour regular, sloshed through the rain with a 5-under par 67 Friday to take the second-round lead in the tournament.

Joe Black, tournament supervisor for the PGA, said "In reverence to the President, the third round of the tournament will not be played Saturday. . .Tournament players and officials of the Professional Golf Association are deeply grieved by the loss of the President."

The 155-pound Goetz who lives in Tulsa, Okla., turned in a better round Friday under adverse conditions than he did Thursday. Stiff winds and rain as well as the startling news of the President's death, affected the play of most pros.

Goetz said he plans to quit the tour, which he has been on for six years, to seek a job as a club professional.

One stroke behind Haas was Jack Nicklaus, youngest member of golf's big three, who had a par 72 for a 141. Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, other members of the big three, are not competing in this tournament.

Defending champion John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., had a 71. He barely made the cut to the low 60 players for the final two rounds.

Joe Moresco of Woodmere, Long Island, N. Y., and Duke Matthews of Eugene, Ore., coleaders after the first round with 66s, had trouble Friday. Moresco had a 76. Matthews zoomed to an 80 for 146 which was not good enough to make the cut.

NEW RECORD HIGH

Budget Adopted By Police Jury

The Ouachita Parish Police Jury, in special session Friday night, adopted a record 1964 budget of $1,390,162, representing an increase over 1963 of $223,417.

Passed by a 9-4 vote was a general fund budget of $490,-862, despite a "point of philosophy" by ward five's Leslie Hamm that "the rich will get richer and the poor poorer." A road maintenance budget of $899,700 got by on a vote of 8-5 and included hourly raises to 114 employees.

Parish welders, mechanics, gradall and dozer operators received hourly increases of 10 cents, while all others realized a five cent per hour raise.

A hot point, before the vote, were salaries for three assistant road superintendents, one of whom receives $525 per month, the ohher two, $450.

"Now we're getting down to the bit shots, where all the money is being made," said F. G. Studdard, ward one. "We've got too many big men and not enough working."

"It's an injustice to leave one of these men making so much more than the other two," said L. U. Fourmy of ward 10. "They all should be raised, or else the one should be lowered."

"All three are doing the same work," declared Hamm.

The salaries remained as they stood, however, when Pesident L. B. Pettit, ward three, called a vote, on the motion of Budget Committee Chairman Leland Carpenter. It was a substitute motion to one offered by Irvin Kilpatrick, ward 10, to make the three supervisory salaries $450 each.

Voting for the road maintenance salaries, including about $16,000 in hourly raises for a projected year's total of $467,-000 overall, were: Carpenter; W. M. Montgomery, ward three; Pettit; Mrs. Bertha Kincaid, ward four; L. W. Coon, six; W. O. Roberts, seven; J. H. Brown, eight; and J. O. Avant, ward five. Opposed were: Studdard; Hamm; Jesse Wislon, ward nine; Fourmy and Kilpatrick.

Carpenter suggested it would take "four to five months" to "straighten out" road department pay scales.

"It's pitiful," he said. "The only way to really solve it would be to fire everybody and start all over, hiring at the same rates for doing the same job. Some men are doing the same job, but making more or less than others."

Wilson suggested 10 cent raises across the board to hourly personnel.

The road maintenance budget overall goes up from $740,-000 in 1963, an increase of $159,-700. Major boost in the figure is in blacktopping tax transfers, rising from this year's budgeted $95,000, to $174,700.

The increase, however, is based on totals for the first 10 months this year, during which $188,359 already has been credited out of the blocktopping fund into road maintenance for labor and use of equipment. Pettit indicated 1964 needs would be somewhat less.

The general fund budget, up from this year's $426,745, passed comparatively quickly and without major changes, despite brief challenges on practically every salary increase included.

Only real alteration made was a raise, at the instigation of Avant, for the parish range rider. Budgeted at $3,600, the range rider will receive $25 a month extra in salary and $25 per month more in expenses.

A separate vote was called on his pay, passing 8-5, only minutes before the general fund budget passed 9-4.

Voting for the general fund set-up were: Carpenter, M. W. Montgomery, Pettit Mrs. Kincaid, Coon, Roberts, Brown, Wilson and Kilpatrick. Aligned in opposition were: Studdard, Hamm, Avant and Fourmy.

The range rider ballot lined up this way: (For) Carpenter, Montgomery, Mrs. Kincaid, Hamm, Avant, Coon, Wilson and Pettit; (Against) Studdard, Roberts, Brown, Fourmy and Kilpatrick.

Absent from the meeting were Rankin Earl of ward three and ward 10's A. E. Montgomery.

Withstanding attacks of those who voted against the general fund budget were salary increases to the Ouachita Parish courthouse engineer and courthouse elevator operator, raised to $6,300 and $3,150, respectively, and the Police Jury secretary - treasurer and assistant, raised to a combined total of $13,230. The increases represented five per cent increases.

Passed at the same session was a 1964 budget of $36,130 for the operation of the parish's Green Oaks Detention Home. Financed by a special dedicated tax, the home's 1963 budget was $31,000.

Biggest item of revenue in anticipated income to the general fund was a figure of $364,-757, expected to be collected from parish four and two mill taxes. It will rise from 1963's $336,000.

Other oustanding expenditures expected in 1964 include $29,640 mileage and per diem to jurors, up about $4,000; $25,000 for feeding and maintenance of prisoners, up $5,000; and $50,000 budgeted for additions to the West Monroe agriculture building.

Funds for road and bridge work are set at $170,000, down from 1963's $181,400.

Coming again to the forefront early in Friday's deliberations was the prospective trip to Hawaii of five jurors to the convention of the National Association of County (Parish) Officers.

Montgomery opened by anoucing his intention not to go at parish expense, followed by a Fourmy call for a resolution that no one should go, except at his own expense.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Gilbert Brown halted the plan, however, with an opinion that no such business could be transacted at the special meeting, called for the specific purpose of acting on a budget.

Fourmy indicated he would raise the matter in regular session.

Originally slated to make the trip were Carpenter, M. W. Coon and Roberts, with Kilpatrick and Fourmy named as alternates.

Montana Fires Jenkins As Top Football Coach

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP — Montana State University announced Friday the firing of Ray Jenkins, head football coach whose teams hurt by athletic deemphasis compiled a record of 14 victories and 41 losses in six years.

The announcement by Athletic Director Wally Schwank said MSU decided not to renew Jenkins' contract.

Schwank said Dr. Robert Johns, MSU president, concurred in the decision to release Jenkins in the best interest of Jenkins and the university.

The firing followed a 1-9 won-loss season, the worst for Montana since 1958 when the Grizzles went 0-8 in Jenskins' first year as head mentor.

Jenkins, 43, had no comment.

Jenkins came to Montana in 1958 from a job as end coach at the University of Colorado.

Big Eight Crown At Stake Today In Big Contest

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska and Oklahoma meet for the Big Eight Conference title Saturday in what shapes up as a hot game on a cold day.

Forecasters look for clearing skies but temperatures in the 30s at the 2 p.m. CST, kickoff.

The sixth-ranked Oklahoma and 10th ranked Nebraska enter the game unbeaten in the conference and beaten outside the league once.

At stake will be an automatic Orange Bowl bid and an almost certain final ranking among the top 10 teams nationally.

The Nebraska Legislature, nearing a Saturday adjournment of a five-week special session, has been almost totally upstaged this week.

Gov. Frank Morrison has proclaimed Saturday "Nebraska Football Championship Day."

Oklahoma has won 21, of the games, Nebraska 18, and three have been tied.

Spartans, Illini Dig Up Roses

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) —Roses may be dug out of the mud when Illinois and Michigan State clash in their showdown fight for the Big Ten football title and Rose Bowl bid Saturday.

The weather forecast is for cloudy and cold with possible rain or snow.

Both teams have identical 6-1-1 over-all records. MSU has the edge in the conference with a 4-0-1 record against the 4-1-1 for Illinois and could grab the title and the Pasadena trip with a tie.

By coincidence, the game is being played on the 10th anniversary of the date the Spartans won their first berth in the Rose Bowl. Illinois and MSU were tied for top conference honors 10 years ago, but the conference voted the Spartans the trip because the Illini had been at hte bowl in 1959.

Dennis Ralston Ousts Emerson

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Has Dennis Ralston become of age, athletically?

The 20-year-old University of Southern California junior tries for his second straight Australian state tennis championship today after showing definite signs of maturity in eliminating Roy Emerson, Australian Davis Cupper, in the semifinals.

Ralston, once suspended by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association for ungentlemanly conduct, meets John Newcombe of Australia, for the South Australian title one week after taking the New South Wales title.

The Bakersfield, Calif. ace twice fought off match point Thursday with complete calm and decorum while besting Emerson 6-4, 2-6, 3-6, 6-2, 12-10.

Ralston is the main hope of the United States in the Davis Cup challenge round against Australia during Christmas week.

Chuck McKinley of St. Ana, Mo., the American No. 1 player, has been idle with a chronic back injury for the past week while Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., beaten finalist in the U. S. singles at Forest Hills, is recovering from minor surgery to remove an internal abscess.

In Friday's play devoted entirely to doubles Australians Ken Fletcher and Tony Roche defeated Mike Sangster and Roger Taylor 9-7, 4-6, 6-4, 4-6, 8-6.

In an all - Australian title match, Margaret Smith and Robyn Ebbern downed Jan Lehane and Lesley Turner 6-1, 6-2.

Detroit Lions Sold To Ford At $6 Million

DETROIT (AP) — As expected, Detroit Lions stockholders wasted little time Friday in accepting William Clay Ford's $6 million offer to purchase the National Football League club.

There were 55 of the 144 stock holders present at Friday morning's meeting in a Detroit hotel. Less than an hour after the doors were closed, it was announced that the offer had been approved and the Detroit Football Co. would be dissolved as a corporation by Jan. 10, 1964.

The 38-year-old Ford, vice-president of Ford Motor Co., has been president of the Lions for the past 2½ years.

It was reported that 94 per cent of the stockholders approved the sale. Only 75 per cent approval was needed to make the offer binding.

The new corporation will be known as Detroit Lions Inc. Ford would be the sole owner.

Asked if he would make any changes in either the management or the coaching staffs, Ford said these announcements would be made after he assumes control of the company on or after Jan. 10, 1964.

Ford is expected to petition the National Football League for acceptance. The other 13 clubs are expected to comply.

Amite Collects

North Carolina State Smashes Wake Forest

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—North Carolina State clinched at least a tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference football title Friday night with a smashing 42-0 victory over Wake Forest.

The Wolfpack, winding up its season with a 6-1 conference mark and an 8-2 overall record, will share the ACC crown with the winner of next week's Duke-North Carolina game. A Duke-North Carolina tie would give State the championship outright.

The Wolfpack piled up a 35-0 first half lead and coasted as Coach Earle Edwards tried third and fourth stringers after intermission.

Wake Forest, which last weekend broke an 18-game losing streak, fell behind 21-0 in the first period and never was in contention.

The Wolfpack outgained the losers 378 yards to 33 in the first half. For the game as a whole, State picked up 563 yards a school record.

Cajun Officials Postpone Third Round Of Classic

They rescheduled the windup of the $20,000 tournament—last of the 1963 season—as a 36-hole affair for Sunday.

Bob Goetz, a lean, angular pro who says he's playing in his last tournament as a tour regular, sloshed through the rain with a 5-under par 67 Friday to take the second-round lead in the tournament.

Joe Black, tournament supervisor for the PGA, said "In reverence to the President, the third round of the tournament will not be played Saturday. . .Tournament players and officials of the Professional Golf Association are deeply grieved by the loss of the President."

The 155-pound Goetz who lives in Tulsa, Okla., turned in a better round Friday under adverse conditions than he did Thursday. Stiff winds and rain as well as the startling news of the President's death, affected the play of most pros.

Goetz said he plans to quit the tour, which he has been on for six years, to seek a job as a club professional.

One stroke behind Haas was Jack Nicklaus, youngest member of golf's big three, who had a par 72 for a 141. Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, other members of the big three, are not competing in this tournament.

Defending champion John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., had a 71. He barely made the cut to the low 60 players for the final two rounds.

Joe Moresco of Woodmere, Long Island, N. Y., and Duke Matthews of Eugene, Ore., coleaders after the first round with 66s, had trouble Friday. Moresco had a 76. Matthews zoomed to an 80 for 146 which was not good enough to make the cut.

NEW RECORD HIGH

Budget Adopted By Police Jury

The Ouachita Parish Police Jury, in special session Friday night, adopted a record 1964 budget of $1,390,162, representing an increase over 1963 of $223,417.

Passed by a 9-4 vote was a general fund budget of $490,462, despite a "point of philosophy" by ward five's Leslie Hamm that "the rich will get richer and t - poor poorer." A road maintenance budget of $899,700 got by on a vote of 8-5 and included hourly raises to 114 employees.

Parish welders, mechanics, gradall and dozer operators received hourly increases of 10 cents, while all others realized a five cent per hour raise.

A hot point, before the vote, were salaries for three assistant road superintendents, one of whom receives $525 per month, the ohher two, $450.

"Now we're getting down to the bit shots, where all the money is being made," said F. G. Studdard, ward one. "We've got too many big men and not enough working."

"It's an injustice to leave one of these men making so much more than the other two," said L. U. Fourmy of ward 10. "They all should be raised, or else the one should be lowered."

"All three are doing the same work," declared Hamm.

The salaries remained as they stood, however, when Pesident L. B. Pettit, ward three, called a vote, on the motion of Budget Committee Chairman Leland Carpenter. It was a substitute motion to one offered by Irvin Kilpatrick, ward 10, to make the three supervisory salaries $450 each.

Voting for the road maintenance salaries, including about $16,000 in hourly raises for a projected year's total of $467,000 overall, were: Carpenter; W. M. Montgomery, ward three; Pettit; Mrs. Bertha Kincaid, ward four; L. W. Coon, six; W. O. Roberts, seven; J. H. Brown, eight; and J. O. Avant, ward five. Opposed were: Studdard; Hamm; Jesse Wislon, ward nine; Fourmy and Kilpatrick.

Carpenter suggested it would take "four to five months" to "straighten out" road department pay scales.

"It's pitiful," he said. "The only way to really solve it would be to fire everybody and start all over, hiring at the same rates for doing the same job. Some men are doing the same job, but making more or less than others."

Wilson suggested 10 cent raises across the board to hourly personnel.

The road maintenance budget overall goes up from $740,000 in 1963, an increase of $159,700. Major boost in the figure is in blacktopping tax transfers, rising from this year's budgeted $95,000, to $174,700.

The increase, however, is based on totals for the first 10 months this year, during which $188,359 already has been credited out of the blocktopping fund into road maintenance for labor and use of equipment. Pettit indicated 1964 needs would be somewhat less.

The general fund budget, up from this year's $426.745, passed comparatively quickly and without major changes, despite brief challenges on practically every salary increase included.

Only real alteration made was a raise, at the instigation of Avant, for the parish range rider. Budgeted at $3,600, the range rider will receive $25 a month extra in salary and $25 per month more in expenses.

A separate vote was called on his pay, passing 8-5, only minutes before the general fund budget passed 9-4.

Voting for the general fund set-up were: Carpenter, M. W. Montgomery, Pettit Mrs. Kincaid, Coon, Roberts, Brown, Wilson and Kilpatrick. Aligned in opposition were: Studdard, Hamm, Avant and Fourmy.

The range rider ballot lined up this way: (For) Carpenter, Montgomery, Mrs. Kincaid, Hamm, Avant, Coon, Wilson and Pettit: (Against) Studdard, Roberts, Brown, Fourmy and Kilpatrick.

Absent from the meeting were Rankin Earl of ward three and ward 10's A. E. Montgomery.

Withstanding attacks of those who voted against the general fund budget were salary increases to the Ouachita Parish courthouse engineer and courthouse elevator operator, raised to $6,300 and $3,150, respectively, and the Police Jury secretary - treasurer and assistant, raised to a combined total of $13,230. The increases represented five per cent increases.

Passed at the same session was a 1964 budget of $36,130 for the operation of the parish's Green Oaks Detention Home. Financed by a special dedicated tax, the home's 1963 budget was $31,000.

Biggest item of revenue in anticipated income to the general fund was a figure of $364,757, expected to be collected from parish four and two mill taxes. It will rise from 1963's $336,000.

Other oustanding expenditures expected in 1964 include $29,640 mileage and per diem to jurors, up about $4,000; $25,000 for feeding and maintenance of prisoners, up $5,000; and $50,000 budgeted for additions to the West Monroe agriculture building.

Funds for road and bridge work are set at $170,000, down from 1963's $181,400.

Coming again to the forefront early in Friday's deliberations was the prospective trip to Hawaii of five jurors to the convention of the National Association of County (Parish) Officers.

Montgomery opened by anoucing his intention not to go at parish expense, followed by a Fourmy call for a resolution that no one should go, except at his own expense.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Gilbert Brown halted the plan, however, with an opinion that no such business could be transacted at the special meeting, called for the specific purpose of acting on a budget.

Fourmy indicated he would raise the matter in regular session.

Originally slated to make the trip were Carpenter, M. W. Coon and Roberts, with Kilpatrick and Fourmy named as alternates.

Basile Nudges Westlake, 7-6

BASILE, La. (AP) — Kenny Vidrine's three-yard run and conversion gave No. 1 ranked Basile a 7-6 victory over Westlake in the first round of the Class A playoffs Friday night.

Westlake had a chance to tie in the third period when J. C. Picard scored on a one yard plunge, but the conversion attempt failed.

IN AUSSIE MEET

Dennis Ralston Ousts Emerson

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Has Dennis Ralston become of age, athletically?

The 20-year-old University of Southern California junior tries for his second straight Australian state tennis championship today after showing definite signs of maturity in eliminating Roy Emerson, Australian Davis Cupper, in the semifinals.

Ralston, once suspended by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association for ungentlemanly conduct, meets John Newcombe of Australia, for the South Australian title one week after taking the New South Wales title.

The Bakersfield, Calif. ace twice fought off match point Thursday with complete calm and decorum while besting Emerson 6-4, 2-6, 3-6, 6-2, 12-10.

Ralston is the main hope of the United States in the Davis Cup challenge round against Australia during Christmas week.

Chuck McKinley of St. Ana, Mo., the American No. 1 player, has been idle with a chronic back injury for the past week while Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., beaten finalist in the U. S. singles at Forest Hills, is recovering from minor surgery to remove an internal abscess.

In Friday's play devoted entirely to doubles Australians Ken Fletcher and Tony Roche defeated Mike Sangster and Roger Taylor 9-7, 4-6, 6-4, 4-6, 8-6.

In an all - Australian title match, Margaret Smith and Robyn Ebbern downed Jan Lehane and Lesley Turner 6-1, 6-2.

In the mixed doubles semifinals Owen Davidson and Miss Ebbern defeated Fred Stolle and Miss Turner 6-4, 6-1. Fletcher and Miss Smith downed Sangster and Miss Lehane, 6-4, 6-2.

Detroit Lions Sold To Ford At $6 Million

DETROIT (AP) — As expected, Detroit Lions stockholders wasted little time Friday in accepting William Clay Ford's $6 million offer to purchase the National Football League club.

There were 55 of the 144 stock holders present at Friday morning's meeting in a Detroit hotel. Less than an hour after the doors were closed, it was announced that the offer had been approved and the Detroit Football Co. would be dissolved as a corporation by Jan. 10, 1964.

The 38-year-old Ford, vice-president of Ford Motor Co., has been president of the Lions for the past 2½ years.

It was reported that 94 per cent of the stockholders approved the sale. Only 75 per cent approval was needed to make the offer binding.

The new corporation will be known as Detroit Lions Inc. Ford would be the sole owner.

Asked if he would make any changes in either the management or the coaching staffs, Ford said these announcements would be made after he assumes control of the company on or after Jan. 10, 1964.

Ford is expected to petition the National Football League for acceptance. The other 13 clubs are expected to comply.

Amite Collects

North Carolina State Smashes Wake Forest

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—North Carolina State clinched at least a tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference football title Friday night with a smashing 42-0 victory over Wake Forest.

The Wolfpack, winding up its season with a 6-1 conference mark and an 8-2 overall record, will share the ACC crown with the winner of next week's Duke-North Carolina game. A Duke-North Carolina tie would give State the championship outright.

The Wolfpack piled up a 35-0 first half lead and coasted as Coach Earle Edwards tried third and fourth stringers after intermission.

Wake Forest, which last weekend broke an 18-game losing streak, fell behind 21-0 in the first period and never was in contention.

The Wolfpack outgained the losers 378 yards to 33 in the first half. For the game as a whole, State picked up 563 yards a school record.

F. N. Steele Home Scene Of Gala Morning Coffee

The new home of the F. N. Steeles on Pargoud Boulevard was festive for its first party Thursday morning, November 21, when Mrs. Steele and her daughter, Mrs. J. R. Eunson, invited friends for coffee between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock.

Mrs. Steele was wearing a dress of gold silk with corsage of bronze chrysanthemums. Mrs. Eunson's corsage was of pink carnations to match her pale pink two - piece wool, which featured at the neckline a smoke ring of cranberry chiffon.

White flowers were used in profusion to complement the soft blue decor of the reception rooms. Mrs. Robert D. Carter and Mrs. James H. Rivers assisted the hostesses in greeting guests in the entrance hall. On a white chest nearby was an arrangement of white pompons. A corner table in the living room held a tall blue pitcher of white mums, gladioli, and spikes of silver - glittered wheat. Across the room on another table was a dainty arrangement of the white pompons and greenery.

A cone shape of the white pompons and glittered, transparent maple leaves filled a crystal bowl in the center of the dining table, at each end of which Mrs. E. F. Hayward Sr., Mrs. C. K Crandall, Mrs. Bruce Gregg, and Mrs. W. J. Riley Jr. alternated in presiding at the silver coffee services. Decorating the buffet was a mass arrangement of the white pompons and green huckleberry leaves. Assisting with courtesies in the dining area were Mrs. G. W. McDuffie Sr. and Mrs. R. T. Pipes.

Frosted drinks were served in the informal den by Mrs. Jo Ann Jernigan, Mrs. C. C. North, Miss Mary Anita Lennon, and Mrs. Holt. In keeping with the warm tones of the room's furnishings was a yellow compote of bronze pompons and variegated euonymus, and a crock holding bright yellow mums and greenery.

Area Garden Club Holds Gala Luncheon

Live turkeys greeted the members of the Sprig and Twig Garden Club upon their arrival at the Lake Providence Country Club for a luncheon meeting and set the pace for decorations used throughout the dining room. The turkeys were housed in a cage built especially for them and decorated with nosegays of yellow and white chrysanthemums.

The "U" shaped table was centered with an arrangement of white and yellow chrysanthemums in an ironstone soup tureen accented by ceramic pheasants with the top and ladle of the tureen completing the composition.

On the other tables, handmade crepe paper turkeys were surrounded by fruits and nuts and swags of greenery, cranberries, nuts, vegetables and pine cones ran the length of all three tables.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. W. P. Tomlinson, Mrs. E. K. Oswalt, Mrs. Marvin Ragland, and Mrs. Jack Brown.

Mrs. Wayne Baker, president, presided over a brief business session at which time two new members, Mrs. Myron H. Stagg and Mrs. W. H. Baker, were introduced.

DEAR ABBY

You Can Ask, But May Not Get His Address

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I had a neighbor who was a perfect gentleman. I met him quite by accident when a package was delivered to my back door instead of to his, and I took it over there. When I saw him I was so overwhelmed with emotion I had to hold on to the door to keep from falling over. He was the living image of my "dream man" — an image I had locked in my heart and mind for over 40 years. He must have noticed my heart on my sleeve, and cared a little, too, because he asked me if I wanted a glass of water. I never encouraged him, but we met at the village shopping center several times after that. We always exchanged warm greetings. Suddenly he moved. He didn't even say goodbye. I wonder if perhaps he lost interest in me because I had a WIN WITH NIXON flag in my window. Would it be too forward of me to ask at the Post Office if he left a forwarding address? I'd like to send him a Christmas card.

CAROLINE

DEAR CAROLINE: You may ask, but they might not be permitted to give it out. If you send him a Christmas card in care of his former address, it will be forwarded to him, I'm sure.

DEAR ABBY: I was delighted that someone finally brought to light the fact that improper music is being played at so many weddings. In the Protestant Episcopal Church, secular music is not permitted in the marriage liturgy as it is a religious rite. I personally have dissuaded couples from using Lohengrin's "Processional" because it is from an opera involving a heathen magician, and that marriage was a failure. The other, "The Recessional," is unacceptable because it is from another fantasy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," in which a lovely young girl is married to an —headed individual. No publicity, please. I am a clergyman.

NAMELESS

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend whom I like very much, but she has two spoiled children and she takes them with her wherever she goes. They are so impossible with their constant whining and nagging that I simply cannot stand them! How can I get this point over to her without losing her friendship? We get along wonderfully well when she leaves them home.

NERVOUS WRECK

DEAR NERVOUS: Most mothers accept any kind of criticism EXCEPT that which concerns their children. There is NO way to tell a mother that you "simply cannot stand her children" without losing her friendship.

Bastrop DAR Chapter Meets In Monroe Home

General William Montgomery chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution of Bastrop met last Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Clyde N. Burt in Monroe with Mrs. A. M. Robinson of Bastrop as co-hostess. Mrs. J. R. Ludlum, chapter regent, presided at the meeting.

Thanksgiving was the program theme with Mrs. Maude Tinsley as the main speaker. She chose for her subject "Let Us Give Thanks" and concluded her talk with the poem entitled "My Thanks Comes Easily At Times."

Two current projects of the chapter were reported. Mrs. W. H. Lamb, flag chairman, reported that an American flag will be presented in the near future to a local Girl Scout Troop; and Mrs. W. P. Stephenson, chairman of American Indians, has ready a large amount of clothing and hand craft materials to be sent to one of the D.A.R. Approved Indian Schools.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Ed. Callier, Mrs. W. P. Stephenson, Mrs. W. H. Lamb, Mrs. R. K. Davis, Mrs. Maude Tinsley, Mrs. J. R. Ludlum, Miss Hazel Little, Mrs. Zelma Loventhal all of Bastrop, and Mrs. W. C. Honeycutt and Mrs. Joe Amman of Monroe. Guests included Mrs. R. A. Berry, Mrs. T. N. DEAR ABBY

You Can Ask, But May Not Get His Address

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I had a neighbor who was a perfect gentleman. I met him quite by accident when a package was delivered to my back door instead of to his, and I took it over there. When I saw him I was so overwhelmed with emotion I had to hold on to the door to keep from falling over. He was the living image of my "dream man" — an image I had locked in my heart and mind for over 40 years. He must have noticed my heart on my sleeve, and cared a little, too, because he asked me if I wanted a glass of water. I never encouraged him, but we met at the village shopping center several times after that. We always exchanged warm greetings. Suddenly he moved. He didn't even say goodbye. I wonder if perhaps he lost interest in me because I had a WIN WITH NIXON flag in my window. Would it be too forward of me to ask at the Post Office if he left a forwarding address? I'd like to send him a Christmas card.

CAROLINE

DEAR CAROLINE: You may ask, but they might not be permitted to give it out. If you send him a Christmas card in care of his former address, it will be forwarded to him, I'm sure.

DEAR ABBY: I was delighted that someone finally brought to light the fact that improper music is being played at so many weddings. In the Protestant Episcopal Church, secular music is not permitted in the marriage liturgy as it is a religious rite. I personally have dissuaded couples from using Lohengrin's "Processional" because it is from an opera involving a heathen magician, and that marriage was a failure. The other, "The Recessional," is unacceptable because it is from another fantasy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," in which a lovely young girl is married to an — headed individual. No publicity, please. I am a clergyman.

NAMELESS

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend whom I like very much, but she has two spoiled children and she takes them with her wherever she goes. They are so impossible with their constant whining and nagging that I simply cannot stand them! How can I get this point over to her without losing her friendship? We get along wonderfully well when she leaves them home.

NERVOUS WRECK

DEAR NERVOUS: Most mothers accept any kind of criticism EXCEPT that which concerns their children. There is NO way to tell a mother that you "simply cannot stand her children" without losing her friendship.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Standards of beauty change. Today's exciting woman is alive to her fingertips. She simply radiates vitality and awareness, and these qualities blossom most luxuriously in the soil of fine health.

That extra measure of health, and the things you do to get and keep it, assure you a lovely figure and charming skin and hair. It also lights up your eyes.

Today we are so interested in eating for health and good looks and longevity. We realize that our diet plays a vital role. We also know that a deficient diet can pave the way for chronic disease and early aging.

Vitamins have a great influence on our health and appearance and energy. Let me review a few of the important ones today.

Vitamin A: The green and yellow vegetables are rich sources of this vitamin. Vitamin A is especially beneficial to the respiratory systef, the eyes and the complexion.

Vitamin B: This vitamin has been correlated with the health of the nervous system and there has been some evidence that it may play a part in avoiding grey hair. If you eat a well-balanced diet you will not be deficient. Whole grain products are spendid sources. Brewers yeast is a very rich source.

Vitamin C: This has a special and happy effect on the blood vessels. It also fights infection and increases energy. The citrus fruit juices are the richest sources. Tomatoes or tomato juice, cabbage and watercress, are also potent vitamin C foods.

Vitamin D: You must have this vitamin in order to properly utilize calcium and phosphorous. The riches sources are sunlight and cod-liver oil. Some milk is now reinforced with vitamin D.

Vitamin E: Spinach, celery and other vegetables and wheat, are good sources of vitamin E, which is sometimes called the "youth vitamin."

If you would like to have my leaflet "Vitamins in Your Diet" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 38 to Josephine Lowman in care of this, newspaper.

Hints For Woolens

Soaking is the secret of successfully washing woolens automatically. Experts recommend gentle agitation in cold water for one minute, then an eight-minute soak followed by another one-minute agitation.

A large sheet of plastic is an invaluable aid when washing woolens, knits and other stretchables. Just spread the plastic on a bed or the floor as a waterproof surface for drying.

Scene of the prenuptial party was the Embers Restaurant. White candles were used on the dining table with a centerpiece of lilies of the valley and cherry laurel leaves. Match favors inscribed with "Janie and Tommy" marked places for guests.

Others present included Miss Cheryl Mizell, Edwin Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. E. Lee Trichel, Miss Cheryl Saine, Wayne Verrett, Miss Linda Woods, John Yeldell, and Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Scott.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Standards of beauty change. Today's exciting woman is alive to her fingertips. She simply radiates vitality and awareness, and these qualities blossom most luxuriously in the soil of fine health.

That extra measure of health, and the things you do to get and keep it, assure you a lovely figure and charming skin and hair. It also lights up your eyes.

Today we are so interested in eating for health and good looks and longevity. We realize that our diet plays a vital role. We also know that a deficient diet can pave the way for chronic disease and early aging.

Vitamins have a great influence on our health and appearance and energy. Let me review a few of the important ones today.

Vitamin A: The green and yellow vegetables are rich sources of this vitamin. Vitamin A is especially beneficial to the respiratory systef, the eyes and the complexion.

Vitamin B: This vitamin has been correlated with the health of the nervous system and there has been some evidence that it may play a part in avoiding grey hair. If you eat a well-balanced diet you will not be deficient. Whole grain products are spendid sources. Brewers yeast is a very rich source.

Vitamin C: This has a special and happy effect on the blood vessels. It also fights infection and increases energy. The citrus fruit juices are the richest sources. Tomatoes or tomato juice, cabbage and watercress, are also potent vitamin C foods.

Vitamin D: You must have this vitamin in order to properly utilize calcium and phosphorous. The riches sources are sunlight and cod-liver oil. Some milk is now reinforced with vitamin D.

Vitamin E: Spinach, celery and other vegetables and wheat, are good sources of vitamin E, which is sometimes called the "youth vitamin."

If you would like to have my leaflet "Vitamins in Your Diet" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 38 to Josephine Lowman in care of this, newspaper.

Hints For Woolens

Soaking is the secret of successfully washing woolens automatically. Experts recommend gentle agitation in cold water for one minute, then an eight-minute soak followed by another one-minute agitation.

A large sheet of plastic is an invaluable aid when washing woolens, knits and other stretchables. Just spread the plastic on a bed or the floor as a waterproof surface for drying.

Does the parish school furnish cars to the principals of schools under its jurisdiction? If so, are these cars to be used for personal matters?

The school board does not furnish cars for any of the principals in the parish system, according to Milton Hall, superintendent of schools. Hall said, however, that the individual schools, in some instances, have purchased surplus, used cars with money on hand and the cars are to be used solely for school business — not personal. He emphasized that the cars are in no way connected with or financed by the school board.

What is meant when a diamond is described as triple A?

A local jeweler tells us that AAA is a grading of diamonds. He said that an AAA grading would mean that the diamond was of top quality in color, clarity and cut. He added, however, that the grading would depend on the man making the determination and not all jewelers would grade a diamond alike. He said the A ratings were more for the layman than the jeweler.

What is the law regarding spankings in school by teachers and what should a parent do to report an alleged whipping of her child by a teacher?

Again we referred to Milton Hall, superintendent of parish schools, who said that the law absolutely forbids corporal punishment in Louisiana schools. He said law permits expulsion or suspension of pupils (Act 206) but forbids whipping. He said that any parent with a complaint or a violation of this by a teacher should first report it to the school's principal and then to the superintendent.

If the city's water supply is so desperately low in Monroe, why hasn't the council taken steps to have use of water in lawn watering, etc., restricted legally?

Mayor W. L. Howard said the city commissioners have not been notified by the Utilities Commission that the situation is critical enough to warrant any such move. Mayor Howard said if and when the Utilities Commission makes a request for action on the part of the council, it will be considered.

Utilities Commission spokesmen indicated that they have no plans to ask for such action on the part of the council at this time.

Who were the parties involved in the famous American feud between the Hatfields and McCoys? Who were the Martins and the Coys?

The inter-family war mentioned occurred during Reconstruction, midway between the War Between the States and the Spanish-American War. The legendary bloody battle was between the Hatfield family in West Virginia and the McCoys of Kentucky. The Martins and Coys are the fictionalized families in a once popular folk ballad written to dramatize the famed feud.

The fight actually started when a Hatfield boy, Johnse, had an affair with a McCoy girl, Rose Anne. They were the children of the leaders of the two clans. Although this is generally conceded to be the precipitating incident to the great blood-letting, thre had been ill feelings between the two families for a long time. They lived across a small stream from one another and were in effect neighbors. Many court decisions and the complete annihilation of the families, plus the involvement of both states, accrued before the feud was decided and that was only in recent years.

A complete, factual history of the battle can be found in the public library. The book is "The Hatfields and The McCoys" by Virgin Carrington Jones, published by the University of North Carolina Press — 1948.

Has any consideration been given to using the water wells at Selman Field in the current Monroe water crisis?

Mayor Howard said that there are only two wells at Selman Field and they would do very little good in a critical water shortage. He said, however, if the need became great enough the wells would be pumped.

Can a poll commissioner wear reasonable identification of the candidates who selected them to work at the polls?

According to the state attorney general's office, the answer is yes as long as they do not attempt to influence the vote of any voter. R.S. 18:1534 was cited in giving the answer:

"The provisions hereof shall not be construed as prohibiting any duly appointed commissioner of election, or official watcher from remaining in and about the polling place in which he was selected to serve, nor shall any provision hereof prohibit any such election officials wearing badges identifying them with the political candidate or faction whom they were selected to represent under the election laws of this state. Provided, that such duly appointed election officials shall not in any manner attempt to influence any voter to vote for or against any candidate or proposition being voted on in the election being held in said polling place."

Once an election commissioner has been sworn in, can an alternate commissioner be called back during the course of the day to replace a commissioner or must he be replaced by a watcher? Further, is it possible for a commissioner who has already been sworn in to be replaced at all because of illness, his desire to quit his post or other reasons?

The attorney general said a commissioner once selected, or sworn, can be replaced because of illness or for valid reasons. At the time such a commissioner is to be relieved of his duties, an alternate commissioner for whom he was commissioned as alternate, if present, must be selected. But if not actually present, the place must be filled with an official watcher by the commissioners present. Such selection of a watcher must be made in alphabetical order, using the surname.

The statute quoted was R.S. 18:344:

"Should one or more but not all five of the commissioners be present at 5:30 o'clock a.m., he or they shall select the alternate commissioner present who has been commissioner to act as the alternate of the commissioner who has not appeared. Should any alternate commissioner fail to be present to fill the place of the commissioner for whom he was commissioned as alternate, the place of such commissioner shall be filled by an official watcher. The selection of the official watchers as commissioners shall be made in alphabetical order, using the surname of the official watchers present at the time of the selection and commencing with the letter "A". Should all of the commissioners fail to appear, the select on of commissioners present shall be made by the alternate commissioners present. An alternate commissioner or watcher thus chosen to act as commissioner shall take the oath and perform all of the duties of a commissioner in the same manner as if selected originally as commissioner. He shall have the same powers and receive the same remuneration as the originally selected commissioner."

On what day of the month was the third Saturday in May, 1918?

The perpetual calendar, in every issue of the World Almanac, may be consulted in determining any date desired from the birth of Christ to the year 2400 in the future.

Reference to that calendar showed May 1, 1918, to have been on a Wednesday, making May 4, the date of the first Saturday in May, 1918. The Second Saturday was May 11.

The answer to your question, therefore, is May 18, the date of the third Saturday in May, 1918.

How does the Ouachita Parish Police Jury justify to the taxpayers the expense of sending five delegates to the Hawaii convention of the National Association of County Officers? Will the two alternate delegates also be sent at public expense in addition to the five regular delegates? What is the estimated cost of the trip? What benefits will the public derive from having this number of delegates there? From what parish fund will the expenses be taken? On what date will jury members chosen in the coming election take office?

In answer to this question, Police Jury President L. B. Pettit indicated that jurymen "learn a lot" at the organization's annual national meetings and that they are "very valuable" for this reason. He said the 1964 meeting would be a Recreation Development Congress, from which a "better recreation program for he parish" might come.

As to the number of delegates going, Pettit pointed out a jury effort to give every member an opportunity to attend one national meeting during the four year term. That would be an average annual attendance of four members; one of four scheduled to make last year's trip to Denver, Colo., was unable to do so. Alternate delegates, he said, do not make the trip unless regular delegates are unable to do so. Cost of the trip per member could not be determined precisely. However, round trip plane fare per member, by special arrangement, has been set at $374 per person, which includes convention registration "and probably meals." Additional costs include lodging, estimated "conservatively" at $15 per night for four nights. Plane fare and lodging will be paid from the jury's general fund.

Any outside entertainment will be at the individual member's personal expense. If wives attend, that also will be at personal expense. Pettit stressed that no advance expense account checks would be issued and that the state Supervisor of Public Funds, who sets certain unspecified limitations on expenditures in this area, would approve all expenses before they are paid.

In answer to the last part of the question, the jury president noted that members elected in this year's primary and the general election will be sworn in during the latter part of next May at a call meeting. The last official regular meeting of the current jury will be on the second Wednesday in May.

PLOTTING STRATEGY AND TACTICS for postponing action in the "stacked" House Rules Committee on the "civil rights" bill are two of the South's most powerful Congressional fighters for the preservation of Constitutional government and the safeguarding of states' rights, Louisiana's Congressman Otto E. Passman (left) and Virginia's Howard W. Smith, the veteran chairman of the Committee. Congressman Passman explained that the procedure decided upon for opposing the bill at this stage was one of "stalling" in the Rules Committee, thereby delaying as long as possible the House floor debate and vote. He said that had the Committee not been "re-stacked" this year with "three more New Frontier liberals," when the membership was permanently increased from 12 to 15, it would have been "relatively easy" to block the "civil rights" legislation.

BY SALVATION ARMY

Aid Appeal Issued For Family Here

The Salvation Army is making an appeal to Twin City residents on behalf of a Monroe family of eight who lost all their possessions in a fire in the early hours of Thursday morning.

The fire destroyed the house and all belongings of the W. E. Smith family, who resided on the Malikowski Road on Monroe's south side.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Smith, the family consists of a 19-year-old son, his wife, also 19, their 14-month-old baby, and other children, Carrie, 18; Johnny, 15; and Charlotte 12.

Everything the family owned was lost in the blaze, except the refrigerator, which was in the repair shop.

According to the Orange Street Fire Station officials who answered the alarm between 2 and 3 a.m. Thursday, the home was beyond saving when they arrived.

The Smiths were in the process of buying this house.

Capt. Ronald Green of the Salvation Army reported that any donations for the family will be appreciated. Any items such as furniture or clothing are needed.

Capt. Green requested that anyone making donations to this family contact the Salvation Army office, telephone FA 5-1755. Any items given especially for this family will be so marked.

Salvation Army personnel will be available all day today to pick up any items that donors are unable to bring to the office.

City May Begin Using Ouachita Water Monday

The City of Monroe may begin Monday drawing 25 per cent of its water supply from the Ouachita River. However, Utilities Commission Manager French L. Smith said he would inspect the city's water source at Bayou DeSiard this morning to determine if Friday's rain had sufficient effect to delay the action.

Earlier, the manager had indicated the city would begin the blending of bayou and river water in a 25 per cent - 75 per cent ratio Monday morning.

Smith declined to speculate how much rise in the bayou's level would be required to forestall the mixing. "It would not have to rise too much, but I'll have to talk to the engineers Saturday morning to find out if the rain did enough good," he said.

"What we really need is several hours of good steady rain, not a sudden downpour. The banks at the bayou are so high that all the water that gets into the bayou is what falls into it."

Smith questioned harmful effects of the mixing on persons on low salt diets, a warning sounded a month ago by public health officials. "By using only 25 per cent river water, the salt content will hardly be noticeable," he said. "Besides, there's far less salt in the river now than there was years ago, when we had to go to the river nearly every summer, before sufficient lines were laid to the bayou."

Smith stressed that the city's water supply would continue to be laboratory - tested, undergoing the same "rigid standards of purity and non - contamination."

3 Presidents Shocked By JFK's Death

By United Press International

The nation's three living former presidents were grieved and shocked Friday over the assassination of President Kennedy.

Harry S. Truman, on whom an assassination attempt was made in 1950, said at his home in Independence, Mo., the President's death was a "tragedy."

"I am shocked beyond words at the tragedy that has happened to our country and to President Kennedy's family today," he said. "The President's death is a great personal loss to the country and to me. He was an able President, one the people loved and trusted."

Dwight D. Eisenhower, the slain President's predecessor in office, said in New York the assassination was a "despicable act."

"I share the sense of shock and dismay that all Americans feel at the despicable act that resulted in the death of our nation's president," he said as he stood red-eyed before newsmen. "Mrs. Eisenhower and I also join with all other citizens in expressing our personal grief and prayerful concern to Mrs. Kennedy and all other members of the family."

Herbert Hoover, who resides in the same New York hotel where Eisenhower was staying, said: "I am shocked and grieved to learn of President Kennedy's assassination. He loved America and has given his life for his country.

"I join our bereaved nation in heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Kennedy and their two children," the 89-year old Hoover said.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who had often opposed Kennedy politically, called the President's death "shocking and dreadful" and asked how "a thing like this could happen.

"The President's death is a profound loss to the nation and the Free World," Goldwater said. "He and I were personal friends. It is also a great loss to me. Mrs. Goldwater and I offer our heartfelt sympathies to Mrs. Kennedy and the President's family."

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York said the President's death is a "terrible tragedy for the nation and the world.

"May God grant strength and guidance to Lyndon Johnson as he assumes his grave responsibilities under the tragic circumstances. The prayers of all of us will be with him," Rockefeller said.

General of the Army Douglas MacArthur said Kennedy's death "kills something within me.

"I realize the utter futility of words at such a time, the 80-year old MacArthur said, "but the world of civilization shares the poignancy of this monumental tragedy. As a former comrade in arms, his death kills something within me."

"Terrible Tragedy" — Nixon

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said: "The assassination of the President is a terrible tragedy for the nation. Mrs. Nixon and I have sent a personal message expressing out sympathy to the members of the family in this hour of sorrow."

Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania said the assassination was a "hideous crime... which leaves the heart and soul of America lifeless and in sorrow. Pennsylvanians join all Americans in prayer for our President, his wife, and his family and for our nation."

United States Ambassador to the United Nations Adlai E. Stevenson was reported deeply shocked. Stevenson was attacked in Dallas last month by extreme right wing pickets after he delivered a U.N. Day speech.

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama and Gov. Ross R. Barnett of Mississippi, both political critics of the late President, joined in expressing their grief.

REP. PASSMAN, OTHERS

Congress Shocked By Assassination

WASHINGTON (Special) — U.S. Rep. Otto E. Passman of Monroe joined his colleagues Friday in expressing shock over the death of President Kennedy.

"I am deeply shocked and profoundly grieved by the death of our President," Passman said. "His assassination was a dastardly act. During this period of grave emergency, we must call upon Him who is on high to guide and strengthn us."

Passman added, "My fervent prayer is that our heavenly Father will comfort and sustain the members of the President's family."

Meantime, other members of the Congress reacted in much the same manner.

"My God . . . my God . . . what are we coming to," were the only words that Speaker John McCormack could utter when told that the 46-year-old President had been shot down in Dallas.

McCormack's dazed response was echoed throughout the tragic afternoon by other senators and House members who had served with the slain Chief Executive before he entered the White House.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield immediately summoned all senators to the floor for a special period of prayer while the President was dying. He called the slaying "not only a great tragedy for the nation but it is, I think, a mark against the respectability and responsibility of some of our citizens."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen on learning of the shooting could only exclaim: "Oh God. This is the most distressing thing that could ever happen."

After the President died, Dirksen could still barely summon words.

He called the crime "incredible" and told newsmen: "I'm a little bewildered as I know the nation and the whole world will be."

Of the assassin, Dirksen said "the gates of hell must have congealed inside him." He mourned Kennedy as the victim of "a violent and indescribable hate."

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, another who had served with Kennedy in the House and Senate, burst into tears when she was told the news while eating lunch.

There was anger against the perpetrator of the killing as well as mourning and eulogy for the dead President.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of the Senate's Southern bloc, called it "this dastrardly crime." He said: "The assassin's bullet has stricken a brilliant and dedicated statesman at the very height of his powers."

Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., recalled that earlier this fall he had spoken in New Orleans trying to "calm the drums of hate against the President of the United States."

Bitterly, Boggs declared: "The radicals and the haters in politics and elsewhere have had their way. They are the ones who really pulled the trigger that killed a great American. But they shall not prevail."

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck, branded the assassination "an unspeakable crime against all the people of this country."

"The world should know," he eulogized, "that in this hour of national tragedy, Americans stand together as one—shocked and grieved at this unbelievable news."

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., said every federal and state effort should be made to punish the guilty. The Negro congressman also said that "all Americans who have any sanity, any character, any religious beliefs, irrespective of color, political creed or religion, should now rally around Lyndon Johnson to try to lift America back to the level of prestige that has now been destroyed."

Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Calif., whose father was the last President to die while in office, said Kennedy would be remembered for "his willingness to battle for what he thought was right—such as civil rights—his faith in democracy and his desire to see it triumph."

Sen. Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla., also turned his thoughts to the new President. He said: "I am sure that the Congress... and all Americans will rally to the support of Lyndon Johnson as he assumes the lonely and heavy responsibilities of the presidency. May God grant him the wisdom and the strength to carry this awesome duty with courage and dignity."

Rep Bruce Alger, D-Tex., whose district contains downtown Dallas where the assassination occurred, had no immediate comment but later said: "No words can express our deep sorrow in this tragic hour. God alone can sustain us in our loss. Our hearts and prayers go out to Mrs. Kennedy and her children and to other member of the family."

Rep. Joe Pool, D-Tex., remarked: "There is agony in the hearts of all people of our land. The agony in the hearts of the people is stirred with revulsion. An animal lives among us in hideous madness."

And Senate Democratic Whip Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn., who contested the presidential primaries with Kennedy in 1960, said: "America has lost a great President. The world has lost a great leader. I have lost a good friend. What an incredible tragedy."

Mr. Editor... Tell Me, Please

If you have a question you want answered, write or call "Mr. Editor, Tell Me, Please" at the Morning World and News-Star. We'll be glad to get the information and pass it on to you each Saturday in this column.

Does the parish school furnish cars to the principals of schools under its jurisdiction? If so, are these cars to be used for personal matters?

The school board does not furnish cars for any of the principals in the parish system, according to Milton Hall, superintendent of schools. Hall said, however, that the individual schools, in some instances, have purchased surplus, used cars with money on hand and the cars are to be used solely for school business — not personal. He emphasized that the cars are in no way connected with or financed by the school board.

What is meant when a diamond is described as triple A?

A local jeweler tells us that AAA is a grading of diamonds. He said that an AAA grading would mean that the diamond was of top quality in color, clarity and cut. He added, however, that the grading would depend on the man making the determination and not all jewelers would grade a diamond alike. He said the A ratings were more for the layman than the jeweler.

What is the law regarding spankings in school by teachers and what should a parent do to report an alleged whipping of her child by a teacher?

Again we referred to Milton Hall, superintendent of parish schools, who said that the law absolutely forbids corporal punishment in Louisiana schools. He said law permits expulsion or suspension of pupils (Act 206) but forbids whipping. He said that any parent with a complaint or a violation of this by a teacher should first report it to the school's principal and then to the superintendent.

If the city's water supply is so desperately low in Monroe, why hasn't the council taken steps to have use of water in lawn watering, etc., restricted legally?

Mayor W. L. Howard said the city commissioners have not been notified by the Utilities Commission that the situation is critical enough to warrant any such move. Mayor Howard said if and when the Utilities Commission makes a request for action on the part of the council, it will be considered.

Utilities Commission spokesmen indicated that they have no plans to ask for such action on the part of the council at this time.

Who were the parties involved in the famous American feud between the Hatfields and McCoys? Who were the Martins and the Coys?

The inter-family war mentioned occurred during Reconstruction, midway between the War Between the States and the Spanish-American War. The legendary bloody battle was between the Hatfield family in West Virginia and the McCoys of Kentucky. The Martins and Coys are the fictionalized families in a once popular folk ballad written to dramatize the famed feud.

The fight actually started when a Hatfield boy, Johnse, had an affair with a McCoy girl, Rose Anne. They were the children of the leaders of the two clans. Although this is generally conceded to be the precipitating incident to the great blood-letting, thre had been ill feelings between the two families for a long time. They lived across a small stream from one another and were in effect neighbors. Many court decisions and the complete annihilation of the families, plus the involvement of both states, accrued before the feud was decided and that was only in recent years.

A complete, factual history of the battle can be found in the public library. The book is "The Hatfields and The McCoys" by Virgin Carrington Jones, published by the University of North Carolina Press — 1948.

Has any consideration been given to using the water wells at Selman Field in the current Monroe water crisis?

Mayor Howard said that there are only two wells at Selman Field and they would do very little good in a critical water shortage. He said, however, if the need became great enough the wells would be pumped.

Can a poll commissioner wear reasonable identification of the candidates who selected them to work at the polls?

According to the state attorney general's office, the answer is yes as long as they do not attempt to influence the vote of any voter. R.S. 18:1534 was cited in giving the answer:

"The provisions hereof shall not be construed as prohibiting any duly appointed commissioner of election, or official watcher from remaining in and about the polling place in which he was selected to serve, nor shall any provision hereof prohibit any such election officials wearing badges identifying them with the political candidate or faction whom they were selected to represent under the election laws of this state. Provided, that such duly appointed election officials shall not in any manner attempt to influence any voter to vote for or against any candidate or proposition being voted on in the election being held in said polling place."

Once an election commissioner has been sworn in, can an alternate commissioner be called back during the course of the day to replace a commissioner or must he be replaced by a watcher? Further, is it possible for a commissioner who has already been sworn in to be replaced at all because of illness, his desire to quit his post or other reasons?

The attorney general said a commissioner once selected, or sworn, can be replaced because of illness or for valid reasons. At the time such a commissioner is to be relieved of his duties, an alternate commissioner for whom he was commissioned as alternate, if present, must be selected. But if not actually present, the place must be filled with an official watcher by the commissioners present. Such selection of a watcher must be made in alphabetical order, using the surname.

"Should one or more but not all five of the commissioners be present at 5:30 o'clock a.m., he or they shall select the alternate commissioner present who has been commissioner to act as the alternate of the commissioner who has not appeared. Should any alternate commissioner fail to be present to fill the place of the commissioner for whom he was commissioned as alternate, the place of such commissioner shall be filled by an official watcher. The selection of the official watchers as commissioners shall be made in alphabetical order, using the surname of the official watchers present at the time of the selection and commencing with the letter "A". Should all of the commissioners fail to appear, the select on of commissioners present shall be made by the alternate commissioners present. An alternate commissioner or watcher thus chosen to act as commissioner shall take the oath and perform all of the duties of a commissioner in the same manner as if selected originally as commissioner. He shall have the same powers and receive the same remuneration as the originally selected commissioner."

On what day of the month was the third Saturday in May, 1918?

The perpetual calendar, in every issue of the World Almanac, may be consulted in determining any date desired from the birth of Christ to the year 2400 in the future.

Reference to that calendar showed May 1, 1918, to have been on a Wednesday, making May 4, the date of the first Saturday in May, 1918. The Second Saturday was May 11.

The answer to your question, therefore, is May 18, the date of the third Saturday in May, 1918.

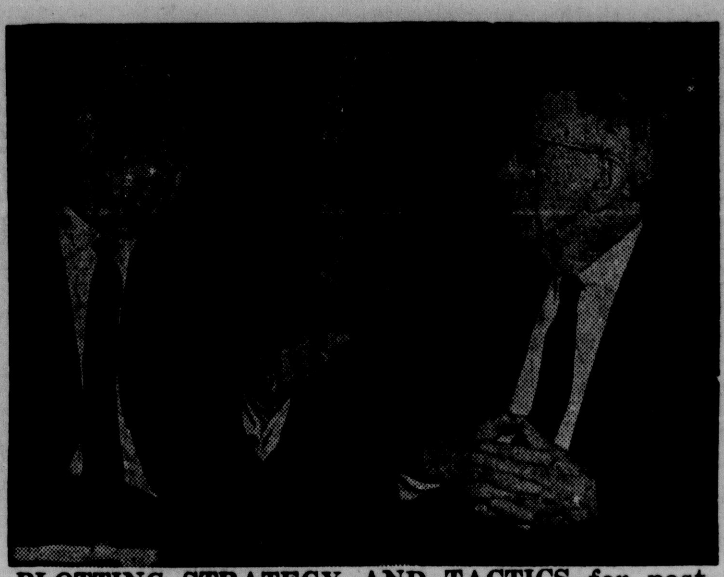
How does the Ouachita Parish Police Jury justify to the taxpayers the expense of sending five delegates to the Hawaii convention of the National Association of County Officers? Will the two alternate delegates also be sent at public expense in addition to the five regular delegates? What is the estimated cost of the trip? What benefits will the public derive from having this number of delegates there? From what parish fund will the expenses be taken? On what date will jury members chosen in the coming election take office?

In answer to this question, Police Jury President L. B. Pettit indicated that jurymen "learn a lot" at the organization's annual national meetings and that they are "very valuable" for this reason. He said the 1964 meeting would be a Recreation Development Congress, from which a "better recreation program for he parish" might come.

As to the number of delegates going, Pettit pointed out a jury effort to give every member an opportunity to attend one national meeting during the four year term. That would be an average annual attendance of four members; one of four scheduled to make last year's trip to Denver, Colo., was unable to do so. Alternate delegates, he said, do not make the trip unless regular delegates are unable to do so. Cost of the trip per member could not be determined precisely. However, round trip plane fare per member, by special arrangement, has been set at $374 per person, which includes convention registration "and probably meals." Additional costs include lodging, estimated "conservatively" at $15 per night for four nights. Plane fare and lodging will be paid from the jury's general fund.

Any outside entertainment will be at the individual member's personal expense. If wives attend, that also will be at personal expense. Pettit stressed that no advance expense account checks would be issued and that the state Supervisor of Public Funds, who sets certain unspecified limitations on expenditures in this area, would approve all expenses before they are paid.

In answer to the last part of the question, the jury president noted that members elected in this year's primary and the general election will be sworn in during the latter part of next May at a call meeting. The last official regular meeting of the current jury will be on the second Wednesday in May.



PLOTTING STRATEGY AND TACTICS for postponing action in the "stacked" House Rules Committee on the "civil rights" bill are two of the South's most powerful Congressional fighters for the preservation of Constitutional government and the safeguarding of states' rights, Louisiana's Congressman Otto E. Passman (left) and Virginia's Howard W. Smith, the veteran chairman of the Committee. Congressman Passman explained that the procedure decided upon for opposing the bill at this stage was one of "stalling" in the Rules Committee, thereby delaying as long as possible the House floor debate and vote. He said that had the Committee not been "re-stacked" this year with "three more New Frontier liberals," when the membership was permanently increased from 12 to 15, it would have been "relatively easy" to block the "civil rights" legislation.

Aid Appeal Issued For Family Here

The Salvation Army is making an appeal to Twin City residents on behalf of a Monroe family of eight who lost all their possessions in a fire in the early hours of Thursday morning.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Smith, the family consists of a 19-year-old son, his wife, also 19, their 14-month-old baby, and other children, Carrie, 18; Johnny, 15; and Charlotte 12.

Everything the family owned was lost in the blaze, except the refrigerator, which was in the repair shop.

According to the Orange Street Fire Station officials who answered the alarm between 2 and 3 a.m. Thursday, the home was beyond saving when they arrived.

The Smiths were in the process of buying this house.

Capt. Ronald Green of the Salvation Army reported that any donations for the family will be appreciated. Any items such as furniture or clothing are needed.

Capt. Green requested that anyone making donations to this family contact the Salvation Army office, telephone FA 5-1755. Any items given especially for this family will be so marked.

Salvation Army personnel will be available all day today to pick up any items that donors are unable to bring to the office.

City May Begin Using Ouachita Water Monday

The City of Monroe may begin Monday drawing 25 per cent of its water supply from the Ouachita River. However, Utilities Commission Manager French L. Smith said he would inspect the city's water source at Bayou DeSiard this morning to determine if Friday's rain had sufficient effect to delay the action.

Earlier, the manager had indicated the city would begin the blending of bayou and river water in a 25 per cent - 75 per cent ratio Monday morning.

Smith declined to speculate how much rise in the bayou's level would be required to forestall the mixing. "It would not have to rise too much, but I'll have to talk to the engineers Saturday morning to find out if the rain did enough good," he said.

"What we really need is several hours of good steady rain, not a sudden downpour. The banks at the bayou are so high that all the water that gets into the bayou is what falls into it."

Smith questioned harmful effects of the mixing on persons on low salt diets, a warning sounded a month ago by public health officials. "By using only 25 per cent river water, the salt content will hardly be noticeable," he said. "Besides, there's far less salt in the river now than there was years ago, when we had to go to the river nearly every summer, before sufficient lines were laid to the bayou."

Smith stressed that the city's water supply would continue to be laboratory - tested, undergoing the same "rigid standards of purity and non - contamination."

3 Presidents Shocked By JFK's Death

By United Press International

The nation's three living former presidents were grieved and shocked Friday over the assassination of President Kennedy.

Harry S. Truman, on whom an assassination attempt was made in 1950, said at his home in Independence, Mo., the President's death was a "tragedy."

"I am shocked beyond words at the tragedy that has happened to our country and to President Kennedy's family today," he said. "The President's death is a great personal loss to the country and to me. He was an able President, one the people loved and trusted."

Dwight D. Eisenhower, the slain President's predecessor in office, said in New York the assassination was a "despicable act."

"I share the sense of shock and dismay that all Americans feel at the despicable act that resulted in the death of our nation's president," he said as he stood red-eyed before newsmen. "Mrs. Eisenhower and I also join with all other citizens in expressing our personal grief and prayerful concern to Mrs. Kennedy and all other members of the family."

Herbert Hoover, who resides in the same New York hotel where Eisenhower was staying, said: "I am shocked and grieved to learn of President Kennedy's assassination. He loved America and has given his life for his country.

"I join our bereaved nation in heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Kennedy and their two children," the 89-year old Hoover said.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who had often opposed Kennedy politically, called the President's death "shocking and dreadful" and asked how "a thing like this could happen.

"The President's death is a profound loss to the nation and the Free World," Goldwater said. "He and I were personal friends. It is also a great loss to me. Mrs. Goldwater and I offer our heartfelt sympathies to Mrs. Kennedy and the President's family."

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York said the President's death is a "terrible tragedy for the nation and the world.

"May God grant strength and guidance to Lyndon Johnson as he assumes his grave responsibilities under the tragic circumstances. The prayers of all of us will be with him," Rockefeller said.

General of the Army Douglas MacArthur said Kennedy's death "kills something within me.

"I realize the utter futility of words at such a time, the 80-year old MacArthur said, "but the world of civilization shares the poignancy of this monumental tragedy. As a former comrade in arms, his death kills something within me."

"Terrible Tragedy" — Nixon

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said: "The assassination of the President is a terrible tragedy for the nation. Mrs. Nixon and I have sent a personal message expressing out sympathy to the members of the family in this hour of sorrow."

Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania said the assassination was a "hideous crime. . . which leaves the heart and soul of America lifeless and in sorrow. Pennsylvanians join all Americans in prayer for our President, his wife, and his family and for our nation."

United States Ambassador to the United Nations Adlai E. Stevenson was reported deeply shocked. Stevenson was attacked in Dallas last month by extreme right wing pickets after he delivered a U.N. Day speech.

PRESIDENT'S TENURE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John F. Kennedy served as President of the United States for two years, ten months and two days before he was assassinated.

REP. PASSMAN, OTHERS

Congress Shocked By Assassination

WASHINGTON (Special) — U.S. Rep. Otto E. Passman of Monroe joined his colleagues Friday in expressing shock over the death of President Kennedy.

"I am deeply shocked and profoundly grieved by the death of our President," Passman said. "His assassination was a dastardly act. During this period of grave emergency, we must call upon Him who is on high to guide and strengthn us."

Passman added, "My fervent prayer is that our heavenly Father will comfort and sustain the members of the President's family."

Meantime, other members of the Congress reacted in much the same manner.

"My God . . . my God . . . what are we coming to," were the only words that Speaker John McCormack could utter when told that the 46-year-old President had been shot down in Dallas.

McCormack's dazed response was echoed throughout the tragic afternoon by other senators and House members who had served with the slain Chief Executive before he entered the White House.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield immediately summoned all senators to the floor for a special period of prayer while the President was dying. He called the slaying "not only a great tragedy for the nation but it is, I think, a mark against the respectability and responsibility of some of our citizens."

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen on learning of the shooting could only exclaim: "Oh God. This is the most distressing thing that could ever happen."

After the President died, Dirksen could still barely summon words.

He called the crime "incredible" and told newsmen: "I'm a little bewildered as I know the nation and the whole world will be."

Of the assassin, Dirksen said "the gates of hell must have congealed inside him." He mourned Kennedy as the victim of "a violent and indescribable hate."

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, another who had served with Kennedy in the House and Senate, burst into tears when she was told the news while eating lunch.

There was anger against the perpetrator of the killing as well as mourning and eulogy for the dead President.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of the Senate's Southern bloc, called it "this dastrardly crime." He said: "The assassin's bullet has stricken a brilliant and dedicated statesman at the very height of his powers."

Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., recalled that earlier this fall he had spoken in New Orleans trying to "calm the drums of hate against the President of the United States."

Bitterly, Boggs declared: "The radicals and the haters in politics and elsewhere have had their way. They are the ones who really pulled the trigger that killed a great American. But they shall not prevail."

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck, branded the assassination "an unspeakable crime against all the people of this country."

"The world should know," he eulogized, "that in this hour of national tragedy, Americans stand together as one—shocked and grieved at this unbelievable news."

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., said every federal and state effort should be made to punish the guilty. The Negro congressman also said that "all Americans who have any sanity, any character, any religious beliefs, irrespective of color, political creed or religion, should now rally around Lyndon Johnson to try to lift America back to the level of prestige that has now been destroyed."

Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Calif., whose father was the last President to die while in office, said Kennedy would be remembered for "his willingness to battle for what he thought was right—such as civil rights—his faith in democracy and his desire to see it triumph."

And Senate Democratic Whip Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn., who contested the presidential primaries with Kennedy in 1960, said: "America has lost a great President. The world has lost a great leader. I have lost a good friend. What an incredible tragedy."

CLOSE WORKING TEAM

JFK Held Johnson In High Regards

WASHINGTON AP — Lyndon B. Johnson, coming into the presidency on the assassination death Friday of John F. Kennedy had Kennedy's high esteem and confidence.

Johnson tried in 1960 for the presidential nomination. When Kennedy won, Johnson accepted second place on the Democratic ticket.

Accepting, too, the Kennedy leadership he became extraordinarily active in behalf of the Kennedy policies. This activity included work for the civil rights program Kennedy laid down-something that lessened Johnson's popularity in the South-and there was some talk this year that Johnson might be dumped from the ticket next year.

But on Oct. 31, Kennedy was asked whether, if he ran next year, he would again want Johnson as the vice-presidential nominee, and whether he expected Johnson to be on the ticket.

"Yes, to both of these questions. That is correct," Kennedy replied.

Johnson is a former Democratic senator from Texas, best known for the vigorous, aggressive way he handled the job of Democratic leader of the Senate.

What direction may the Johnson administration take?

In one of the numerous speeches he made in recent years-this one in Washington on April 26-Johnson offered a broad view of what he thought the Democrats should attempt in next year's presidential campaign and thereafter.

He said the Democrats must demonstrate that they are a party of action, offering solutions for the new kinds of problems brought about by population increases and concentration, and by the lengthening of life expectancy.

"We have new capacties. We have new potentials. We stand at the edge of a new era of human progress in our own country and in the world," he said.

"At this decisive moment of opportunity, the party of the opposition offers only the slogan 'America cannot do it-America cannot afford the programs that we need.' "

He called for a full and enthusiastic support of Democrats everywhere for Kennedy's foreign and domestic programs.

Shocked Family Of President Go To Parents' Side

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) —Members of the shocked, grief-stricken family of President Kennedy headed for this Cape Cod town Friday night to join the President's parents at their seaside home.

Within hours after the tragic news, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the President's youngest brother, and his sister Eunice—Mrs. Sargent Schriver—arrived by plane to be at their parents' side.

Reported en route were Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, and his sisters.

In Boston, the President's maternal grandmother, Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, who only three weeks ago observed her 98th birthday, knew nothing of the death of her illustrious grandson.

The elderly woman received a gay bouquet from the President and First Lady on her birthday three weeks ago.

Along the streets of Hyannis Port, where the President has been a familiar figure since boyhood, news of his death was received with stunned silence in most cases.

With the news, state and local police immediately barred all unauthorized persons from the Scudder Avenue area where the several Kennedy homes are situated.

Ironically, the President and all the many children of the Kennedy clan had planned to return to Hyannis Port next Thursday for the traditional family Thanksgiving Day gathering.

Jackie Whisks Children Away Into Seclusion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The children of slain President Kennedy were taken from the White House Friday night, apparently to spend the night in a secluded hide-away.

Caroline, who will be six on Wednesday, and John Jr., who becomes three on Monday, were whisked out of the White House at 5:30 p.m. EST by their nurse, Maude Shaw.

About three hours later, it was announced that Mrs. Kennedy would return to the White House to spend the night.

She was riding in the auto when her husband was shot down in Dallas and had accompanied the body back to Washington and to Bethesda Hospital where it was held overnight.

Throughout the afternoon and mid-evening, the two Kennedy children were unaware that their father was dead.

Acting press secretary Andrew J. Hatcher declined to divulge the whereabouts of either Mrs. Kennedy, Caroline or John Jr.

One of Mrs. Kennedy's secretaries said she did not know where the children were to spend the night. Mrs. Kennedy's stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincolss, have a home in the Washington area.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

CLOSE WORKING TEAM

JFK Held Johnson In High Regards

WASHINGTON AP — Lyndon B. Johnson, coming into the presidency on the assassination death Friday of John F. Kennedy had Kennedy's high esteem and confidence.

Johnson tried in 1960 for the presidential nomination. When Kennedy won, Johnson accepted second place on the Democratic ticket.

Accepting, too, the Kennedy leadership he became extraordinarily active in behalf of the Kennedy policies. This activity included work for the civil rights program Kennedy laid down-something that lessened Johnson's popularity in the South-and there was some talk this year that Johnson might be dumped from the ticket next year.

But on Oct. 31, Kennedy was asked whether, if he ran next year, he would again want Johnson as the vice-presidential nominee, and whether he expected Johnson to be on the ticket.

"Yes, to both of these questions. That is correct," Kennedy replied.

Johnson is a former Democratic senator from Texas, best known for the vigorous, aggressive way he handled the job of Democratic leader of the Senate.

What direction may the Johnson administration take?

In one of the numerous speeches he made in recent years-this one in Washington on April 26-Johnson offered a broad view of what he thought the Democrats should attempt in next year's presidential campaign and thereafter.

He said the Democrats must demonstrate that they are a party of action, offering solutions for the new kinds of problems brought about by population increases and concentration, and by the lengthening of life expectancy.

"We have new capacties. We have new potentials. We stand at the edge of a new era of human progress in our own country and in the world," he said.

"At this decisive moment of opportunity, the party of the opposition offers only the slogan 'America cannot do it-America cannot afford the programs that we need.' "

He called for a full and enthusiastic support of Democrats everywhere for Kennedy's foreign and domestic programs.

Shocked Family Of President Go To Parents' Side

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) —Members of the shocked, grief-stricken family of President Kennedy headed for this Cape Cod town Friday night to join the President's parents at their seaside home.

There was no word on her reaction but she quickly drove home to be with her husband, former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

The elder Kennedy, 75, is a semi-invalid as a result of a stroke over two years ago.

Within hours after the tragic news, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the President's youngest brother, and his sister Eunice—Mrs. Sargent Schriver—arrived by plane to be at their parents' side.

In Boston, the President's maternal grandmother, Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, who only three weeks ago observed her 98th birthday, knew nothing of the death of her illustrious grandson.

Her son, Thomas A. Fitzgerald, with whom she lives, sadly asked newsmen: "What would be the purpose of telling her at her age?"

The elderly woman received a gay bouquet from the President and First Lady on her birthday three weeks ago.

Along the streets of Hyannis Port, where the President has been a familiar figure since boyhood, news of his death was received with stunned silence in most cases.

With the news, state and local police immediately barred all unauthorized persons from the Scudder Avenue area where the several Kennedy homes are situated.

Ironically, the President and all the many children of the Kennedy clan had planned to return to Hyannis Port next Thursday for the traditional family Thanksgiving Day gathering.

Jackie Whisks Children Away Into Seclusion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The children of slain President Kennedy were taken from the White House Friday night, apparently to spend the night in a secluded hide-away.

Caroline, who will be six on Wednesday, and John Jr., who becomes three on Monday, were whisked out of the White House at 5:30 p.m. EST by their nurse, Maude Shaw.

About three hours later, it was announced that Mrs. Kennedy would return to the White House to spend the night.

She was riding in the auto when her husband was shot down in Dallas and had accompanied the body back to Washington and to Bethesda Hospital where it was held overnight.

Throughout the afternoon and mid-evening, the two Kennedy children were unaware that their father was dead.

Acting press secretary Andrew J. Hatcher declined to divulge the whereabouts of either Mrs. Kennedy, Caroline or John Jr.

One of Mrs. Kennedy's secretaries said she did not know where the children were to spend the night. Mrs. Kennedy's stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincolss, have a home in the Washington area.

Suspect Held As Assassin Born In N.O.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police records here show that Lee H. Oswald, being questioned in the assassination of President Kennedy, gave his birthplace as New Orleans when arrested last summer.

He was arrested in August during a melee that developed after he started passing out pro-Castro leaflets on Canal Street.

He was convicted of disturbing the peace and fined $10.

At the time of his arrest, he listed himself as a native of New Orleans.

He listed his occupation with the police as a mechanic.

When he first came to New Orleans in mid-summer he lived a few days with an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Murrett.

"He just stayed a few days,'" said Murrett, a steamship clerk. "We hadn't seen him in years, and haven't seen or heard from him since he left."

Murrett said Oswald told him he was looking for a job, and left after telling them he had found one.

"I very seldom saw him," Murrett said.

After leaving the Murretts, he moved into a one-bedroom aptrtment with his wife and a child—and promptly got himself in trouble with his landlady.

He began plastering the porch of the house with propaganda leaflets, said Mrs. J. J. Garner, his landlady. She ordered him to take them down.

Then there were other problems.

"We always had to go and ask him for the rent," Mrs. Garner said, "and when he left, he owed me for about 15 days."

He apparently lived in New Orleans about two months—July and August.

While living in the apartment, he was arrested on the disturbing the peace charge growing out of the pro-Castro leaflets he was handing out.

Bringuier, who's lived in New Orleans since February 1961, is a delegate of the Miami-based anti-Castro organization.

He said Oswald offered his services as an ex-Marine in training Cubans for an invasion of their homeland.

Bringuier said he decided after the incident with the pamphlets that Oswald was trying to infiltrate the directorate.

"I was suspicious of him from the start," Bringuier said. "But, frankly, I thought he might be an agent from the FBI or the CIA trying to find out what we might be up to.

"Then, a few days later, I encountered him on Canal Street distributing 'Vive Fidel Castro' literature."

Long Affirms Kennedy's Death 'Not In Vain'

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Sen. Russell Long, D-La., speaking "as one who saw his father die of an assassin's bullet," said Friday that President Kennedy "did not die in vain."

"None of us is blessed with the wisdom to understand why the Almighty wanted it this way," he said in a statement, "but we should live in faith that John F. Kennedy did not die in vail."

Long's father, Louisiana political boss Huey Long, was shot to death in a corridor of the Louisiana capitol in September 1935.

Long said:

"Americans should realize that it is Almighty God who in His infinite wisdom determines the outcome of such events rather than the unworthy person who appears to be the immediate cause."

Workman Tells JFK's Parents Of Son's Death

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—A workman told the President's father and mother in Hyannis Port that the President had been shot while visiting Dallas, Tex. The report came before knowledge of the President's death.

Reports were that neither the President's father, former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy nor the President's mother commented.

The President's father is a semi-invalid as the result of a stroke several years ago. He was napping when the word came.

The President had planned to spend the Thanksgiving holiday at Hyannis Port next week.

JFK Didn't Think Of Assassination

"I don't think the thought of assassination ever occurred to him," said John Iles, a Shreveport businessman who was President Kennedy's friend since their Navy days together in World War II.

"He (Kennedy) thought everybody liked him," Iles added. "I know he didn't think anyone hated him enough to kill him."

Iles, who is in the metal culvert business in the Monroe area, was at his Shreveport home Friday night after the President was assassinated in Dallas earlier in the day.

"We roomed together at New Port, R.I. for about 90 days when we were in the Navy, and later I commanded the PT - 105 and Jack was the commander of PT-109," Iles explained.

"Being in the same squadron, we were together during the war, but I wasn't out the night his boat was rammed," Iles elaborated, commenting on the sinking of the PT-109.

Iles said after the war he and Kennedy corresponded and visited in Washington and Louisiana. When Kennedy ran for President, Iles stumped for him. One of his speeches was delivered in Monroe at a fund - raising dinner.

Asked about his last visit with the President, Iles replied, "I saw him right after Labor Day. I visited with him for about a half hour in the White House.

"During our visit, we talked about many things, ranging from the test ban treaty to civil rights. During the conversation, the President — I always greeted him with Mr. President, then we were on a first-name basis-asked me if the people of the South thought he and Bobby sat up nights making plans to harass the South.

"His statement indicated to me that he loved the South and that he wished the people of the South could understand his position better. I know he was fond of the South, because, through people like me, he was awfully close to the southern boys in our outfit."

Iles repeated, "I don't think assassination ever occured to him. I just thought it was terrible."

Monroe Man Shot; Police Jail Suspect

William Holman, who lives in the Tourist Hotel, was treated at Charity Hospital for a gunshot wound of the right arm, and his condition was reported as "good." Police booked R. E. Cupit, 55, of the Robert E. Lee Hotel, for aggravated battery after he allegedly shot Holman in a disagreement at Lottie and Lulu's Cafe, 122 Sixth St. The incident occurred at 1:55 p.m., and police were still investigating the shooting late Friday.

Meanwhile, Monroe police were probing the report that $250 worth of weight lifting equipment had been stolen out of the YMCA gymnasium at 1809 Glenmar Ave. George Smith, a YMCA employee, told police the 574 pounds of equipment has been stolen during the last six to eight months, but the theft wasn't reported until Friday afternoon.

The theft of two gallons of wine, valued at $7.82, from Collins Five-Points Pharmacy was also being investigated by Monroe officers. J. W. Collins, owner of the store, reported that the wine was taken from his place of business around 12-noon Thursday by two men while he was waiting on another customer.

A 26-year-old Shreveport man, William R. Self, was booked for theft by check in Monroe Friday. He was taken into custody by Bossier City authorities for Monroe police, and transferred here where he was later released in lieu of a $200 bond.

Late Friday afternoon, Monroe police booked a 37-year-old man, Willis L. Kirby, 609 Bres Ave., for theft by check in the amount of $47. He was released under a $200 bond.

Monroe officers also reported that a three-year-old Negro child suffered abrasions and bruises when knocked down by a car in front of 402 Cedar Street Friday. The child, Annie Lee Allen, daughter of Louise Allen, 407 Cedar St., ran into the path of a car driven north on Cedar by James F. Walden, 23, of 405 N. 8th St., West Monroe. No charges were filed in the incident by police, who termed the accident unavoidable.

SMU Student Worried About JFK In Dallas

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A student at Southern Methodist University in Dallas noted in a letter to his mother Wednesday that President Kennedy was coming to the city, and wrote prophetically:

"Ten to one he'll be assassinated by some of these Dallas maniacs!"

The letter, received by Mrs. R. L. Rose of New Haven Thursday from her son, Robert, added:

"After the Stevenson incident I'm seriously worried about his safety!"

Rose was referring to a recent incident in Dallas when Adlai Stevenson, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, was spat on and hit by a placard carried by a picket.

JFK Didn't Think Of Assassination

"I don't think the thought of assassination ever occurred to him," said John Iles, a Shreveport businessman who was President Kennedy's friend since their Navy days together in World War II.

"He (Kennedy) thought everybody liked him," Iles added. "I know he didn't think anyone hated him enough to kill him."

Iles, who is in the metal culvert business in the Monroe area, was at his Shreveport home Friday night after the President was assassinated in Dallas earlier in the day.

"We roomed together at New Port, R.I. for about 90 days when we were in the Navy, and later I commanded the PT - 105 and Jack was the commander of PT-109," Iles explained.

"Being in the same squadron, we were together during the war, but I wasn't out the night his boat was rammed," Iles elaborated, commenting on the sinking of the PT-109.

Iles said after the war he and Kennedy corresponded and visited in Washington and Louisiana. When Kennedy ran for President, Iles stumped for him. One of his speeches was delivered in Monroe at a fund - raising dinner.

Asked about his last visit with the President, Iles replied, "I saw him right after Labor Day. I visited with him for about a half hour in the White House.

"During our visit, we talked about many things, ranging from the test ban treaty to civil rights. During the conversation, the President — I always greeted him with Mr. President, then we were on a first-name basis-asked me if the people of the South thought he and Bobby sat up nights making plans to harass the South.

"His statement indicated to me that he loved the South and that he wished the people of the South could understand his position better. I know he was fond of the South, because, through people like me, he was awfully close to the southern boys in our outfit."

Iles repeated, "I don't think assassination ever occured to him. I just thought it was terrible."

Monroe Man Shot; Police Jail Suspect

A 47-year-old Monroe man was shot during a fracas in a downtown cafe Friday afternoon, and Monroe police are holding a man in the city jail on charges of aggravated battery in connection with the incident.

William Holman, who lives in the Tourist Hotel, was treated at Charity Hospital for a gunshot wound of the right arm, and his condition was reported as "good." Police booked R. E. Cupit, 55, of the Robert E. Lee Hotel, for aggravated battery after he allegedly shot Holman in a disagreement at Lottie and Lulu's Cafe, 122 Sixth St. The incident occurred at 1:55 p.m., and police were still investigating the shooting late Friday.

Meanwhile, Monroe police were probing the report that $250 worth of weight lifting equipment had been stolen out of the YMCA gymnasium at 1809 Glenmar Ave. George Smith, a YMCA employee, told police the 574 pounds of equipment has been stolen during the last six to eight months, but the theft wasn't reported until Friday afternoon.

The theft of two gallons of wine, valued at $7.82, from Collins Five-Points Pharmacy was also being investigated by Monroe officers. J. W. Collins, owner of the store, reported that the wine was taken from his place of business around 12-noon Thursday by two men while he was waiting on another customer.

A 26-year-old Shreveport man, William R. Self, was booked for theft by check in Monroe Friday. He was taken into custody by Bossier City authorities for Monroe police, and transferred here where he was later released in lieu of a $200 bond.

West Monroe police booked a 30-year-old Farmerville man, Richard N. Kendrick, for driving while under the infuence of intoxicating beverages early Friday. Kendrick was taken into custody on Bridge Street at 1:05 a.m.

Late Friday afternoon, Monroe police booked a 37-year-old man, Willis L. Kirby, 609 Bres Ave., for theft by check in the amount of $47. He was released under a $200 bond.

Monroe officers also reported that a three-year-old Negro child suffered abrasions and bruises when knocked down by a car in front of 402 Cedar Street Friday. The child, Annie Lee Allen, daughter of Louise Allen, 407 Cedar St., ran into the path of a car driven north on Cedar by James F. Walden, 23, of 405 N. 8th St., West Monroe. No charges were filed in the incident by police, who termed the accident unavoidable.

SMU Student Worried About JFK In Dallas

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A student at Southern Methodist University in Dallas noted in a letter to his mother Wednesday that President Kennedy was coming to the city, and wrote prophetically:

"Ten to one he'll be assassinated by some of these Dallas maniacs!"

The letter, received by Mrs. R. L. Rose of New Haven Thursday from her son, Robert, added:

"After the Stevenson incident I'm seriously worried about his safety!"

Rose was referring to a recent incident in Dallas when Adlai Stevenson, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, was spat on and hit by a placard carried by a picket.

It left most persons with no thirst for beer.

"Everyone just stopped drinking when it was announced," said Benda Harris of the White Swan.

Swedish Premier Tage Erlander in a radio speech said Kennedy's death was "a terrible disaster, not only for the American people but for all of us who believe in the ideals he fought for and gave his life for."

Jackie Noted Friendliness Before Shots

DALLAS (UPI)—Just a little while before he was assassinated, Jacqueline Kennedy turned to her husband and said, "You can't say Dallas wasn't friendly to you."

Mrs. John Connally, wife of the wounded Texas governor, said Mrs. Kennedy turned to her husband and made the remark as they rode past cheering crowds in Dallas.

The roses remained in the blood-spattered car outside the hospital as her husband was dying.

She clutched her husband to her as he slumped forward in the seat of the car. She knelt on the floor over him during the high-speed ride to Parkland Hospital's emergency ward. She helped lift her dying husband onto a stretcher.

She was taken inside the hospital and whisked from view.

Physicians attending the President said they did not take time to notice whether she or any members of the White House staff were with the President when he died.

Members of the White House party said Mrs. Knnedy's first thought then was to be with her children, Caroline, 5, and John Jr., who will be 3 next week.

She was taken to Dallas Love Field. There, on the plane that carried her to what had been a personal triumph for her in Texas, she joined witnesses as Lyndon B. Johnson was sworn into office as chief executive.

Jackie Noted Friendliness Before Shots

DALLAS (UPI)—Just a little while before he was assassinated, Jacqueline Kennedy turned to her husband and said, "You can't say Dallas wasn't friendly to you."

Mrs. John Connally, wife of the wounded Texas governor, said Mrs. Kennedy turned to her husband and made the remark as they rode past cheering crowds in Dallas.

The roses remained in the blood-spattered car outside the hospital as her husband was dying.

She clutched her husband to her as he slumped forward in the seat of the car. She knelt on the floor over him during the high-speed ride to Parkland Hospital's emergency ward. She helped lift her dying husband onto a stretcher.

She was taken inside the hospital and whisked from view.

Physicians attending the President said they did not take time to notice whether she or any members of the White House staff were with the President when he died.

Members of the White House party said Mrs. Knnedy's first thought then was to be with her children, Caroline, 5, and John Jr., who will be 3 next week.

She was taken to Dallas Love Field. There, on the plane that carried her to what had been a personal triumph for her in Texas, she joined witnesses as Lyndon B. Johnson was sworn into office as chief executive.

Cold Front To Move In After Rains

After a run of unseasonably mild temperatures, coupled with a tornado scare, normal weather is slated to return to Northeast Louisiana and the Twin Cities today as a rapidly moving cold front enters the area southward from the great plains.

Friday's tornado warning resulted from capricious weather conditions that swept the mid-South, dumping .43 inches of water here by torrential rains accompanied by 33 miles-per-hour winds.

No damage was reported by the near gale force winds in Northeast Louisiana. Near Vivian, however, a community about 30 miles north of Shreveport in the northwestern part of the state, a tornado was reported to have cleared a 300-yard path. Two other twisters in the Shreveport area also did some property damage but as with the one at Vivian no injuries were reported.

The .43 of an inch of rain Friday was the heaviest single downpour for the month, bringing the total amount recorded for November to .95 of an inch.

The forecast for today calls for partly cloudy skies with declining temperatures through tonight. No rain is expected. Today's high will be between 54 and 58 degrees and the low tonight will range from 30 to 35 degrees. Friday's high was recorded at 78 degrees and the low at 60.

Wins will be from the north today with the velocity ranging from 15 to 25 m.p.h.

29 More Cast Absentee Votes Here On Friday

Ouachita Parish absentee voting picked up slightly during the past two days, bringing the total as of Friday afternoon up to 103.

Friday's balloting was the highest for one day, as 29 persons voted early. On Thursday 20 citizens filed absentee votes.

The Clerk of Court's office in the basement of the courthouse will be open from 8 a.m. until noon today. Regular office hours of 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. will be observed next week with the exception of Thanksgiving Day, when the office will be closed.

Saturday, Nov. 30 is the last day to vote absentee in the Dec. 7 Democratic primary. The doors will be closed at noon on that date, announce courthouse officials, and no more applicants will be accepted.

To avoid last-minute waiting and confusion, clerks continue to encourage voters to file their absentee ballots as early as possible.

Crowds numbering up to 300 are expected to take advantage of the substitute voting during the coming week.

JFK Slaying Halts Market

Stock exchanges and commodity markets closed early.

Banks, Madison Avenue advertising agencies and other businesses shut their doors and sent shocked employes spilling into quickly emptying streets.

News offices were swamped with announcements of cancellations of business events.

News of the shooting threw the trading floor of the New York Stock Exchange into a frenzy.

"It was absolute turmoil," said an exchange official.

"I never saw anything like it. The board was going crazy and people were running around. They're not supposed to run but they were."

It was worse than the May, 1962, crash, said floor workers.

At 2:10 p.m.—40 minutes after first word of the shooting—the ticker tape flashed: "Market closed." The closing was ordered by the board of governors.

The exchange said:

"It was the opinion of the board that the market would reflect values more realistically after the public had an opportunity to appraise the effect of this great national and international tragedy."

Keith Funston, exchange president, said the closing was necessary because of a heavy flood of orders that accumulated in minutes.

In 40 minutes stock prices had gone into a nosedive in extremely heavy trading.

At the 2:10 p.m. close the ticker tape trailed floor transactions by 27 minutes. The normal closing time is 3:30 p.m.

This was the first time that the New York exchange had closed early since Aug. 4, 1933, when gas fumes accumulated on the trading floor.

The American, Midwest and Pacific, Coast exchanges quickly followed the Big Board's action.

In Canada, the Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver stock exchanges also closed early.

Funston in a statement said: "The death of our President by assassination is a great tragedy to the nation. I know I speak for every member of the exchange community in expressing our deep sense of personal loss. Our heartfelt sympathies are extended to Mrs. Kennedy and members of the family."

Many business houses shut their doors and sent employes home. Normally busy streets were virtually deserted.

"The entire banking community was so stunned by the news that there was no announcement of an early closing," said a spokesman for First National City Bank of New York.

Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) closed its offices in the New York area. Humble Oil Co. closed nationwide immediately after the President's death.

A quick sampling of business leaders indicated the consensus was that the assassination of the President would bring a lull of perhaps several weeks in business but would not result in a slump.

Gen. Lucius Clay, former Allied Supreme Commander and now a partner in the investing banking firm of Lehman Brothers, and Funston were having lunch when they heard of the shooting.

"I rather think there would be an immediate depressing effect on the market," Clay said. "However, I think, firm underlying factors will carry it through this critical period."

W. P. Gullander, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said, "The President's death is a terrifying tragedy for all Americans. Every citizen must be shocked by the consequences of violent action which has no place in our American way of life."

Two Are Fined By City Judge In Theft Cases

Two Negroes were fined $200 each in Monroe city court Friday for theft while three counts of theft by check against a Monroe man were nolle prossed.

Negro Felix Little, 3511 Pippin St., was fined $200 and costs of court for theft of pecans, while Mildred Jean Wallace, 1906 Morton St., was fined the same amount for theft of a $25-radio. Three counts of theft by check against Willie H. Lawrence, 1711 S. 5th St., were nolle prossed when he made restitution of the amounts involved and paid court costs.

Judge W. M. Harper also nolle prossed counts of trespassing and damage to property against William Howard Thomas, Sterlington Negro. Another Negro, Solomon King, 3309 Church St., was fined $350 and costs of court for aggravated battery. Charges of simple battery, disturbing the peace and trespassing against Louise Holloway, Rt. 1, Box 172, Monroe, were nolle prossed. However, Ivey A. Petty, 524 Harrison St., was fined $30 for simple battery.

Four reckless driving counts handled include those against Key David McMorrain, Sr., Jacksonville, Fla.; $40; Gerald Reeves, 1301 N. 4th St., $40; Thelma E. Strahan, 721 Bayou Shore Dr., $40; and William Robertson, 1100 Columbia Ave., $30 and costs. A charge of leaving the scene of an accident without stopping to render aid and information against Robertson was nolle prossed. Two others fined on speeding counts include Stephen Martin Gibson Jr., 206 Walton St., Monroe, 13; and Willie Young, 507 Jack McEnery St., $8.

In other action, two forfeited $12 bonds for overparking violations, two vagrancy counts were nolle prossed, three paid $8 for running red lights, one paid the same fine for having an improper muffler, one each paid $40 for failure to yield right-of-way and running stop signs, and four paid $40 for following too close in traffic.

FIRST RIFLE SHOT

Reporter Thought Noise Firecracker

EDITOR'S NOTE — Jack Bell, Associated Press White House correspondent, was in the fourth car behind President Kennedy's on Friday when an assassin killed the President from ambush. Here is what Bell saw.

By JACK BELL

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—There was a loud bang as though a giant firecracker had exploded in the caverns between the tall buildings we were just leaving behind us.

In quick succession there were two other loud reports.

The ominous sound of these dismissed from the minds of us riding in the reporters' "pool" car the fleeting idea that some Texan was adding a bit of noise to the cheering welcome Dallas had given John F. Kennedy.

The reports sounded like rifle shots.

The man in front of me screamed, "My God, they're shooting at the President!"

Our driver braked the car sharply and we swung the doors open to leap out. Suddenly the procession, which had halted, shot forward again.

In the flash of that instant a little tableau was enacted in front of a column toward which the velvety green grass swelled upward to a small park near the top of an underpass for which we had been headed.

A man was pushing a woman dressed in bright orange to the ground and seemed to be plunging protectively over her. A photographer, scrambling on all fours toward the crest of the rise, held a lensed camera trained in their direction.

As my eye swept the buildings to the right, where the shots—if they really were shots and it seemed unbelievable—might have come, I saw no significant sign of activity.

Four cars ahead, in the President's Continental limousine, a man in the front seat rose for a moment. He seemed to have a telephone in hand as he waved to a police cruiser ahead to go on.

The presidential car leaped ahead and those following it attained breakneck speed as the caravan roared through the underpass and on to a broad freeway, police sirens whining shrilly. These sirens had been silenced by presidential order throughout the Kennedy Texas trip.

Up to the highway we thundered, careening around a turn into the Parkland Hospital and screeching to a stop at the emergency entrance.

As we piled out of our car, I saw Mrs. Kennedy, weeping, trying to hold her husband's head up. Mrs. John B. Connally was helping hold up the governor of Texas.

By the time I had covered the distance to the presidential car, Secret Service men were helping Mrs. Kennedy away. Hospital attendants were aiding Connally and Mrs. Connally.

For an instant I stopped and stared into the back seat. There, face down, stretched out at full length lay the President, motionless.

His natty business suit seemed hardly rumpled. But there was blood on the floor.

"Is he dead?" I asked a Secret Service man.

"I don't know," he said, "but I don't think so."

I ran for a telephone.

The President and Connally had been moved into an emergency operating room. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Kennedy had been escorted into the hospital.

The shiny White House automobile, a manufacturers' dream stood untroubled. It had been flown 1,500 miles from Washington only to become the death vehicle of the President for whom it was designed to give maximum protection.

On the front seat floor lay the soft felt hat the President carried often but seldom wore. Beside it in mute comradeship was the wide-brimmed, light-colored Texas style hat that Connally wore.

House Speaker Mourns Killing Of President

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Speaker John McCormack — who is now second in line for the presidency — mourned the death of President Kennedy as a "staggering loss."

Under the presidential succession law, on the death of a chief executive the vice president takes over. Next in line is the speaker, followed by the president pro tempore of the Senate — in this case Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz.

Cold Front To Move In After Rains

After a run of unseasonably mild temperatures, coupled with a tornado scare, normal weather is slated to return to Northeast Louisiana and the Twin Cities today as a rapidly moving cold front enters the area southward from the great plains.

Friday's tornado warning resulted from capricious weather conditions that swept the mid-South, dumping .43 inches of water here by torrential rains accompanied by 33 miles-per-hour winds.

No damage was reported by the near gale force winds in Northeast Louisiana. Near Vivian, however, a community about 30 miles north of Shreveport in the northwestern part of the state, a tornado was reported to have cleared a 300-yard path. Two other twisters in the Shreveport area also did some property damage but as with the one at Vivian no injuries were reported.

The .43 of an inch of rain Friday was the heaviest single downpour for the month, bringing the total amount recorded for November to .95 of an inch.

The forecast for today calls for partly cloudy skies with declining temperatures through tonight. No rain is expected. Today's high will be between 54 and 58 degrees and the low tonight will range from 30 to 35 degrees. Friday's high was recorded at 78 degrees and the low at 60.

Wins will be from the north today with the velocity ranging from 15 to 25 m.p.h.

29 More Cast Absentee Votes Here On Friday

Ouachita Parish absentee voting picked up slightly during the past two days, bringing the total as of Friday afternoon up to 103.

Friday's balloting was the highest for one day, as 29 persons voted early. On Thursday 20 citizens filed absentee votes.

The Clerk of Court's office in the basement of the courthouse will be open from 8 a.m. until noon today. Regular office hours of 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. will be observed next week with the exception of Thanksgiving Day, when the office will be closed.

Saturday, Nov. 30 is the last day to vote absentee in the Dec. 7 Democratic primary. The doors will be closed at noon on that date, announce courthouse officials, and no more applicants will be accepted.

To avoid last - minute waiting and confusion, clerks continue to encourage voters to file their absentee ballots as early as possible.

JFK Slaying Halts Market

Stock exchanges and commodity markets closed early.

Banks, Madison Avenue advertising agencies and other businesses shut their doors and sent shocked employes spilling into quickly emptying streets.

News offices were swamped with announcements of cancellations of business events.

News of the shooting threw the trading floor of the New York Stock Exchange into a frenzy.

"It was absolute turmoil," said an exchange official.

"I never saw anything like it. The board was going crazy and people were running around. They're not supposed to run but they were."

It was worse than the May, 1962, crash, said floor workers.

At 2:10 p.m.—40 minutes after first word of the shooting—the ticker tape flashed: "Market closed." The closing was ordered by the board of governors.

The exchange said:

"It was the opinion of the board that the market would reflect values more realistically after the public had an opportunity to appraise the effect of this great national and international tragedy."

Keith Funston, exchange president, said the closing was necessary because of a heavy flood of orders that accumulated in minutes.

In 40 minutes stock prices had gone into a nosedive in extremely heavy trading.

At the 2:10 p.m. close the ticker tape trailed floor transactions by 27 minutes. The normal closing time is 3:30 p.m.

This was the first time that the New York exchange had closed early since Aug. 4, 1933, when gas fumes accumulated on the trading floor.

The American, Midwest and Pacific, Coast exchanges quickly followed the Big Board's action.

In Canada, the Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver stock exchanges also closed early.

Funston in a statement said: "The death of our President by assassination is a great tragedy to the nation. I know I speak for every member of the exchange community in expressing our deep sense of personal loss. Our heartfelt sympathies are extended to Mrs. Kennedy and members of the family."

Many business houses shut their doors and sent employes home. Normally busy streets were virtually deserted.

"The entire banking community was so stunned by the news that there was no announcement of an early closing," said a spokesman for First National City Bank of New York.

Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) closed its offices in the New York area. Humble Oil Co. closed nationwide immediately after the President's death.

A quick sampling of business leaders indicated the consensus was that the assassination of the President would bring a lull of perhaps several weeks in business but would not result in a slump.

Gen. Lucius Clay, former Allied Supreme Commander and now a partner in the investing banking firm of Lehman Brothers, and Funston were having lunch when they heard of the shooting.

"I rather think there would be an immediate depressing effect on the market," Clay said. "However, I think, firm underlying factors will carry it through this critical period."

W. P. Gullander, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said, "The President's death is a terrifying tragedy for all Americans. Every citizen must be shocked by the consequences of violent action which has no place in our American way of life."
